Build It Up!

Proceed with caution. Upon opening this seemingly harmless yearbook, you will embark on a challenging quest of discovery. The knowledge and experience that you gain from this high school will help you build the puzzle of your individuality. Each piece represents some aspect that you have gained that makes you YOU!!

LC has been filled with many opportunities to allow yourself to develop into an individual. The big Homecoming game versus Decatur Central. Swim practice at 5 a.m. Parties. Prom committee. Even your best friend.

As wide-eyed and timid freshmen walking into that great big Freshman Center, no one really knows what the next four years will bring. It is what you make of it... one piece at a time.

Being open to new ideas. Meeting new people. Not being so afraid to go against the crowd. Finding out what it means to be yourself. Piece by piece, you will find your niche, and everything eventually falls into place.

It doesn't happen overnight. It takes work to finally "grow up." During your time spent at LC, you may not have even have noticed how the time flew by. The person who entered the Freshman Center changes with every passing year. Students will grow into individuals with the pieces they have collected along the way. When it does happen, you will be that senior, looking back at that empty C-wing hallway around June 1st with a pocket full of memories...the pieces that have molded into the person reading this yearbook.

The puzzle started out looking like a border, but the memories, the pieces, will gradually fill up the spaces to make a fantastic and unique picture. Everyone has the power to make each day count towards finding out who he or she is. Don't think it will happen by itself... Some Assembly Required!!

Sophomore Rachelle Rockstroh, senior Jainie Ehrenzeller, and sophomore Ann Pelka decide to take a break from the Centrallette competition in San Diego's Sea World to take a picture by the bay. This was the Centrallettes third consecutive appearance at Nationals.

Live like--

Today school dominated our schedule, but finding an activity that might brighten our day was never difficult.
We made memories that would always be remembered as the best years of our lives, and your memory will persevere, Last.

This is your life...

1. Sophomores Brette Book and Lisa Alilovich groove at the Winter Formal dance sponsored by N-Teens. The dance, which was held at the Radisson for the first time in years, seemed to be a success. Book said, "We had a blast, we've never had so much fun."

2. Exhausted from a day filled with tours, senior John Talaber rests in a bed of Germany's green grass. "There was so much to see," said Talaber, "but sometimes I just needed to shut my eyes and sleep."

3. "You can't touch this," sang senior Matt Krawiec at the Talent Show sponsored by Student Council. "It was cool being in front of all those people and having fun," said Krawiec. "We're glad the crowd liked it."

No more school, no more books, no more teachers' dirty looks.

Well, at least not for three months. Whether people stayed home and relaxed or traveled to Europe with Mr. Clark, students from Lake Central knew how to have fun.

Many found enjoyment going to the movies at Showplace 16, bowling at Stardust, miniature golfing, and going to Deep River Water Park. Of course, the most famous "hot spot" was the beach. Senior Dale Ramsy claims he went to the beach for a whole week straight.

Many students spent their time at school or worked arduously at their summer job. "I saw Jalapenos more than my own house, but the money paid off," said A.J. Carper (11).

Many other students' were set on doing what they wanted and having fun. "Soon summer came to an end and I knew it was back school. No more staying up late and going to the beach," said Jackie Hawkins (12).

Jason Bireley (12), works to perfect his back flip on the wakeboard.

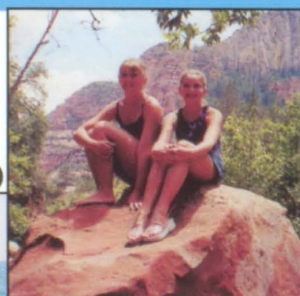

While on vacation in on the salomn ski.

1.

Dale Flickinger (11) and friends enjoy a hot day at the beach.

2.

Nicole Teeter (12) and friends take a break from dancing to cool off.

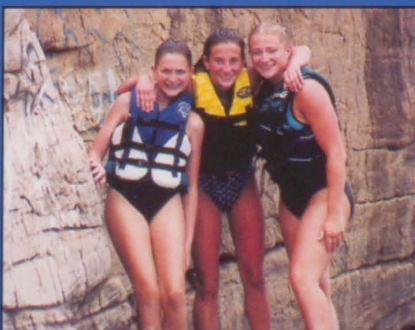

3.

Danny Duncan (12) learns how to kneeboard at the Illinois River.

4.

Heather Lager (12) and friends work on their tan at West Beach.

5.

Krissy Curtis (9) and Michele Jones (12) have an adventurous day of cliff jumping.

1.

Seniors Andy Jakubowicz, Paul Winkley, Aaron Latham ('99), and senior Wally Vukadinovich pose in front of the lion monument of Lucerne, Switzerland.

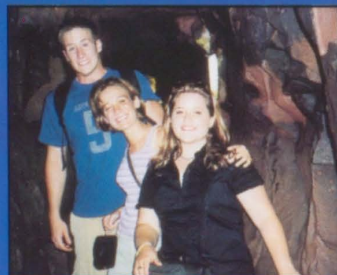

2.

With group leaders Tom Clark and Alan McGrath, student tourists pose for a picture while crossing the English Channel.

3.

Seniors Amy Fischer, Angie Monzin, and Andy Jakubowicz explore a cave in the deeps of Dilsberg, Germany.

4.

Gifted with a rose, seniors Angie Monzin, Jamie Oslawski, Erika Kelly, Amy Tworowski, Adam Kruse, and Stephanie Mishevski ('99) spend their night in Vienna.

5.

Cooling off before touring the Louvre, seniors Scott Ourednick, Marisa McKay, Adam Kruse, John Talaber, and Andy Jakubowicz rest their feet in a water fountain.

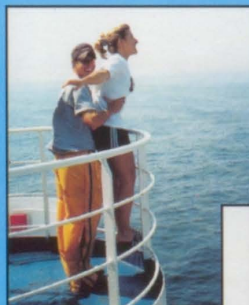

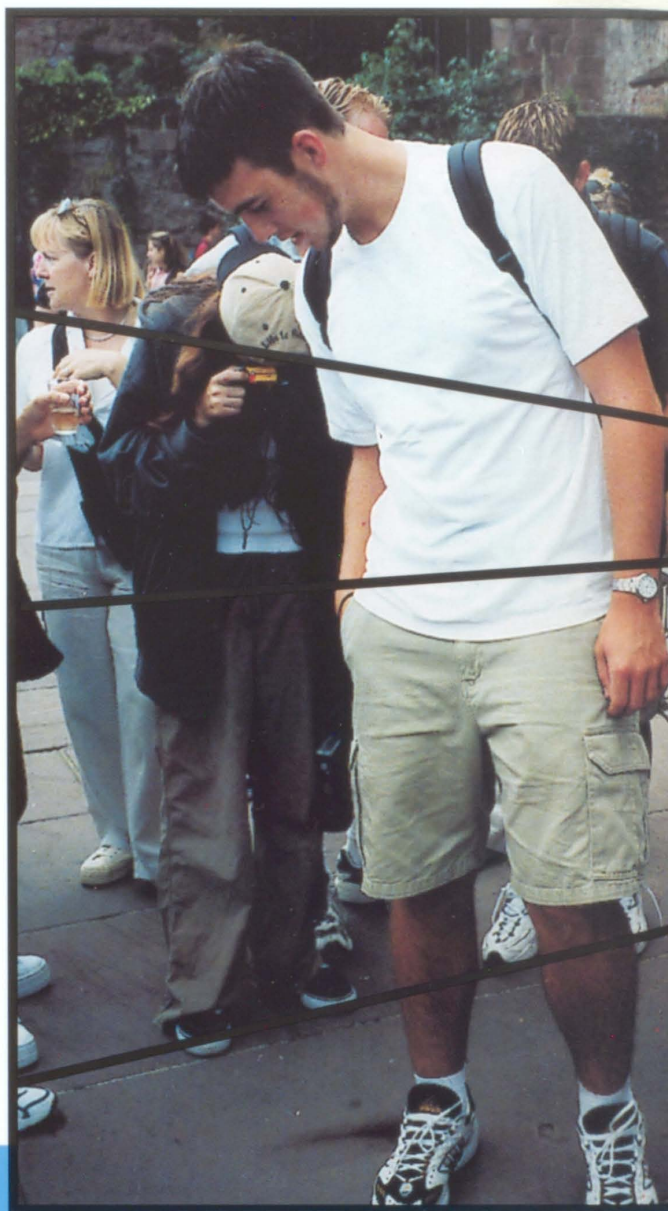

6.

Seniors Jill Zarnecki, Belle Marjanovich, and Tim Pawl ('99) sit back to watch Switzerland's busy city life after a day of shopping.

Summer in Europe

Senior Paul Winkley fills the shoes of a great lover, according to German folklore, at a castle in Heidelberg, Germany.

Seniors Nicole O'Hearn and Kate Mix hang out of the window of their hotel room in Muenich, Germany to chat with their neighbors.

Bo Ramsey ('99) and senior Julie Spurlock reenact a Titanic scene on a Ferry while crossing the English Channel.

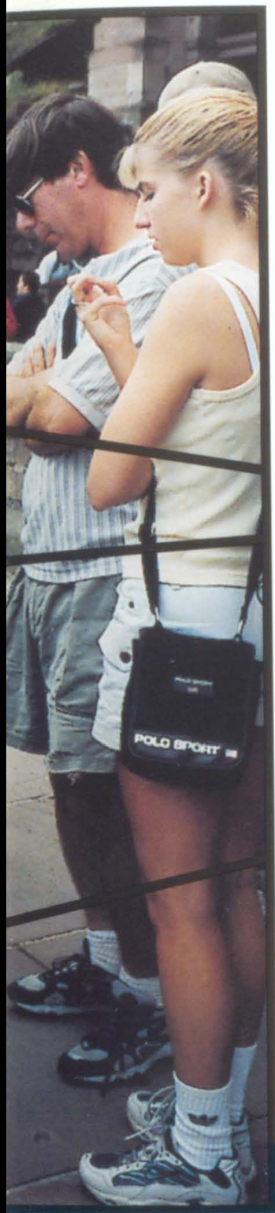

Senior Wally Vukadinovich and others stop to view the ancient brewing cellar in the castle of Heidelberg, Germany.

Senior Scott Ourednik wears traditional German lederhosen.

Over 40 students exchanged two weeks of America's summer sun to experience Europe. The tour group, led by Mr. Tom Clark, began their journey in Frankfurt, Germany after an eight-hour plane ride. Jet lag was almost immediately cast aside as the anxious tourists were taken to their first destination, Heidelberg, Germany. The tour's path wound through Western Europe and allowed two to three days to be spent in each country. After Germany, the students encountered Austria, Switzerland, France, and England. "We were so rushed in each country so I wanted to stay longer, but at the same time, I wanted to see more," said senior Breanne Lukowski.

Tourist attractions filled each country's agenda with postcard worthy sights. Germany was full of castles, including Neuschwannstein, the castle Disneyland copied. The Hunderdwasserhaus, an apartment building complex, colored Austria's landscape with its mismatched tiles, windows, and even toilets. The Alps reigned majestically in Switzerland revealing their unmatched beauty. The Louve's famous pieces of art along with the Eiffel Tower gave France an "artsy" feel. London's famous clock tower, Big Ben, and the nightlife on Piccadilly Circus made England a country of history and excitement.

After scheduled tours, free time was spent trying to get a feel of European life. Many students spent time shopping, taking pictures, trying new food at restaurants, or just relaxing. Dancing ranked highly among some, including senior Scott Ourednik. He said, "My favorite way to have fun was at the dance clubs. Europeans know how to get down."

Senior Wally Vukadinovich liked spending his time shopping. He said, "My friends and I found many stores that can't be found in America."

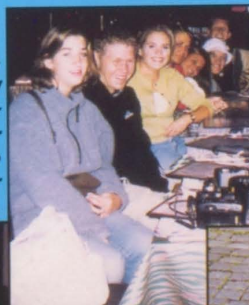

Eating new food also added interest to the trip. Each country served its trademark meal. Students were given the chance to try each food and experience a taste of new culture. Senior John Talaber said, "I liked the food because it was different than American food, it was more cultural."

The reviews were mixed and culture didn't permeate into everyone's mouth. Senior Megan Schloer said, "The food was too bland, I didn't like it. I liked the European McDonald's, though."

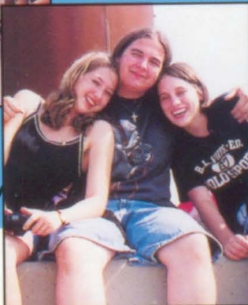

Senior Leah Olenik, Tim Pawl ('99) and senior Beth Barno bond while waiting for the ferry to depart.

Seniors Kara Stevens and Erika Kelly show their gratitude to group leader Alan McGrath.

Seniors Wally Vukadinovich and John Talaber rest in a courtyard.

Seniors Jennie Clark, Kristina Varro, Andrea Boskovich, and Chris Manick ('99) enjoy Germany's scenery outside a castle in Heidelberg.

After a long plane flight, members of the tour group sit in front of the Mercedes Bus.

Senior Jackle Hawkins, Chris Manick ('99) and friends eat American food at Planet Hollywood in Germany.

Seniors Paul Winkley and Kara Stevens

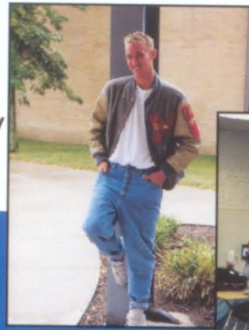

Seniors Ramsey Hoyda and Paul Feges waited for class to begin on '80s Day.

Senior Dan Gibson showed his knack for fashion while wearing the outfit he designed for Crazy Day.

Senior Jake Kapitan pulled out his old basketball jersey to dress for '80s day.

Senior Herb Gonzalez worked up an appetite while being as crazy as he could be.

Senior Briana Hoogewerf displays LC's true colors on Spirit Day.

Spirit Week

Senior Tim O'Donnell and Junior Tim Jones demonstrate a little bit of the football team's crazy spirit before the long-awaited Homecoming game.

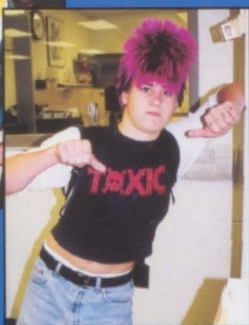

Senior Nick Hardesty picked a flower from his mom's garden to wear on Wednesday's mid-week luau.

Junior Mike Melcic got a little fruity on Crazy Day.

Senior Scott Ourednik wore a fluorescent wig to represent his favorite 80's do.

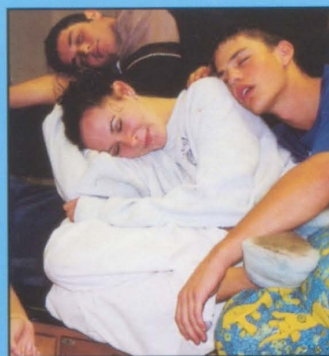

"V-i-c-t-o-r-y that's LC battle cry," echoed through Redar Park during the pep rally. Student Council designed spirit week to show pride for our school and have fun at the same time. These activities were leading off Homecoming weekend.

Spirit Week started off with a sleepy start on Monday. We graced the hallways in our finest flannel pajamas and fuzzy slippers.

Pinched-rolled jeans and lots of hair spray were all back in style on Tuesday for 80's day. We dug through our parents' garage sale items to find the loudest color clothing and plenty of accessories. We greeted each other with aloha on Wednesday for the mid-week luau. leis, grass skirts, Hawaiian printed shirts and even some coconut bras were scattered throughout the hallways. Thursday was a day filled with craziness. It was a day for everyone in LC to show their abnormal side. We went to all extremes such as face paint, mismatched clothing, hair dye and outrageous hairdos.

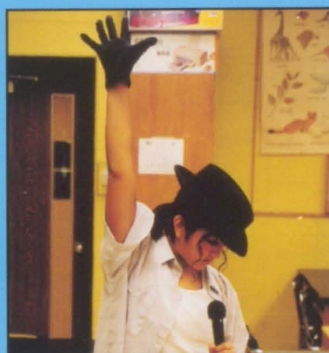

Thursday evening consisted of pre-Homecoming activities. The Homecoming parade fled through the streets of Schererville. Sports and clubs participated in the event. The parade ended in the park where we then proclaimed our spirit. Julie Spurlock, the student council president, introduced everyone in the pep rally. The pep rally challenged six students to a pie-eating contest. With whip cream smeared all over their faces, seniors Rob Shackleton, Matt Krawiec, and Andy Jakubowicz defeated seniors Andy Pollen, Kevin Dalton, and freshman Lindsay Frost in the messy competition. The pep rally acknowledged football, cheerleading, boys and girls cross country, hockey, and volleyball teams.

A sea of blue and white flowed through the hallways on Friday. There was no other way to get ready for the big game than to show our dedicated school spirit. Our hair was dyed blue and white, and LC slogans were painted on our faces. Junior Melissa McCabe, the head of the Homecoming Committee says, "Spirit week is a good time for students to show off their originality, and there is always great student participation."

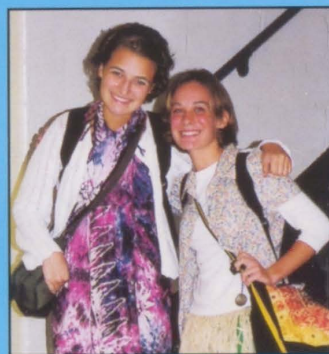

1. Monday

Juniors Beth Wells, John Dembowski, and Tommy Johnson took advantage of the sleepy mood set by pajama day. Fourth hour finally brought the nap time they were dreaming of all day.

2. Tuesday

Candice Pedraza, senior, displayed her acting talents when she posed as '80s musical fad Michael Jackson.

3. Wednesday

Seniors Angie Monzin and Jamie Oslawski were dressed for a Hawaiian climate on Wednesday's mid-week luau.

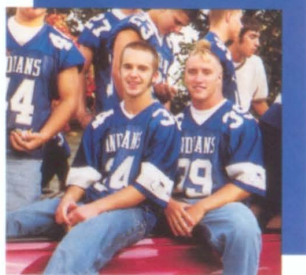

4. Thursday

Senior Melody Ashby leaned toward the wild side on Crazy Day. Face paint, hair dye, and clashing clothes helped her complete her image.

5. Friday

Seniors Nate Richie, Adam Paulson, and junior Marc Urban got set for the game on Spirit Day.

Seniors Adam Paulson and Tom Isaacs relax for a minute before the parade starts.

Senior Class Cabinet members do some last minute touch-ups on their float, a Hummer provided by sponsor Mark South.

Freshman Lindsay Frost and senior Andy Pollen attempt to win the pie-eating contest during the pep rally at Redar Park.

Leftover pie is great anytime, especially when it comes from the face of senior Rob Shackleton.

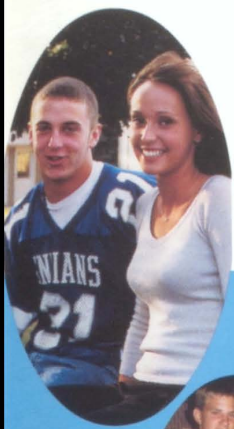

The quiet streets of downtown Schererville were rudely awakened with the energy and beat of the LC Tribe of Pride during the Homecoming parade. Bill Peronto, sponsor of Dollars for Scholars, decided it was time to make a change, and for the first time in LC's history, the parade route would be hosted by Schererville followed by the first-ever outdoor pep rally. The annual Homecoming parade was full of fanatic fans, fall athletes, lively cheerleaders and energetic Centralettes. Each class cabinet made its mark for the millennium by decorating a float. The floats held the theme of "Party Like It's 1999." LC teachers judged the floats; seniors came in first. The Homecoming Court also participated in the parade. The prince and princess of the freshmen, Carrie Sluce and Chris Ross, sophomores, Desiree Davila and Sam Mouratides, and juniors, Bri Schaap and Ryan Sickles, classes led the way for the nominated seniors, Jackie Shelby, Danny Duncan, Mary Graham, Derek Moore, Nicki Mackowski, and Aaron Davis.

After the parade, Indian fans exploded into a blue and white tornado of spirit at the outdoor pep rally in Redar Park. The Tribe of Pride, along with Indian calls from the audience, could be heard throughout the town. Student Council members introduced the fall sports teams while DJ Tom Misters pumped up the fans for the upcoming Homecoming football game against Decatur.

A pie-eating contest was also added to the excitement of the party. In a mad rush of strength, endurance, and excitement, students from all grades choked down as much pie as they could fit into their mouths. The messy faces smiled proudly as each polished off their plates. The smell of teen spirit and freshly baked pies filled the air with hopes of a great Homecoming victory.

Although the Homecoming game was lost 34-19, the spirits of LC were not dampened the slightest bit. Immediately following the game, Student Council members, led by junior Melissa McCabe, decorated the cafeteria and foyer in preparation for the anticipated dance. The amount of time Student Council members put into decorating and organizing for spirit week made this Homecoming a great way to end the millennium.

Student Council sponsor Mr. Mark South helps out by blowing up one of the thousands of balloons used to decorate for the dance.

?????Why is Homecoming the best dance?????

1. The tickets are only $10.
2. You don't have to bring a date.
3. You can wear almost anything.
4. A portion of the profits go to a charity.
5. You still have some tan left.

Homecoming proved a huge success; with the theme "Party Like It's 1999," it couldn't go wrong. More than 2,100 students gathered Oct. 3 with one objective: to have as much fun as possible at L.C.'s last big bash this century—well, some argued it wasn't the last, but they came together for fun all the same. Sponsored annually by Student Council, the Homecoming dance gained popularity during recent years. A last minute ticket shortage caused some alterations in plans to accommodate the huge crowd. Ms. Martha Voorhees and Mr. Mark South stayed with their council members past midnight to decorate the night before the dance. Up again early the morning of the dance, most students agreed that their dedication helped ensure this memorable dance.

At this year's Homecoming, everyone learned how to get down on the dance floor.

Mary Grahm, 12, and Derek Moore, 12, were crowned Queen and King at the year's Homecoming festivities.

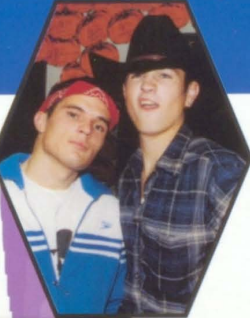

Chris Kolodziej, 12, enjoys his free limo ride raffled by Student Council.

Carly Craven, 11, liked the decorations at the dance.

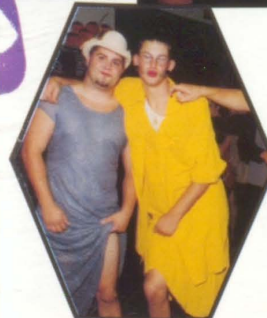

Mark Coduti, 12, and Brian Miller, 12, show off their unique fashion styles.

Katie Rivoli, 12, and friends have a great time at their last Homecoming at Lake Central.

Paul Feges, 12, and Wally Vukadinovich, 12, know how to dress up for an occasion.

Crystal Clark, 10, and friends show their moves.

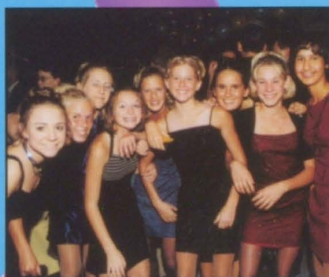

Ryan Hoyda, 12, and Tony Petreski, 12, hang out before the dance.

1. Erika Kelly, 12, and friends name White Castle their restaurant of choice after all major dances.

2. Eric Lopez, 12, was a lady's man at this year's Homecoming with Kara Stevens, 12, and Kari Duncan, 12, on his arms.

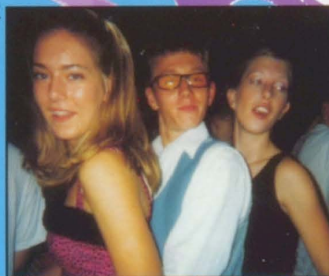

3. A group of Freshman Class friends experience their first LC Homecoming dance.

4. Dale Flickinger, 11, and friends take a break from dancing to get together for a picture.

5. Tommy Johnson, 11, and Renee Fox, 11, know how to look cool on the dance floor.

6. Jennie Clark, 12, Jason Doffin, 12, and Carrie Peterson, 12, started the train at the dance.

Senior Dan Gibson falls victim in his Jaws costume.

Senior Erin Donlin dresses in her Halloween costume for work.

Seniors Gabby O'Connor and Ryan Spencer depict reverse roles.

Living Dead Visits LC

Through agonizing cries, you screamed, "But mom, I can't go to school today. There is a blood-thirsty vampire in my fourth hour!" Not surprisingly, she laughed and handed you your lunch.

Aliens from Mars, dolls dressed in pink, killer clowns, and monsters that escaped out of students' lockers were only a few of the creatures roaming the halls on the ever famous Halloween Day. "Halloween is a great opportunity for students to show their creativity. LC has a lot of imagination," said senior Tina Hasselbring. The costumes definitely proved this statement true.

Bags of candy were given as prizes by the Student Council for the costumes judged as the scariest, funniest, most creative, and cutest. The costumes were judged by the cafeteria lunch ladies. The winners were funniest, seniors Adam Myszak and Bryan Bierman; cutest, senior Emily Szeplakay and sophomore Stacie Pluskota, scariest, senior Pedro Anaya; and most creative, senior Tina Hasselbring.

Depending on one's love of this holiday, there were various ways to spend Halloween. Some ventured to Illinois for Great America's Fright Fest. Junior Josh Campell said, "It was a lot better this year because the decorations were awesome, and the lines were really short."

Others challenged local spook houses such as Reaper's Realm or "haunted" spots. Junior John Marnell, who braved Cedar Lake's haunted school, said, "The school was really old and creepy. I went in a big group with flashlights. I was the only one without a flashlight because I was the bravest. I think there might have been ghosts inside."

Many others took the traditional route trick-or-treating with a good old-fashioned pillow case loaded with candy. Senior Jenni White said, "I don't think you're ever too old to trick-or-treat because you're never too old for candy." No matter if tricks were pulled or treats were bagged, the spirit of Halloween was raised from the dead with great thrills and chills.

Sophomore Sam Mouratides gives a sly smile to all the ladies.

Senior Jeff Baisden was released from the mental hospital to attend LC's Halloween Day.

Seniors Amy Gibbs and Kim Gallas dress up on Halloween Day.

1.

Seniors Emily Szeplakay, Natalie Stelmaszek, and Julie Spurlock strut, hop, and shovel their way out of lunch.

2.

Seniors Dan Kuipers, Jay Blackman, and Adam Myszak come together at lunch to show each other their costumes.

3.

Senior Duane Krambeck and Junior Jennifer Keith are stuck together for the duration of the school day.

4.

Seniors Melody Ashby and Tina Hasselbring surrender in fear of the mummy.

5.

Juniors Sam Colella, Melissa Skopelija, Sarah Ksanke, and Erin Briski are ready to fill their pillow cases with candy.

6.

Senior Jamie Short and Junior Heather Lemon clown around before they head out to trick-or-treat.

AUGUST 2

SENIOR Cara Freeland

A loud bang was followed by loud laughter on the first day of school. Junior Rachel Mishoulam had dropped her pencil on the geography room floor, and when she had bent over to pick it up her whole desk flipped over. "I had never been so embarrassed in my life!" said Mishoulam. Nothing could be worse than an embarrassing situation on the first day back, as many students would find out.

"Mmm....," chanted senior Mike Berger while eating his first turkey dinner of the new school year, "I think I'll mail some to my friend in college." The school's turkey with gravy and mashed potatoes is one of Berger's favorite school lunch items. He said, "I run to lunch to avoid the long lines. I'll miss it when I graduate."

LC Lady Indian golfers had a record-breaking start at their first tournament of the year. The record was broken by five strokes with a score of 359.

SEPTEMBER 4

The girls varsity volleyball team victoriously competed against four teams and won first place at their own invitational.

The SWAT Team swarmed the halls of LC while practicing an emergency drill. The SWAT Team used the day to teach themselves and staff members what to do in the occurrence of a violent situation. All students, except drama students who took part in the drill, were given an exempted day off.

JUNIOR Ashley Kowalski GROOVES AT Homecoming

Blue and white hair, stomachs painted with "Go LC," cheerleaders firing up the crowd, and a Centralette half-time show all supported the varsity football team during the Homecoming game. The Indians were defeated by Decatur 34 to 12.

2.

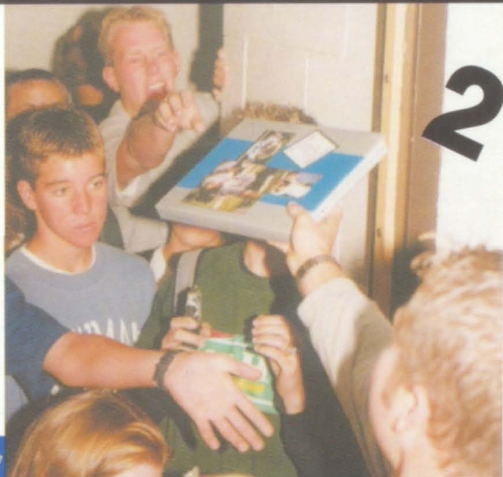

The best ways seniors found a date to the Homecoming Dance, "Party like it's 1999!" (and the reason why so many went stag!):

1. Tell your date that there will be rewards after the dance -- Jackie Hawkins
2. Wear "Hoochy" clothes and he will be yours -- Ms. Miller
3. Bribe her with a drive in your new Mustang -- Nick Uzubell
4. Buy a date with two dollars -- Danielle Danko
5. Play hard to get -- Lisa Chavez

You knew school started when..

1. The temperature inside the school was 50 degrees lower than outside.
2. Your eyes were only fully open on weekends.
3. You found yourself having intelligent conversations.
4. Your body suddenly became more robot than human and was only showing immediate reaction to the sound of a bell.
5. You heard a song that reminded you of summer, and instead of dancing, you began to cry.

Senior Nolan Spanke reaches over the crowd to grab the NEW Year Book from senior Andy Pollen.

Mad rushes of students of ran to room S103 screaming, "They're here! They're here!" The usual congestion of S-hall was put to shame as excited students rushed to pick up the long-awaited yearbook.

This was not one of your average games at the Burial Grounds... it was Indians vs. Indians. The varsity football team felt the pressure of going up against the number one team in the region, the Portage Indians. LC won the game at the burial grounds 26-21.

Senior Briana Hoogewerf

Spirit Week captived student interest and school spirit. Each day's theme depicted life from a different time or climate and even urged LC to show their crazy side.

Talk about the Istep graduation test could be heard everywhere during the dreaded testing week. As the required sophomores, juniors, and seniors took the test, the rest of the remaining upperclassmen were allowed to sleep in.

Senior Derek Moore

27.

The boys varsity soccer team's appearance at the semi-state game of the state tournament marked the first time the Indians won a regional game since the tournament was restructured. The Indians were defeated at semi-state by Penn 4-1.

Girls Cross Country Sectional Champion team.

Member of the state qualifying girls cross country team, Brittany Ausmus's listed five things she learned from cross country:

1. Bring toilet paper wherever you go. (It comes in handy sometimes)
2. You can never have too many socks
3. To accomplish anything you must work as a team.
4. The friends you make are friends for life.
5. Anything can be fun if you want it to be.

Exhumed spirits found refuge in LC on Halloween. As the dead wandered the hallways, class went on, and on, and on...

Clubs Serve, Enlight, and Spark LC

Seniors Jason Doffin, Marina Popovic, Amy Walker, Heather Lager, and other blood donors take a moment to eat a snack before returning to class.

Senior Kristine Corban and junior Sarah Kosanke dance at a Student Council meeting.

Reaching out to every student and every interest, LC offered a multitude of clubs. Whether leading or giving a helping hand, numerous students eager to make a difference, learn culture, or spark spirit into LC filled each classroom during club periods.

Many clubs concentrated on making a contribution to the community or the school. Some of the clubs who participated in service activities during the year included Interact, N-Teens, Dollars for Scholars, Medical Professions, Student Council, and the Class Cabinets. The Interact club sponsored a food drive for Thanksgiving and a clothing drive during March. Interact members went around their neighborhoods, stood outside stores, even went around classrooms to collect food to donate to the food drive. "I enjoy helping others who are less fortunate," said freshman Sylvia Mishoulam, "and my friends and I had fun going around the neighborhood collecting food." On Thanksgiving, Interact ended the food drive volunteering at the Knights of Columbus. They cooked dinner and passed out the food and clothing they collected.

From freshman year, student Class Cabinet members saved money to host prom in their junior year. They continued to host activities throughout their senior year.

Other clubs dedicated their time to knowledge, culture, and spirit. These clubs included BPA, Foreign Language Clubs, Academic Letterwinners, Athletic Letterwinners, Art Club, Quiver, Scout, and Superfans. Business Professionals of America members participated in the district competition in Valparaiso during January. Members competed in different categories of accounting, computer programming, speech, medical and legal concepts, and interviewing skills. Many BPA members won awards and qualified for the state competition in March held in Indianapolis.

Students that were interested in going to see LC's sporting activities joined the Superfan club. Students who were in Superfan club were able to get into any sporting events for only one dollar.

1. BPA members celebrate their success at the district competition.

2. Senior Lauren Martino gets her blood pressure taken before she donates blood.

3. Junior Tanya Jaksic sorts out bags of clothing during SRT for the clothing drive.

4. Senior Marina Popovic gets her blood drawn for the Blood Drive.

As the Clock Ticks

As everyone is aware, New Year's Eve comes only once a year. However, there was one small exception this year. Not only was the year changing, but so was the decade, century, and millennium. A special occasion like this calls for a special celebration. Many LC students either had a party, went to a party, or celebrated in some other way. As Nick Summa, 10, stated, "I could only find one way to go into the new millennium, and that was by hosting a New Year's bash at my place." But any Lake Central student will tell you that celebrating the holiday at a friend's was the only way to go. Adults and teenagers all over the world celebrated the occasion, but anyone can tell you that no one else went into the new millennium Lake Central style. We are LC!

The countdown was on as billions waited nervously for the new millennium to dawn upon us. As that clock reached closer with every second, more and more thoughts of the Y2K problems were arising. Said senior Matt Krawiec, "I knew the world wasn't going to end or anything like that. I just kind of wanted to see if there would be any terrorist problems in the cities." Many people hoped for the best but prepared for the worst. "I was scared. I didn't want to die in California. I wanted to come back home to all of my friends," said junior Kevin Peller. As no serious problems occurred, we can now look back and laugh at the preparations intended for the end.

Dance Fever 2000

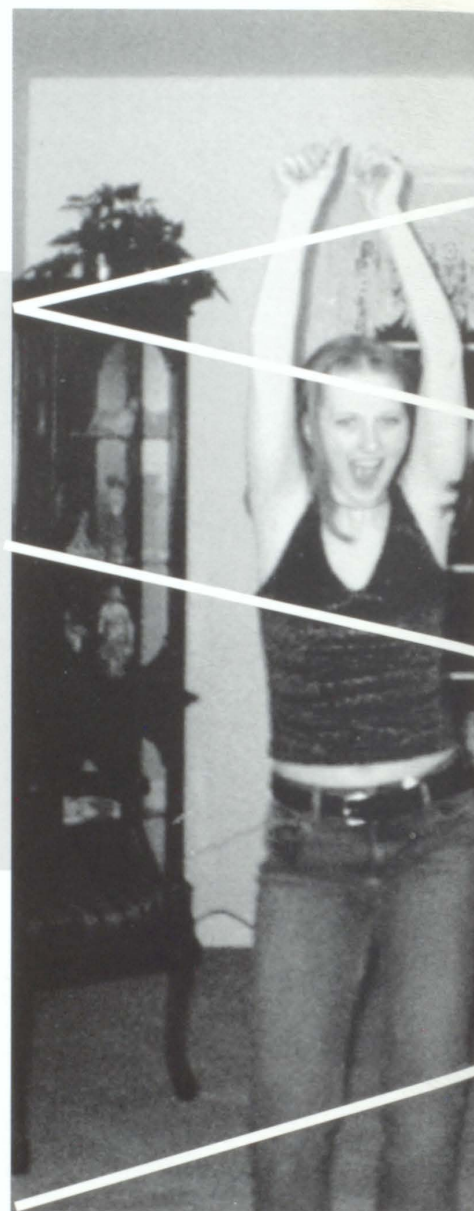

At one point in their high school lives, all LC students asked the question, "Hey, guys what are we doing this weekend?" The opening of the two new dance clubs, Vortex and The Realm, helped provide an answer to that timeless question. Students flocked to these dance clubs to get their groove on and get down. It was the start of dance fever and it quickly spread throughout LC.

LC students sometimes preferred the thrill of an action-packed club over a night at the movies or bowling. Some students even preferred the club scene over a school dance. Junior Michelle Fadely said, "I love school dances, but sometimes it's just better to dance in a normal outfit and not worry about all the details that go along with school dances." But some students still love the good ol' school dances. Junior Kate Barzan said, "I prefer school dances because all of my friends are there, and I feel more comfortable around them."

Dance clubs provided students with a change of scenery and new faces. It was a way to meet people from different schools and areas in northwest Indiana. Everyone was trying hard to make a good impression at the clubs and hopefully make a scene.

The two new clubs were not the only places that got all the attention. Many students drove out to Naperville, Schaumburg, and Palatine just so they could dance the night away. Senior Marina Popovich said, "I like going to Chicago clubs because there is a better variety of music and a better selection of guys." Many students went dancing in search of a love connection while others went for the fun of it.

All in all, these two clubs started a dance craze and set a new trend. LC got dance happy when we added another Homecoming in the spring. The school cafeteria was transformed into a club scene as students came dressed in their dancing clothes ready to "get jiggy with it" and party all night.

2. One of the most popular songs of the year was Juvenile's "Back that thang up." Every radio station and dance club was jamming to this song. Junior Zac Peto shows the Quiver class how he backs his thang up during the Quiver Christmas party.

3. Quiver was definitely the class to be in this year. The music and fun never stopped. Senior Marina Popovich takes a break from her work to "shake her Bon Bon" to her favorite Ricki Martin song.

4. The talent show proved to be a hot spot for dancing this year. Junior Dan Caudle and some friends performed to an old MC Hammer song. The guys got creative and choreographed a dance number that set the stage on fire.

5. Homecoming is one of the most fun dances at L.C. Most people go stag so that they can dance with who ever they want. Seniors Amy Tworowski and Breanne Shumaker show that they don't need guys to have dance and have fun.

6. After dancing the night away with their close friends, seniors Megan Schloer and Derek Goins steal away for a romantic slow dance to top the evening off.

The unexpected snowstorm that hit the region set the right mood for Winter Formal. The slippery roads threatened to keep the girls from getting to their hair appointments and the boys from picking up the flowers, but the dance-goers battled the elements and managed to pull everything together. Junior Ashley Madryk said, "I totaled my car on the day of formal, and for the rest of the night I did not have too much fun." The snow did not make everyone's night but it was beautiful refreshment for the eyes.

Girls held the bottom of their dresses to avoid soiling their "Night in Heaven" with a dirty dress. Senior Danielle Kotarski said, "I didn't want to walk through the parking lot with my dress and high heels on." The only couples that were able to avoid the cold were those who thought ahead about the inconveniences of driving. Senior Jackie Ruzich said, "When we were planning the dance, I didn't want to spend my money on a limo. The benefits were worth it, though. That was the best money I spent the whole night."

N-teens rented the Radisson's hall to change the scenery of the traditional night. The doors opened, and the music started promptly at seven. The Radisson draped their tables with romantic, elegant candles. The dim lighting matched the mood of the dance. Junior Meighan Tucker said, "It was a nice change of scene having the dance at the Radisson; everyone seemed to enjoy the transition."

After the dance plans for couples and friends varied. Some, who had rented limousines, made the journey downtown for a charming dinner at places such as The Italian Village and The Cheesecake Factory. Other couples decided to stay in town or at home to relax and wind down.

The dance was enjoyable for most of the people who attended. The Winter Formal 2000 was a great way to spring into the new millennium.

Crazy Snowflakes

Stuck in Northwest Indiana, LC is known for its crazy weather conditions; from boiling hot to freezing cold, mother nature keeps LC students guessing about how they should dress. One season in particular, known for mad bouts of indecision is winter. From friendly snowflakes to vicious blizzards, LC students have seen it all.

There were many uses of the white glow among the student body. Junior Al Lerma commented, "On Christmas Eve some friends and I went sledding down the landfill in Munster. We got kicked out, but it was definitely worth it." Those fortunate enough took advantage of their snow mobiles. Junior Melissa McCabe said, "I took my snow mobile on the bike trails in Crown Point. It was fun, but there wasn't enough snow this year."

Others looked toward the city for winter excitement. Sophomore Alexandra Dimitrievski stated, "I went to skate on State Street during the break. The lights were really pretty and the weather was nice, too."

Thanks to Punxsutawney Phil, winter spent an extra six weeks nipping at LC's noses. Contrary to Phil seeing his shadow, LC was blessed with a mild March, and at times, the temperatures almost reached 80.

Through the duration of the winter, northwest Indiana did not experience the intense snow situations as the previous years. Actually, there were only three massive snow falls the entire winter. Although there were only three snow falls, the area did experience some extremely low temperatures.

The weather fluctuated greatly, reaching record lows and record highs during the winter. The weather during January was below zero, then in March it almost reached 80 degrees. Although most people were happy with the warm winter, senior Taylor Harris proved to be an exception, "I actually missed putting on my winter coat and gloves, but I did not miss scraping the ice off of my car in the morning." Enjoyment was lost however, when LC missed the opportunity to wake up in the morning, see 12 inches of snow and pray for a snow delay or cancellation.

Seniors John Bllow and Josh Hlines prepare for their act in the talent show.

Junior Chris Prezborowski sings and plays the guitar while performing a duet.

Student Council sponsored the third annual talent show Feb. 4. Talent show coordinator Natalie Stelmaszek helped judge the auditions with the help of the rest of the council. Out of 10 bands who auditioned, only six made it past the cuts; the rest of the acts were included in the performance. Juniors Melissa Skopelja and Andrew Ranich were emcees, who introduced the acts and brought excitement to the audience between acts.

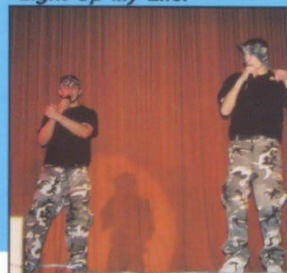

The talent show was divided into two categories: bands and miscellaneous. In the band category, seniors Dan Gibson, Nick Kuc, Carlos Quezada, and J.J. Sowa were awarded $200 for first place. Downscale took second place and was awarded $100.

In the miscellaneous category, senior Meredith Gozo composed and played her own piece on the piano; she took first place and was awarded $200. Seniors Pedro Anaya and Paul Hooper breakdanced and won $100 for second place. Senior Matt Krawiec, juniors Dan Caudle and Troy Parker, and sophomore Mike Beavers performed a dance to "Can't Touch This" and took third place and a $50 prize.

Stelmaszek said, "The talent show turned out to be great. The student response was excellent, and there were no problems. We were able to raise over $300 for Riley's." The Student Council benefitted from the tickets and a bake sale, and a 50/50 raffle, and also donated the proceeds to Riley's Children's Hospital. Junior Courtney Thompson won the 50/50 and donated her prize back to the council.

Junior Tiffany Wallen sings "Light Up My Life."

The Night We'd All Been Waiting For

Ninety degrees outside and clear blue skies. Traffic backed up all the way up US 30 for a wonderful occasion. June 1 finally arrived, and the Class of 2000 was finally graduating. The Senior Class could not have asked for a better day. We walked into the Radisson as seniors but walked out as adults with high school behind us. The monumental strut across the stage to accept our diplomas was a symbolic crossing from high school to adulthood, that thing we call the real world.

Commencement began at 7 o'clock with the band playing the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance." The Senior Class began assembling into the Radisson which was the moment the graduates' parents had been waiting for for 18 years. The greeting was given by Nicole Mackowski, followed by the Salutatorian's (Alicia Smith) and Valedictorian's (Julie Leslie) speeches. Smith gave a touching speech about overcoming her fears, and Leslie inspired the graduates to living out their dreams.

Jill Zarnecki, Senior Class president, gave the senior tribute. She, along with the rest of the Senior Class officers, presented the class gift to Principal Sandie Platt. The officers decided that the Class of 2000 should be remembered not with a traditional mirror for the hallways, but a 5-disk CD changer which was to be connected to the P.A. system to be played throughout the hallways uninterrupted for the entire school to enjoy. Not only did the Senior Class donate money to various school organizations but also the incoming Freshman Class and the other class cabinets.

The Counterpoints broke into song with a touching and heartfelt "Let the River Run." For the senior Counterpoints, including Sara Jacewitz, Dave Pittman, Meredith Gozo, Mary Eagan, Jack Arndt, Sean Suiba, Erin Ordway, Jen Alexander, Krissy Bales, and Renee Lesnewski, it was an especially moving experience to sing their last song for LC. To do it in front of their fellow peers made their moment even more incredible. Dave Pittman said about his performance, "It was nice to look down and see all of my friends for what may be the last time for a long time."

Guidance counselor Ms. Sandy Wright and English teacher Mr. Ron Fredrick presented the diplomas to the graduates. Fifty-nine students were recognized as Summa Cum Laude (with a grade point average of 4.0+), and thirty-six were Cum Laude (G.P.A. between a 3.75-3.99).

Cartwheels, dancing, and other such actions were popular during the graduation ceremonies. Even though the Senior Class sponsors, Mr. Mark South and Ms. Pam Miller, were also out on the stage to "intercept" any misbehavior, some students still managed to get their last laugh in before they left high school. Twins Ryan and Ramsey Hoyda switched their name cards, so the wrong twin's name was called when he walked out. Of course, the students caught it right away. The Hoydas never looked prouder.

Approximately 574 students graduated in the Class of 2000.

As the seniors threw up their caps when Principal Platt proclaimed the completion of the graduation, the feeling of happiness and hope for the future was felt in the air. High school was now over, but the graduates left the Radisson with the memories that had been collected with friends along the way. The Class of 2000 had their entire lives ahead of them.

Hot! Hot! Hot!

Salsa, piñatas, and jalapeños were found in the LC cafeteria during the first ever spring homecoming dance. Who said there was only room for one homecoming?

Sponsored by Dollars for Scholars, the dance turned out to be quite a success. President of the club Nikki Mackowski said, "We were very pleased at the amount of tickets we sold at such short notice. Everyone worked really hard to make it happen." The event took in 850 tickets while the annual fall homecoming usually takes in about 1,200. Dollars for Scholars used the money raised to be put toward the scholarships earned by various LC seniors.

Spirit Week may have felt out of season, but it was still prominent throughout the LC hallways. Spirit Week consisted of pajama, fiesta, and blue and white days. Junior Isa Esquivel said, "Spirit Week was better than the ordinary one because it was held at a different time."

The theme of the spring dance was "Hot! Hot! Hot!" The title may have given students a different view on dress apparel, as many who attended were dressed rather promiscuously compared to other dances. As a result, a new dance dress code was strictly enforced shortly after that put limitations on the styles of dresses that girls could wear to future events such as prom. Senior Dollars for Scholars Member Kelly Murphy said, "The dance was a lot of fun regardless of what anyone was wearing. I hope the dance continues to be a tradition at LC."

Spring Break

Spring Break was everyone's favorite vacation from school. It was the break that arrived to save students from the overwhelming tasks that school started to pile on. Students started to get spring fever at this time of year, and spring break brought the only remedy for it. After months of planning trips and activities, it came and went faster than anyone was ready for.

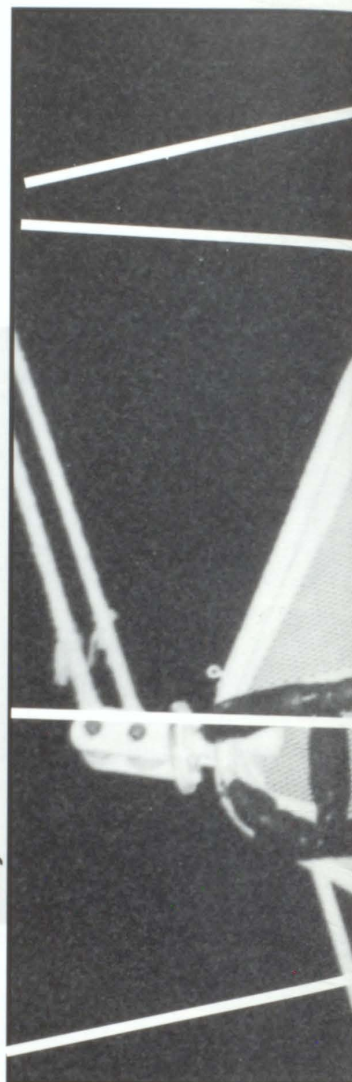

Some students stayed close to home and took advantage of Chicago and other activities that northwest Indiana offered. Junior Tracy Kuhn said, "Not everybody gets to go away on a trip, but it's still nice to stay home and get a break from school."

Other students planned trips with their friends and family to go to warmer climates, and others even went to colder climates. Junior Rachelle Tegtman said, "We planned to go to Ft. Myer's for five months. The only way to have fun on Spring Break is if you leave Indiana." Finding fun in a warmer climate was the only way to get a good break from the stresses of school.

All students agreed break went by too fast. Junior Meighan Tucker was getting burdened with the school work that teachers kept on assigning, and break came to save her just in time. "I was getting tired of all the homework and during break I was able to take a couple little trips and party with my friends. It was the rest and relaxation away from school I had been waiting for since September.

Spring Break was the only thing that could save students. After a week of vacation, students and teachers both felt refreshed and rejuvenated. It left a summer vacation to look forward to in order to help students get through the rest of the year.

Seniors Kari Duncan and Emily Szeplakay start off their spring break by taking a different view of Panama City.

Welcome To The Jungle of Seniors

Kritsin Rosinski and Jainie Ehrenzeller give a smile to salute Senior Banquet.

Tim Frohnapple and Harmony Takacs get a little closer at Senior Banquet.

Kristen Kirschner, Sarah Lamoureux, and Jennifer Oberman make sure they get a picture in front of the homemade waterfall.

Andy Pollen enjoys himself on the dance floor while surrounded by the ladies.

Paul Winkley helps prepare the hall for a night of fun at Senior Banquet.

There were lions and tigers and bears and seniors? Oh my? LC seniors were welcomed to the jungle April 14 for the annual senior banquet. The seniors were greeted at Villa Cesare with an array of safari-type decorations and Ms. Pam Miller at the door to perform a dress code check.

The Senior Class conducted a survey that finalized the theme for the dance. Students decided to have a safari theme, and most willingly participated. Most girls opted for the leopard print skirts and dresses while most guys took a different approach. Ryan Spencer showed up wearing pink bunny ears, and Tim Frohnapple made his outfit by pinning artificial greenery and plastic snakes to his shirt.

The banquet included a home-style meal, pictures, awards, and dancing with no underclassmen allowed. Emily Yannuzzi enjoyed spending time at the banquet. "Senior Banquet was a lot of fun. It was a great way to spend time with just my senior friends," she said.

The awards ceremony presented those chosen students with the traditional recognition. Seniors voted for a guy and a girl for each category such as "Best Dressed" and "Best Personality." Meredith Gozo, who won the award for "Most Likely to Become a Musician," felt honored that she was chosen. "It was nice to be recognized by my peers," she said.

The banquet gave seniors a chance to mingle with other senior friends with whom they might have lost contact. "Senior Banquet was a time I will never forget," said Krissy Bales. "I was able to spend a wonderful night with all of my friends new and old, and dance the night away."

Senior banquet was an event that most seniors looked forward to and an event that most will look to for old memories. Mike Marcelak said, "It was fun. It will be a good memory to look back on."

Dale Ramsy and friends take a little rest before the party begins at Senior Banquet.

Ally Green and Nicole Frank admire the decorations as they take a break from dancing.

Haniyyah Salyed and friends get a little groovy on the dance floor.

Brandyn Bowman, Jenny Orich, and Jainie Ehrenzeller help decorate the hall for Senior Banquet.

Jamie Boule and Gina Farris work it on the dance floor.

Jill Zarnecki, Kim Blastick, Mary Graham, and Adrienne Bond show their jungle spirit in front of the fountain.

Katie Lyons checks in with Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Maloney before entering Senior Banquet.

Megan Pluskis, Melissa Triveline, Angie Monzin, and Jamie Oslawski raise their paws in honor of jungle night at Senior Banquet.

1. Laura Yakubec, Jen Ballweg, Danielle Kotarski, Mary George, Jennie Clark, Taylor Harris, Jackie Ruzich, Sonja Lopez, Sarah Arcella, and Kim Bohling prepare for a night of jungle fun.

2. Molly McShane and friends gather together at the dinner table for one last group picture at Senior Banquet.

3. Candice Drummond, Breanne Shumaker, Rada Samardzija, Stephanie Pietrzak, Katie Ruvoli, April Brumm, Patty Simko, and Miranda Cimino wait patiently for dinner to be served.

4. Good friends stick together. That is what Cara Freeland and friends showed when they gathered together to capture the moment at Senior Banquet.

5. Patty Popa and friends don't waste any time at Senior Banquet. Once the music starts, they don't stop.

Mr. South and students help prepare for a night in the jungle at Senior Banquet.

The crowd gathers around as Pedro Anaya breaks a move on the dance floor.

Anne Wartman was caught dancing down the cat walk.

Ben Dorschel and friends pose with excitement to create one last memory at Senior Banquet.

6. Tina Hasselbring, Jennie White, Rhiannon Borgia, Melody Ashby, and Robin Govert went all out for Senior Banquet.

"Stampede! Stampede!" were most likely the first words of any newcomer to LC which held 2,588 students. There was bound to be an endless variety of people and the activities to share.

From pool colors to horrendous lunch lines, students considered what set LC apart from neighboring high schools. "I love all the events around Homecoming. Everyone is always in a good mood and has fun. I'm sure our Homecoming dance is the only one whose walls sweat," said junior Jenny Carlson. LC offered traveling opportunities to those interested. Senior Amy Fisher said, "The trip to Europe with the school was unbelievable. I saw so much that I probably never would have experienced otherwise."

Junior Tommy Johnson shared his views on the lunches. "My favorite part about LC is their lunches. They're hot, good, and always served with a smile."

Kate Barzan, junior, said, "I think the pool colors are so funny. Everyone feels like they're stuck in the seventies when they see the pool room."

The population of LC was overwhelming and perhaps even scary. Sophomore student driver Scott Peters explained his everyday battle in the parking lot: "You have to be very careful getting in and out of the parking lot. So many people come close to getting in an accident."

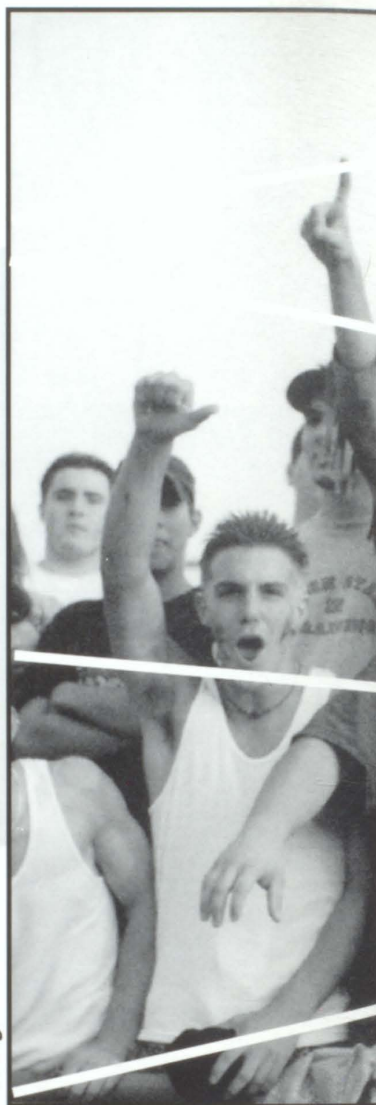

Hallways can also be very cramped. Junior Carly Craven commented, "Anyone who goes to LC gets the true feeling of what it's like to be a human sardine."

Senior Kelly Murphy gave her opinion on the six various lunch lines. "The lunch lines are longer than the Disney lines. I can barely finish my lunch."

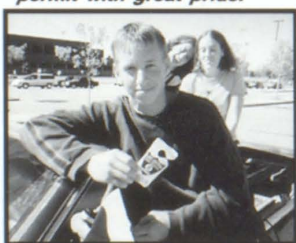

Staff and faculty help to make a warm and friendly learning environment. Sophomore track and cross-country runner Ashley Kowaleski said, "The coaches care about your ability but put emphasis on academics as well."

Junior Erin Foshier summed up her thoughts of LC teachers, "Teachers at LC are fair. They don't try to act superior. I think that's the biggest plus that makes us individual." Assembled, LC students and their quirks created a cool uniqueness.

Superfans senior Pat Craville, junior Jake Felton, and friends cheer on the Indians against Portage. LC pulled through with a score of 28-21.

While many LC students dream of the luxury of driving to school, senior Lenny Pearce holds his parking permit with great pride.

Senior Jennie White was one of many who was caught in the blue and white tornado.

Freshman Centralette Jody Studinarz performs during half-time.

Seniors Eva Wojnarowicz and Bill O' Neill manage to go out in style to Homecoming.

Mr. Holden keeps the learning process in high gear.

Senior Andy Jakobowicz displays his hunger to win the pie-eating contest at the pep rally.

Senior Vanessa Momcilovic extends her reach as the student council spends long hours decorating the cafe after the Homecoming football game.

Interact members help to spread awareness of the Food Drive.

After hours of swim practice, sophomore Joe Boney catches up on his z's during class.

Senior Jennie Clark experiments with different foods at Tandoor in Schererville.

Senior Melody Ashby sports her fashionably sensitive '80s apparel during spirit week.

Senior Kari Lukasik says you know your at LC when... "When you have to wear jeans and a sweatshirt when it's 80 degrees out."

2.

Senior cross-country runners Karrie Vana and Anne Kovacs light the way to victory at the Homecoming game. The lighting of the Indian letters has been a tradition of LC's.

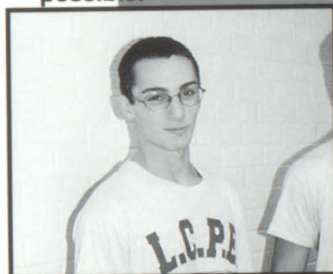

3.

Junior Joel Krauklis works on the page layout for the Scout newspaper in print shop class. Students work behind the scenes to make the paper possible.

5.

Junior Ben Simes struts his throwing skills in a game of ultimate frisbee with the swim team. Swimmers have different activities to help them reach their goals.

6.

Seniors Ryan Spencer and Sean Pennington take a bite out of nature on their field trip to the Dunes. The Environmental Biology classes take annual trips to the Dunes to learn about nature.

Setting the Trend

Seniors Leah Olenik and Becky Dominik hold up their dresses at the Winter Formal. Strapless dresses were a popular style at all of the dances.

Senior Sarah Arcella and her friends enjoy their meal at T.G.I. Friday's in Hobart after spring homecoming. T.G.I. Friday's is a popular hangout.

Junior Katie Adank courageously gives blood at the annual blood drive. This year had the highest student response rate with 152 students volunteering.

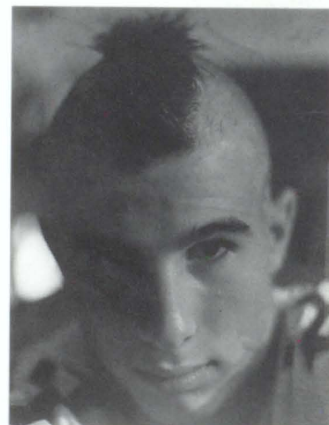

Junior Tommy Johnson, senior Dai Chong, and senior Ryan Hoyda paint their chests with "LC" to show off their school pride during the football season.

Hornet Bitty Ball player, senior Mike Marcelak, takes a shot at the basket while playing the Bulls. Playing Bitty ball was another way that students can get involved in club sports.

Ouch! Seniors Stephanie Pineda and Katie Ruvoli forget about piercing their ears...they went all out and pierced their tongues. Body piercing of the eyebrow and nose were also not uncommon for students.

Sophomore Matt Eggebrecht takes part in one of the biggest football team trends: the mohawk. Our football team started this trend to show off their school spirit.

Juniors Shawn Clark and Mark Sczcepanski decorate their ears with diamond studs. A trend for the guys was to get both ears pierced.

Sophomore Nate Lawson jams on his guitar at the talent show. It has become a growing trend to play in a band.

Junior Melanie Parks and friends jump into the latest craze of shopping at thrift stores. It is a cheap way to buy some really cute and classic outfits.

Seniors Lauren Singer and Raquel Amezcua love to show off their tattoos. It is not uncommon for teenagers to get a tattoo as soon as they turn 18.

Junior Tim Jones and friends are in style with their highlights. It is very popular for both guys and girls to highlight their hair.

Senior Nate Levin plays with his Pokemon cards. Like Tickle Me Elmo and Beanie Babies, Pokemon was the hottest toy on the market at Christmas time.

Because the millennium continued to invade our choices, trends became more important. Fashion designers missed no opportunity to take advantage of the times, but little did they know they were actually competing with teenagers, some of whom needed no help when it came to designing their wardrobes or making their own fashion statements.

Attending a school whose numbers verged on 3,000 offered a wealth of trends for observation. Nearly everyone wore jeans, though some were tapered, some were flared, some were baggy, and some were worn so low as to require constant support. Teachers often preferred jeans, too, especially on dress-down Fridays and messy lab days, great days to sport an LC sweatshirt.

Hair dominated style choices, and by the spring, spiked hair, sometimes several inches high, bounced down the hallways. Girls chose haircuts that allowed fast styling, often patterned after young female entertainers. At least one head of bright pink hair drifted through the halls. Tattoos and body piercings were common, and although female faces appeared natural, most knew that those natural looks required just as much makeup.

Favorite stores? Gadzooks, Abercrombie and Fitch, Aeropostale, American Eagle, Miller's Outpost, Pacific Sunwear, Kohl's, Old Navy. Teens spent part of their money on personal scents, with Hugo, Tommy, Curve, and Aqua Di being favored for the guys while girls wore Shades, Dream, Tommy Girl, Curve, or anything from Bath and Body Works.

Nearly everything required daily offered a trend possibility to help teens show their style preferences. Books were carried in JanSport bags; notes were written with gelly roll pens; eyes changed colors; and nail designs became complex. Assembled, these personal trends made up the individual.

Senior Simo Karajovic and classmates study their math in Mr. Starawicz's class. The whole group is wearing striped shirts.

Senior Laura Yakubec looks in the mirror admiring her new fur-lined coat. Animal prints turned into a popular trend this school year.

Senior Kristin Haffner thinks about what tattoo to get next.

Senior Kari Lukasik picks up daily attendance wearing her tech vest. Tech vests were a comfortable, trendy look for many people this year.

Q: What was the best trendiest concert you have ever been to?
A: Sophomore Michelle Peterson said, "The most trendy concert was the Spice Girls."

Senior Jennifer Orich puts blue glitter on her eyes during spirit week. Many students wore glitter and paint on their faces to show their school spirit.

Q: What do you think the next hairstyle will be?
A: Junior Andrew Ranich said, "A mullet, short hair on top, and long hair against the back of neck."

Seniors Brianna Hoogewerf and Rhiannon Borgia prove that they have a lot of school spirit by dressing like Indians and painting their faces with blue and white.

Sophomore Misty Hudek shows off her Backstreet Boys concert ticket for the Allstate Arena on October 7. Listening to "boy band" music became very popular.

Senior Erin Whelan wonders what she would do without her bandana. This trend is no longer limited to the guys. Girls are beginning to wear them as a fashion accessory.

Once Upon a Time Prom 2000

Seniors Jason Bireley, Dale Ramsy, and Nick Wychocki gather with friends at Prom to have one more night of fun before graduation.

Seniors Jen Ballweg and Maggie Gulyas try to make the best of their time while the music was stopped.

Junior Jamie Dodaro, Ashley Geideman, and Lori Hecimovich sport their dates' jackets while waiting for their dinner reservations.

Seniors Katie Ruvoli, Erika Kelly, Breanne Shumaker, and Candice Drummond enjoy their last dance together at Lake Central.

Seniors Emily Szeplakay, Nicole Teeter, Kari Duncan, and Tabatha Bass show off their garters before prom.

Seniors Rob Cuthbert and Ben Burkel do the dance to the "Bad Touch" by the Bloodhound Gang.

Sophomore Nick Summa, and juniors Dustin Ervin, and A.J. Carper are stylin' while they wait to go to prom.

Once upon a time nearly one thousand students dressed in their finest formal wear graced through the doors of the Lansing Serbian Social Center on the rainy evening of May 12. Prom was titled "Once Upon a Time." White linen accented with lavender, miniature glass slippers, and scrolls were set up on each table to make us believe we were living in a fairy tale. The evening was organized by Ms. Lisa De St. Jean, Ms. Joan Loden, and the Junior Class Cabinet.

However, not everything happened perfectly when the DJ from Sensational Sounds lost all power to his switchboard. This caused the dance to have no music for almost one hour. Then, some of the students attempted karaoke, and senior Derek Stone brought in his own stereo from his car. Finally, everything was back on track when the DJ's back up system arrived. "Having no music for a while kind of put a damper on the rest of the evening," said junior Marissa Hepburn.

The anticipated portion of the night came when the Junior Class officers announced the king and queen of the evening. Jeremy Creasbaum and Tabatha Bass were crowned king and queen, and Ryan Sickles and Bri Schaap were voted prince and princess.

The main point of the evening allowed the seniors to have one more memorable night together before they would all go their separate ways. The dance came to an end when Vitamin C's "Graduation Song" played. "That song makes me cry every time I hear it because I can't believe it's already time for graduation," said senior Nicole Teeter.

Even though the dance was now over, the whole weekend beakoned ahead of us to have the time of our lives. And in the end we all lived happily ever after.

3. Eddie Higareda, Melissa Frye, and Corinn Crawford enjoy their evening of dancing and fun.

4. Juniors Angelica Lozano, Emily Crawford, Jen Bzdil, Delaila Ortiz and dates escaped the bad weather for a gorgeous evening.

5. Senior Nate Richie, juniors Marissa Hepburn, Katie Michalec, and senior Tony Petreski can barely spare a moment from the dance floor.

6. The Quiver staff gathers in the foyer to celebrate a great year of working hard and meeting deadlines.

The Party Never Stopped

Glitz, glamour, and glitter. Prom's "Once Upon a Time" didn't stop at the Serbian Social Center. As students darted to their limos after the dance, a blur of gowns and tuxedos flooded the parking lot. The night of dancing had most students working up an appetite and heading to Chicago for dinner. The Italian Village and Cheesecake Factory held their doors open extra late to accommodate hungry, yet dazzling, LC students. Senior Amy Tworowski said, "Our group ate at Rosebud's after prom. The night wouldn't be the same without the traditional dinner after the dance." After dinner, most people headed back to friends' houses or hotels to catch a few extra winks before they headed on their road trips to places around Indiana.

"All right! Time to get up and hit the road!" Turkey Run. Lake Monroe. Chicago. No one let the fun stop as the prom festivities stretched into the weekend. After prom night students woke up early to begin a weekend filled with fun and friends at the popular spots, such as Great America. A lot of students decided instead to head to their cabins on Lake Michigan, the beach, or other scenic places in Indiana. "The overall weekend was a lot of fun. It was one of the best weekends I had in high school so far," said junior A.J. Carper.

Students hiked, swam, and spent quality time with their friends, capturing it all on film. Senior Nicole Teeter said, "This was the best dance I have been to throughout high school. Prom was our last high school dance, and I am glad I spent it with my boyfriend (junior Steve Bartnik). It was a very special night." With only three more weeks left of school, prom weekend was the perfect way to end the school year with memories that will last a lifetime.

Seniors Kim Blastik, Mary Graham, and Derek Moore decided to play with the statues in front of Navy Pier.

Senior Jainie Ehrenzeller rides the swings at Great America

Mud bath anyone? Seniors Danielle Danko and Kevin Dalton play in the creek at Turkey Run while Cindy Drescher takes a little rest break.

King of the Jungle, senior Dat Nguyen, hangs around in the forest at a friend's cabin in Michigan.

Juniors Moira Mis and Kim Hayes enjoy their paddle boat ride while seniors Billy James and Nate Levin take them around the lake at Potato Creek in LaPorte.

Seniors Tina Hasselbring, Danny Kulpers, Elaine Morgan, and Harmony Takacs relax on a nearby fallen tree after hiking around Kulper's cabin in Michigan.

Always there to lend a helping hand, Senior Mike Berger pulls Kyle Stephens up a hiking trail at Turkey Run.

1. Seniors Marina Popovich, Justin Camer, Brian Faga, Kim Davies, Kelly Kurzawinski, and Junior Tim Cunningham enjoy the day after prom at the Rainforest Cafe.

3. Seniors Heather Lager and Tabatha Bass wrestle around after prom. Notice their hair is still perfectly in place.

4. Seniors Taylor Harris, Nick Kuc, Kristine Corban, Brandyn Bowman, and Jenny Ballwieg take a moment out of their day to hang out with a new friend at Navy Pier.

5. Before eating at the Italian Village in Chicago, Seniors Pete Wartak, Ben Clark, Allen Sulski, Brian Copak, and Jeff Koehler and dates Laura Bodie, Lauren Singer, Kristina Varro, Heather Mikolajczak, Gina Ulanowski, and Katie Hyslop ran across the street to remember prom night in front of the fountains.

March

4. It wasn't hot outside, but Dollars for Scholars was determined to make the cafeteria steam at the first ever Spring Homecoming. Some thought, "Hot! Hot! Hot!" exceeded the temperature level and a new dress code was implemented for the following dances. Pictured—seniors Kyle Stephens and Melissa Triveline

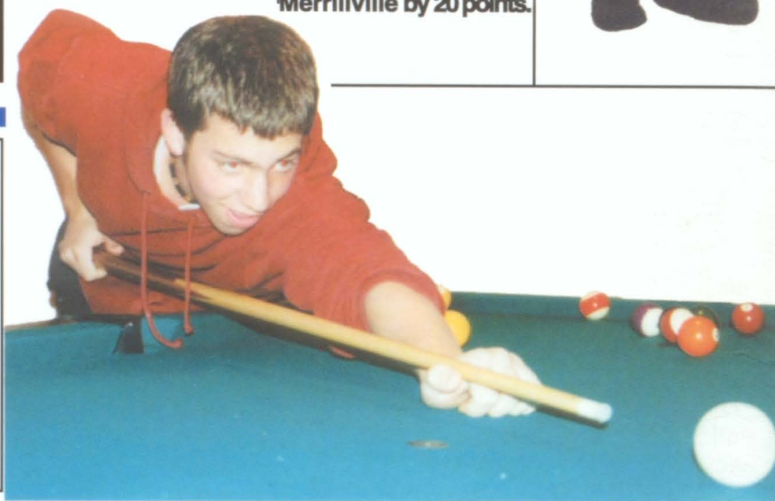

4. Counterpoints and Trebleaires received superior ratings at the ISSMA Jazz contest held at LaPorte High School. The choirs were judged not only on their singing but also on their dancing and choreography.

7. Varsity boys basketball won the sectional game against Hobart, then advanced to the sectional championship game where they lost to Merrillville by 20 points.

20. The first day of spring brought hope to many. "I look forward to spring because the weather gets warmer and that means school is coming to an end," said senior Brent Abercrombie.

27-31. Spring Break gave students an opportunity to travel to tropical destinations, or just chill out in the tri-town area. Junior Matt Fezekas said, "I went to Dyer, where there are unlimited possibilities." Pictured—sophomore Drew Crague

12. After seven semesters of hard work, the top 30 ranked seniors were invited to attend the Urban League Banquet at the Radisson. Seniors Amanda Kras, Candice Sterling, and Alicia Smith were awarded with laptop computers for earning straight A's throughout high school.

14. Seniors were welcomed to the jungle by the Senior Class Cabinet to celebrate high school's nearing end at Villa Cesare. The announcement of the Senior Award winners preceeded the dance. Senior Spencer Sunde said, "The highlight of my night had to be when I got Ms. Talaber out on the dance floor. Pictured—seniors J.J. Sowa and Rhiannon Borgia

18. The four LC choirs received first place at the Organizational Contest. Mr. Paul Lowe said, "We've done very well at contests this year. We always strive to be a first-class department; the contest results show that we are reaching our goal."

13-15. After formal dresses and tuxedos, Prom weekend toned down with casual clothing and fun activities. Senior Rada Samardzija's prom group went to Lake Monroe near Bloomington. "We stayed in a cabin with a heater, a refrigerator, and a microwave, but there was no bathroom," said Samardzija. "This is as close as I get to roughing it." Other popular weekend sites were Turkey Run, Great America, and Chicago.

15. With a record of 10-2, the girls tennis team defeated Hobart 5-0. Junior Melanie Parks was in split sets, and although she was down 0-5 in the third match, she came back and won. Parks attributes some of the team's success to its close friendships, "We are all really close, we have a lot of fun and that helps us lift each other up."

16. For the ninth consecutive year the girls track team took home the sectional title. "We weren't expected to win. I was insulted, I think everyone else on the team was too," said senior Jen Wangerin. "The day before sectionals we watched a little of Glory, and just like the man who offered to carry the flag, freshman Ann Klingeberger was able to step up and fill in for an injured runner. She helped the team win the 4x400m relay, and the sectional title," said Wangerin, "It was exciting." Pictured—senior Rhiannon Skaggs

9. The Varsity Centralettes took second place in pom and jazz performance at nationals in San Diego, California. The JV squad also took third in pom and second in team dance. Pictured— senior Jainie Ehrenzeller and junior Brigitte LaPosa

11. LC Theatre Guild opened the musical Grease. "It was my last show working with a lot a seniors who have taught me a lot over the years," said junior Pete Seat. "We had the biggest crowds that we have had in 10 years... it was a nice way to go out." Pictured— senior Dave Pittman, junior Pete Seat, sophomore Bruce Fane, and junior Andy Ranich

April

1. April Fools Day brought the prankster out of sophomore Jil Ashcraft. "I covered a sponge with icing and gave it to my dad's girlfriend," said Ashcraft.

Senior Andy Pollen was fooled by his dad, who told him that his brother-in-law was going to be on "Who Wants to be a Millionaire?" Pollen told all of his friends, then waited to see his brother-in-law on TV before realizing he had been fooled!

7. All winning division one ratings, Concert Band, Symphonic Band, and Wind Ensemble proved themselves superior at the ISSMA district competition. Although consistently receiving superior ratings each year, the bands have seen steady improvement in their scores. Pictured— junior Matt Dierks

11. Senior Melissa Genova and 17 other seniors were given the chance to thank their favorite teachers at the Teacher Appreciation Banquet. "Ms. Hewlett is the teacher I became closest with," said Genova, "It was a great way to pay her homage."

22. Led by Ms. Ignas, the Environmental Biology classes celebrated Earth Day by making posters to advertise Earth Day in the hallways and by picking up trash around the school.

May

2. "The whole season we pulled together as a team," said senior Mike Berger of the boys track team. "At Calumet, the 4x400m relay was empty, so the 4x800m relay team of sophomore Drew Crague, senior Andy Jakubowicz, junior Steve Schilling, and myself stepped in and beat Bishop Noll," said Berger. "Because of our win, we won the meet by one point." Pictured— junior Zac Peto

12. "Once Upon a Time," the Junior-Senior Prom, was not all storybook material. Freshman Rachel Peterson said, "It was disappointing when there was no music for an hour, but it got better when the music came back on." Pictured— senior Kari Bryk and Jason Rice

17. Exceeding expectations, the boys golf team beat Chesterton and Michigan City. Senior Ben Burkel said, "The varsity players met the challenge to make LC a competitive team." Juniors Jason Buffone and Brian Evanson, according to Burkel, "stabilized the team." The seniors who, as Burkel said, "were not blessed with outstanding talent," (Burkel, Rob Cuthbert, and Nate Levin) contributed immensely.

19. In one of the four small plays constituting the freshman play, "That was an Old Lady that was a Private Eye," freshman Amy Kiral landed the role of Phil Harlow. "I've never acted in a play," said Kiral, who felt more confident about starting her acting career in a freshman play because, "There was less competition and I had more confidence."

June

1. Four years of high school formally ended as each senior walked across the stage at the Radisson to accept his or her diploma. "Bye," said senior Ryan Spencer, "I'm out of here."

LC bands, Centralettes, choir, theatre, and visual art students all came together for an annual fine arts festival and spring concert on Tuesday, April 18, at the Star Plaza Theatre. The show contained the symphonic band performing "Copper Mountain Legend," "Angelic Festival," and "Exaltation." The concert band performed "Tales of the Bay" (III. Baltimore Harbor 1814 and II. Yorktown 1781), "Mazama," and "Where the Black Hawk Soars." The Wind Ensemble performed "Thunder and Lightning," "Symphonic Dance #3 'Fiesta,'" and "Nilesdance."

Concert Choir came out singing "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind," "Exultate Justi in Domino," "Laudate Dominum" preformed by a former LC grad, Hilary Webb, "Zigeunerleben," and "Kommt ein schlanker Bursch gegangen" also performed by Hilary Webb. The counterpoints performed the memorable tunes of "Puttin' on the Ritz," "Stormy Weather" and "Steppin' Out With My Baby."

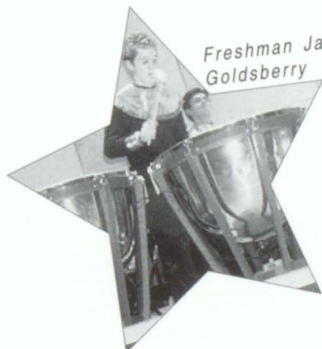

Theatre had made an intro of episodes to Grease. The cast sang "Summer Nights," "Freddy My Love," "All Choked Up," and "We Go Together." They closed their show off singing the memorable theme song; "We Go Together." Centralettes Katie Solina, Rachel Barenie, and Brigitte LaPosa each danced solo.

Percussion came out performing "Beirut" and finalized the whole show off to the theme song, "Mystery Egypt" from the movie, The Mummy.

To study or not to study, that is the question. Student resource time, otherwise known as SRT, can be fun and exhilarating or boring and useless. The administration wanted SRT to be used primarily for tutoring, extra help, and club time. Yet most students did not have any homework to do during that long hour and a half. Some played computer games, checked email, hung out in the halls, watched movies, or sat back, relax, and chatted with friends. SRT was used wisely if students brought their homework to class, and work diligently. However, this rarely happened. Some benefited from SRT by using the libraries and finishing up papers or projects.

Junior Scott Szamatowicz said, "SRT gives me the time I need to study, so I can really have fun on the weekends." SRT also enabled students to go to club period where students can meet with their fellow members and club sponsor to organize their events. Students who needed to make up tests or homework were able to obtain SRT passes and go see their designated teacher.

"When I missed a few days for my spring break, I had to use my SRT time to make up the missed classes. That really helped me," said junior Sarah Vater.

"I stay up all night doing my homework. When I get to school I am so tired that I use my SRT time to catch up on my sleep," said senior Robin Cooper.

SRT could be used for whatever a student needed it for—sleeping, doing homework, or just relaxing. SRT will be around for many years at LC and will continue benefiting students in every and any possible way.

Student Resource Time or Student Relax Time?

X-TREME SPORTS

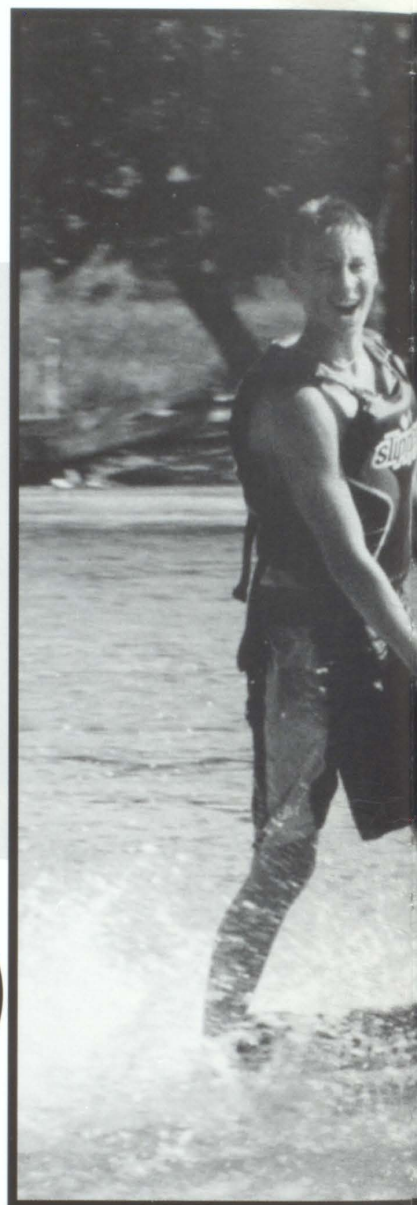

Even with the wide variety of athletics LC offered, none even came close to these LC students going to the extreme. Some students just didn't find typical sports such as basketball, baseball, and soccer to be fast enough, high enough, or even dangerous enough to satisfy their needs. In teenagers' spare time, they defied gravity and pushed themselves to the edge to get that ultimate rush of adrenaline. "Every person has their limits, I just haven't found mine yet," said senior Brett Morgan.

One of the most popular types of extreme sports occurred during summer on the water. With the fast speeds and water splashing in their faces, jet skiing proved the easiest way to cool off on a hot summer day. "While I'm wakeboarding and I pull off phat tricks, I feel stoked the rest of the day," commented senior Jason Bireley. Wakeboarding, kneeboarding, and water-skiing, though more difficult, offered that certain rush every extreme athlete sought.

Extreme sports also took place off the water. Snowmobling guaranteed intense speeds reaching over 100mph! For those not afraid of heights and having the determination not to quit, indoor rock climbing became a favorite. A strong body and even stronger mind were demanded to make it to the top.

Senior Jason Bireley hits the wake perfectly to get some air.

To WiN, LC athletes knew they had to give it their all. This meant being dedicated to continually CoMPetE to the best of their ability. Teammates bonded AS seasons progressed, with EaCh traditional pasta party, long road trip, or early morning practice, we grew closer. Every GAmE, meet, or match was an opportunity to showcase our desire to win. Our love of sport WaS matched only by our determination to achieve our highest goals. Pride was YoUR reason for continually striving to be your best. Until the LaSt buzzer sounded or final score was tallied, we knew we still had time to prove that We are LC!

1. Keeping his focus, senior Rob Shackelton tosses the ball back to the pitcher during practice. Shackelton was a four year member of the baseball team and always kept spirits high.

2. Sophomore Matt Frost cuts through the water at the Sectional meet. His outstanding finish helped the Indians win their 14th title. Frost will continue to be an asset to the team in his remaining years at LC.

3. Striving to the finish, senior Angie Monzin is determined to finish the race strong. Monzin was a 4- year letterwinner in cross country and continually showed the importance of pride, determination, and teamwork.

1. The Lady Indians' record was a disappointing 4-12-1. Wins came over Highland, Portage, Griffith, and Merrillville, which ended in a 7-1 slaughter of the Pirates. Senior Megan Pluskis said, "I wish our season had gone differently, especially since it was my last year. But despite our record, I still enjoyed my last year as a Lady Indian. I will always remember 'Ma it's Genie in a Bottle', the Britney Spears dances, '-E', our 'Twilight Zone' game against Carmel (Ice 'Em!!), and all the stupid inside jokes that we had. I'm going to miss all you guys!!" ▲

Senior Andrea Boskovich winds up to take a goal kick. Boskovich was a versatile player, capable of playing both offense and defensive positions.

Playing airtight defense, sophomore Lauren "Petra" Petralia shuts down her Merrillville opponent. Petralia was named defensive MVP.

2. Senior Mary Graham received the Mental Attitude award. Her positive outlook and will to never give up carried not just through this season but all four of her seasons. MVP was awarded to both seniors Adrienne Bond and Megan Pluskis. Receiving defensive MVP was sophomore Lauren Petralia. ▲

Senior goalkeeper Melanie Sherwinski falls to her knees in order to make the save.

Advancing up-field, senior Melissa Manick Triveline dribbles past her defender.

3. Injuries plagued the Lady Indians for much of their season. Sophomore Julie Herbst, whose offensive power was greatly missed, played only one game the whole season. She tore her ACL in the season's second game against Hobart. Senior Andrea Boskovich also found herself watching from the sidelines. A broken collarbone forced her to sit the bench for half the season. ▲

4. Long road trips this season included a trip to Indy to play a double-header against Center Grove and North Central. The North Central Panthers, who were eventually crowned state champions, squeaked by with a 1-0 victory over the Lady Indians, with their lone goal coming by way of a penalty kick. ▲

5. After losing to Munster 4-0 during the regular season, the Lady Indians were once again faced with the Mustangs in the sectional opener. Despite dominating play the entire game, the Lady Indians were handed their first sectional loss ever. Munster's only goal came off a free kick, which was awarded due to a questionable foul being called. "Losing this game in a sense summarized how our entire season went. Every game we lost we knew we should have won, but somehow we didn't. Our record is not a true reflection of the talent and potential our players possessed," said sophomore Leigh Szara. ▲

6. Former JV coach Mr. Mark Voorhees replaced MS. Laura Elliott as the new varsity head coach. Players welcomed him as a coach, despite the season not going as positively as expected. ▲

Escaping her opponent's defensive pressure, sophomore Melissa Manick quickly releases the ball to create an offensive run for the Indians.

Seniors Megan Pluskis and Adrienne Bond do their traditional pre-game warm-up.

Carrying the ball up field, senior Adrienne "Glucosa" Bond hopes to create an offensive play.

Senior Patty Popa keeps the ball in her possession while advancing it towards the goal.

A constant force on defense, sophomore Ashley Pluskis protects the Indians by clearing the ball out of danger.

Seniors await the start of their last regular-season home game.

Sophomore defender Leigh "Cobber" Szara fights to keep her Munster opponent from gaining control of the ball.

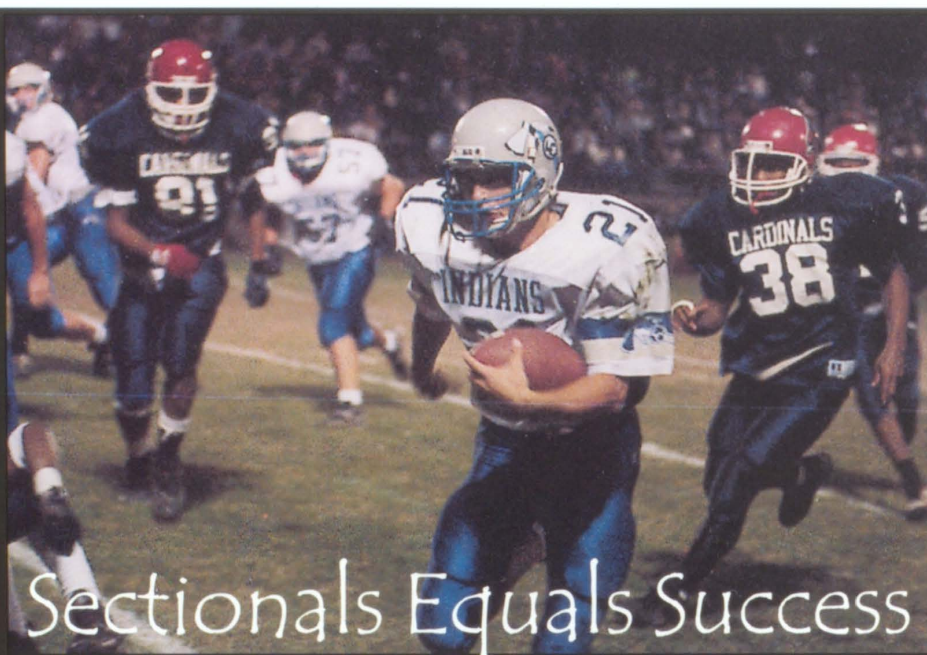

After beating her opponent to the ball, senior Megan Pluskis looks to send it downfield.

Senior Heather Luttell races to beat her South Bend Clay opponent to a 50/50 ball.

Sophomore defender Shannon Holly makes an offensive run for the Indians.

Sectionals Equals Success

1. Young, hungry and determined expressed how the varsity football team battled through a tough schedule. Long, hard practices in the summer and staying after school until 6 p.m. made a difference in the season's outcome. "Compared to the last few years, we are a young team. When we play together, we are unstoppable," said junior linebacker Tim Jones. ▲

2. The second game was played at the Burial Grounds. It would be a tough game, as LC faced a Portage team who was ranked twenty-third in the nation. It was Indian vs. Indian, with both teams playing to earn the title of the better Indian. At the end LC came out on top and pulled off a huge upset by winning 26-21. ▲

3. The next four games would be the key to the rest of the varsity's season. They lost a very well fought game against Munster 28-23 but bounced back to defeat Griffith 28-21. They won the next two games, by defeating Bishop Noll 42-10 and East Chicago Central 28-7, margins of 21 points or more in each game. ▲

4. At the Homecoming game, LC faced the undefeated Decatur Central. The varsity team came out fired up by all the supportive fans, decoration and excitement the weekend would bring. LC played hard all game but fell short by the score of 19-34. ▲

5. As the midseason progressed, the games did not get any easier. LC ran back the kickoff for a touchdown, and they were looking for a huge upset as Penn only had one loss of the year. The game was well played, but in the end Penn pulled away and won 24-14. "After this tough-fought game, it shows that we can play with any team in the state," said senior linebacker Nick Fanelli. ▲

6. After winning sectionals for the first time since 1993, LC prepared to face the dreaded Penn again. But this time the stakes were higher...the winners would earn a trip to semi-state. Sixty hard minutes of intense play tied the game at 20-20 to force overtime. LC had the ball first and made a field goal to lead 23-20. Penn had the ball on the LC 1-yard line with fourth down coming up. If Penn made the play the game was theirs. A snap of the ball and a touchdown was all that was left of the game. The final score was 26-23. "It was a game that we should have won, but it was sad and disappointing because we didn't deserve to lose," said senior halfback Danny Duncan. ▲

7. The young varsity team played 13 fun but hard weeks of football. LC worked hard day in and day out and it paid off. "We came together as a team, and everyone played with his heart. That's why we got so far," said offensive senior lineman Jake Kapitan. With the sectional title in their hands and a well played season, the team could hold their heads high and cherish the memories. ▲

Fights to the Finish

1. At the state meet on Saturday, Oct. 6, located in Bloomington, Indiana, the lady indians made their mark. The ladies placed a strong twelfth place. Freshman Tiffany Redlarczyk ran an outstanding race and placed sixth out of 156 runners. Sophomore Jocelyn Simes placed eighty-fourth. Following Simes were Angie Monzin and Anne Kovacs placing 111 and 126 respectively. ▲

2. The team won top honors at sectionals, regionals, and fourth at semi-state. Running well for the Indians included Redlarczyk, placing third, Kovacs placing 37, Monzin coming in at 54, and Simes following the pack with a fifty-fifth-place finish. "This season was so much fun, all the girls contributed to its success," said Anne Kovacs ▲

3. The girls cross country team made strides this year with spikes, shin splints, and spirit ▲

4. Team leaders included freshman Tiffany Redlarczyk, who also won the team award of MVP. Leading seniors were Angie Monzin and Anne Kovacs. A major sophomore standout was Jocelyn Simes. Juniors Christine Human and Courtney Janda heavily contributed to the success of the team. Other top runners included junior Brittany Ausmus, freshman Lindsey Frost, and senior Megan Schloer. ▲

5. Tiffany Redlarczyk took her first victory with a first-place finish against Munster and Crown Point at Lemon Lake on Aug. 24 with a time of 16:10. On Sept. 4, at the T.F. South Rebel Invitational, Redlarczyk placed first in the freshman-sophomore race with a time of 12:42 for a 3200 meter race. Among other first-place finishes, Redlarczyk placed an outstanding third place at the Culver Invitational, with only one shoe and the time of 14:48. ▲

Surpassing All Expectations

1. Making it to semi-state in the state tournament is a great feat for any team, especially when it was not predicted. The LC boys soccer team surpassed all expectations and fought their way to the last eight teams in the state. Hard work and determination was needed because the team faced a head coaching change, a class of 11 seniors, and the challenge of regaining their sectional title. ▲

Getting in the way of the pass is critical as senior Sean Gallagher demonstrates.

2. Seniors are always expected to head the team with experience and leadership. With the team predominately seniors, inexperience was not an issue. Of 11 seniors total, seven started. Being familiar with each other's playing style was important, and LC had no problem with that because six of the seven starters had played together since they were 10 years old. "Being together for so many years definitely had an impact on how the team played and how we acted toward each other," said senior Nick Wychocki. ▲

The team gathers around Coach Rainwater as he fires them up.

3. Realizing it was lacking intensity after the hard-fought Valpo defeat, the team knew it needed to step up the play. After the 8-1 loss to Portage, Head Coach Alan McGrath resigned. Junior-Varsity Coach Jereme Rainwater took over the head coaching duties. Senior Andy Gryzch said, "The coaching change didn't seem to bother any of us. We accepted it and moved on." ▲

4. After a rough regular season with a record of 6-6-4, one of the team's worst since the late '80s, the Indians finished in the Elite Eight of the state tournament. This season's end tied the highest finish by a LC boys soccer team ever. The boys played an exceptional post season, out scoring their opponents by a total of 29-7 with the 4-1 loss to Penn in the second semi-state game. "The best game we played this year was the regional game against Highland because LC has never beat Highland in the post season. We won with five different players scoring," said senior Tony Petreski. ▲

Swinging to State

1. Girls golf had team championships at the Rensselaer Invitational, Pat Ford Invitational, and Sectionals. Senior Cara Freeland also had an individual championship at the Rensselaer Invite; she shot 6-over-par 78 that day. ▲

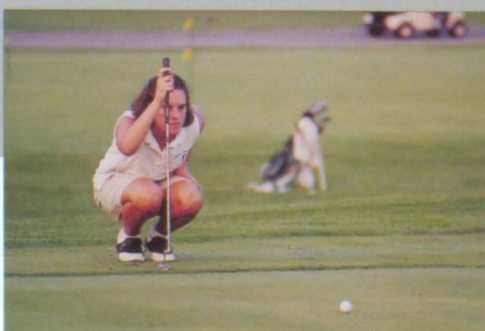

Parallel to the ground, sophomore Becky Nelson demonstrates excellent position.

Senior Kari Lukasik chips while visualizing her intended destination.

2. The girls had their best season ever, experiencing a total of 16 wins with only one loss to Penn. Numerous individual and team records were broken. They were the target all year as the region's best, proving the fact in the post season. ▲

When hitting out of the sand, one must never actually hit the ball. Senior Becca Vondrak uses the sand's force to carry her ball.

Junior Louise Haller checks the line of her putt. The green can prove deceiving and tough to master.

3. The girls shot a team score of 348 at Sectionals this year to capture the title. Seniors Nicole Nelson and Kari Lukasik came through in a clutch with 78 and 86 respectively. They both shot their best scores of the season. ▲

Giving her best effort, senior Cara Freeland struggles to hit a long and straight drive.

6. It was snowing in September this year after the girls golf team qualified for the State Finals for the fourth consecutive year. The girls had finally tracked down Coach Johnson's house, and they did not hesitate to take action, using a total of 72 rolls of toilet paper to completely surround his home. ▲

5. Senior Nicole Nelson received the Most Valuable Player award. "She possessed strong leadership and a consistent golf game," said Coach Johnson. Senior Cara Freeland captured the Sportsmanship Award for the second consecutive year. The Most Improved Player, junior Louise Haller, knocked an impressive six strokes off her average from the previous year. ▲

4. Everyone had high hopes of making it to the second day at the State Finals. The girls shot a score of 364 and finished tenth place, just short of the qualifying score. This yielded the best score the team had ever shot at State. It was a fantastic finish to an excellent season. ▲

Taking a practice swing, freshman Katie Farrer concentrates on her practiced technique.

With pride, sophomore Todd Hooper holds up the sectional trophy.

Junior Ben Simes dives into the water as he perfects his relay exchange.

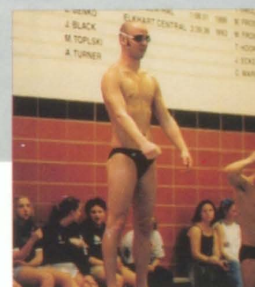

Sectional champion in the 50 freestyle, senior Dale Ramsy shows his skill in the water.

Using great strength, sophomore Drew Kiernan swims the 100-butterfly.

Freshman Dave Nagdeman swims the 100-yard breaststroke.

Junior Bret Smolinski prepares for the 50-yard freestyle at sectionals.

1. Chlorine, pain, mornings, and a bald head: those are four things that swimmers were accustomed to. How many other students were willing to wake up at 4:30 for four months, wear the best cologne, chlorine, and eventually shave their locks for the big meet? Not to mention, having to endure five hours of practice, which gave way to aching muscles, racing hearts, and goggle-indented eye sockets. To some this seemed insane, but to LC swimmers, it was a fact of life and one which continually paid off for the team.★

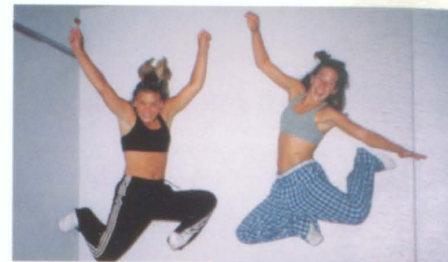

2. Once again the boys touted an impressive record, which included 12 wins and 2 losses for the varsity swimmers and 9 wins 2 losses for the JV squad. In addition, the boys picked up their fourteenth consecutive sectional title, sent a diver to regionals, and placed thirteenth at the state meet. Big wins were had at the LC Invite where the boys defeated their opponents with a whopping 516pts. scored. Also at Munster Relays, where they won their seventh championship title. Junior Ryan Nigh said, "I can't complain about the season. Everyone swam fast and we had a lot of fun." Ben Simes agreed, "Overall it went fine, it was a good year." Always staying optimistic Coach Tonkovich said, "Considering the loss of 13 seniors the kids did a remarkable job on pulling together and having another successful season."★

3. Sectionals was always the time in the season when all dreams and aspirations were either met or quenched. All three relays won and proceeded to the state competition. Almost every member of the sectional roster made it to finals and 11 swimmers made it to the state competition in February. The 200 Medley relay placed seventeenth at State with a time of 1:41.03. Sophomore Ben Simes competed in the 200 freestyle and 100 freestyle and finished twelfth and sixth. Senior Dale Ramsy competed in the 50 freestyle and the 100 freestyle and finished eighth and fifteenth. Other individuals who competed were sophomore Jamey Eckstein in the 500 freestyle and freshman Dave Nagdeman in the 100 breaststroke. Also, sophomore Matt Frost competed in the 100 breaststroke. The 200 free relay received a tenth place finish with a time of 1:28.15. With a time of 3:15.48, the 400 free relay finished ninth.★

1. With the wrestling team losing eight seniors, which was the majority of the 14-man lineup, a strong showing from some underclassman was needed. Several of the wrestlers stood up to the challenge. One was Ryan Spencer who saved his best season for last by advancing to the semi-state competition. That honor was shared with freshman Luke Triveline who finished his season at 24-14. In addition to those fine showings, Mike Escobedo and Tim Jones won the right to represent Lake Central at the state competition in Indianapolis. But that was not enough for Jones, who said, "I was not satisfied, in fact I'm angry, I wanted to win state this year. Next year we should win sectionals considering that we are getting two new stars. They make our future look brighter with the rest of the team, so I'm looking forward to next year." ★

2. When asked to look back on their final season the four seniors responded enthusiastically. Jim Ablin said, "The team had a very successful season, we had a lot of young talent to thank for that. They are going to help even more next year." Matt Demateo added, "We had a lot of fun with the team, it was a great four years with Coach Emerick, the other seniors, and the underclassmen." Scott Ourednik said, "This was one of my best seasons and most interesting. But next year the returning team should do even better." Ryan Spencer also added, "It's been a lot of fun, but what I'll miss most is the guys and all the fun during practices and after the meets." ★

3. When head coach Bob Emerick was asked his view of his twentieth season with the Lake Central wrestlers he said "The season was okay, but we would have liked to have won more matches. We were a young team, due to the loss of so many seniors. Then we lost four meets by less than 5 points, and lost to Hobart by 1 point, who is one of the strongest teams in our division. So all in all, for a rebuilding year, we stayed competitive." When asked about who was surprising this year, Coach Emerick said, "Tim Jones and Michael Escobedo weren't really surprising even though they did such an outstanding job, which is what I expect from them. The people that were surprising to me were Ryan Spencer and Luke Triveline." His thoughts for next year? Coach Emerick replied, "I expect us to be a stronger team because of the experience we gained this year. We're only losing four seniors. Although they'll be missed, they're leaving behind a legacy of hard work and dedication for the team to carry forward." ★

1. The team enjoyed an exciting marching band season, advancing to the state competition and competing at the RCA Dome for the Bands of America regionals and nationals. Their show, Palendrome, consisted of brightly colored flags and a talented weapon line that performed various skills on rifles and sabres. ★

2. The varsity and JV dance teams started competing in December with their new routines. The varsity pom routine offered a theme of women's empowerment, while their dance routine consisted of old Michael Jackson songs. ★

3. The teams competed at the state competition in February. Both teams received first place in both pom and dance. This was their sixth consecutive state title win. ★

4. At the state competition, a few individuals chose to compete in the solo competition. They had to prepare their own routines for this contest. Sophomore Rachel Rockstroh placed tenth, junior Brianne Clark placed seventh, sophomore Annie Pelka placed fifth, freshman Katie Solina placed fourth, and sophomore Rachel Barenie placed third. Junior Brigitte LaPosa was the state champion with her dance to the music of Fiona Apple. After her victory she commented, "I was so excited when the results were announced. The girl that I beat was the previous individual champion and extremely good competition. It was so relieving to finally be free of all the pressure." ★

Strutting Their Stuff

5. After state, the varsity and JV centralettes traveled to San Diego, CA, for the national competition. The varsity competed in pom, jazz, and team performance, which had a combination of different styles of dance. The varsity team took two second place finishes in pom and jazz. It was the JV's first year at nationals and they received a second place and a third place. Commanding officer Jainie Ehrenzeller said, "My favorite part of this year was being in San Diego and finishing off the year with wonderful performances." Although the life of a centralette may be challenging and very tiresome, it can prove to be fun and rewarding in the end. ★

Run to Victory

1. The boys cross country team had an exceptional season in which they proved that they could be a state competitor. Bouncing back from a disappointing finish last year, senior Mike Berger said, "We trained a lot harder than last year and it shows in our times." ▲

2. An unusually warm August and September due to La Nina caused practices filled with sweat and humidity. Traditional workouts of hills and the "fun" marker game brought on complaints. But the team persevered and soon became accustomed to the weather. ▲

3. Big wins were achieved at the Rensselaer Invitational where they won 3 out of the 4 races. Also at Culver, they raced among the top teams in the state and finished eighth out of 21 teams. In addition, close meets were run with Valpo, Portage, and Wheeler at Gavit. "We closed a lot of the gaps which were very evident at these meets last year," said senior Andy Jakubowicz. ▲

4. The boys won their ninth sectional of the decade and boasted the best runner in the Region, sophomore Nick Kruse. He finished thirty-first at the State Meet and won MVP for the season. Other exceptional runners this season were seniors Mike Berger, Andy Jakubowicz, and Zach Thompson, juniors Brandon Pukoszek and Steve Schilling and Sophomore Drew Crague. ▲

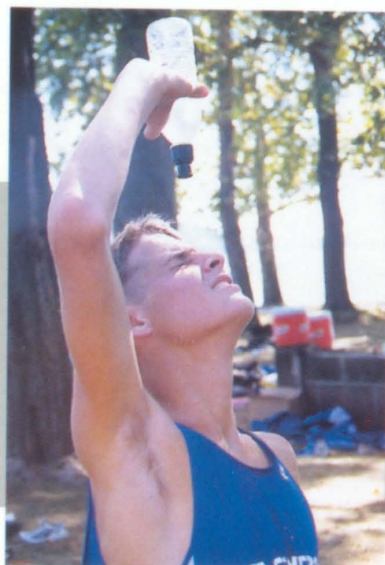

5. Kruse said, "I was nervous at the state meet, but I was happy that my teammates came to cheer me on." However his nerves were quickly eased when the meet started, as was obvious with his incredible finish. Both Kruse and Coach Skorupa had a positive outlook for next year. "I always look forward to next year," said Coach Skorupa. ▲

6. Awards were given to Bret Schloer for Rookie of the Year. Mike Berger won Positive Mental Attitude; MVP was awarded to Nick Kruse. Also, Brandon Pukoszek and Chris Colella received Most Improved runners. In addition, Andy Jakubowicz picked up the Athletic Booster's Sportsmanship award. ▲

Homecoming Dance

1. As always, Lake Central cheerleading was filled with fun, spirit, and dedication. The girls not only cheered at football and basketball games, but they competed at six competitions. To start off their season they received fourth at Great America, eighth at State after qualifying at Regionals, first at UCA, and second at Navy Pier Nationals. At the Midwest competition in Highland, the girls placed first, which was their last competition of the season. "Cheerleading was a lot of fun and I'm happy I won my last competition at LC," said Senior Erin Banks.

2. Senior Stephanie Pietrzak enjoyed the games the most. "My favorite part of cheerleading this year was having so much crowd involvement at the basketball games. It made it so much better having the superfans yelling the cheers and supporting us."

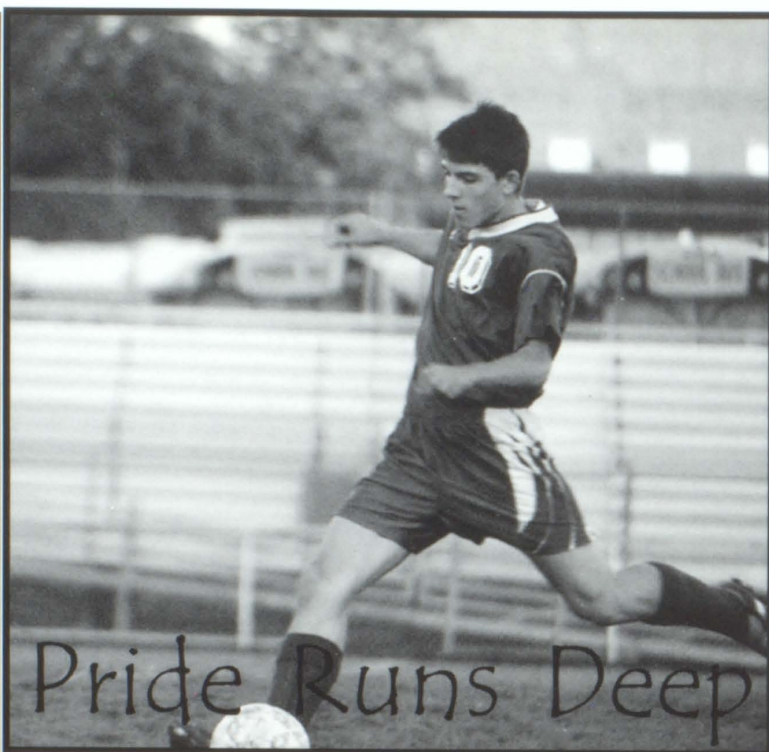

3. The cheerleaders got off to a great start at camp in the summer. Nine of the varsity got picked for All-American Nominees and four became All-American cheerleaders. After competing, varsity received a bid to nationals, which qualified them to compete at Navy Pier in March. Junior Katie Nowacki said, "Camp was the funniest part of the year. The best was when we attacked the freshmen with shaving cream. We got along with the seniors so well, that I will miss them next year."

4. For the first year sophomores were allowed on varsity, which meant a lot of adjusting. Sophomore Holly Kaminski said, "At first I was a little nervous, but I thought it was a great honor. We all got along well and everyone was nice to me. I learned a lot this year and I hope to do even better."

3. The JV season started off with a tough loss to the Valparaiso Vikings. Each year the team is tested with a hard opening match. This first match is a good way to begin work for the long season. Next the team got decisive wins over Hobart, South Bend Clay, and Kankakee Valley. ▲

4. With the edition of Hamilton Southeastern to the schedule and close games with Andean and Lafayette Harrison, the middle part of the season was tough. Hamilton was a new match this year and was a great challenge. The guys made great efforts but resulted in a tie. Andean got the best of the Indians with a big win. The 59ers have always put up a good fight. The Indians got back to the winning side with a great match against Merrillville. ▲

5. The last third of the season was strong. The guys played their best soccer to end out the year. The matches against Munster and Crown Point ended with great wins. The team made a statement against Munster while winning big. South Bend Adams proved to be a good team to add to the schedule while the guys fought for a well deserved tie. 5. With Mr. Mark Voorhees moving up to the varsity head coaching spot, someone was needed to take over as the JV head coach. Mr. Richard Moore was the man to fill this spot. Players quickly embraced him as the new coach, appreciating his enthusiasm for coaching and dedication to the team. "Mr. Moore knew the game well and he treated the players equally. He helped the weaker players improve. He was also a lot of fun," said freshman Jenna Mullins. ▲

Junior Kim Hayes unleashes a powerful shot on goal.

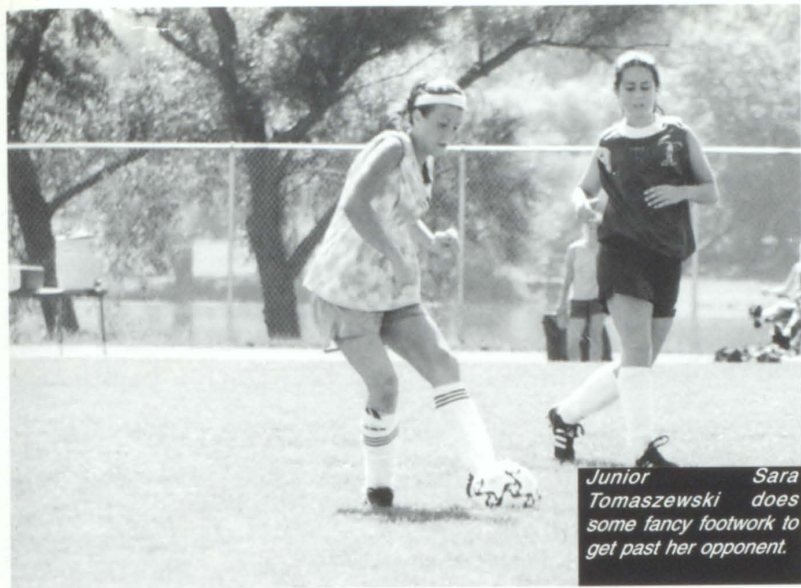

Freshman Amy Genova gives it her all as she sprints to gain possession of the ball.

4. Memorable games of the season included the Soccer Classic at North Central High School. In the morning game, the JV tied the Center Grove Trojans 0-0. Later that afternoon, the Lady Indians lost a hard fought battle by a score of 2-0 to the North Central Panthers. For the final portion of the game, the JV only had nine players on the field due to injuries. Although outnumbered, the Lady Indians continued to play with intensity and never gave up until the final whistle. ▲

3. Captains for the season were juniors Merissa Kapelinski and Kim Hayes. Kapelinski, along with junior Natalie Wrona, sophomores Sara Tomaszewski, Rachel Lukatich, and Amanda Willett and freshman Jenna Mullins were all placed on the varsity sectional roster. Receiving the Most Improved Player award was freshman Eleni Adamopoulos. ▲

2. Along with the game against North Central, games against Andean and Munster also were memorable games of the season. "The game against Andean we all played with high intensity. We were intimidated at first because we knew of Andean's impressive record, but in the end we tied them 0-0. No one wanted to lose that game," said sophomore Amanda Willett. Against Munster, the JV came away with a 3-0 victory over the Mustangs. ▲

Struggle for Victory

1. "Struggle to victory" was the JV football team's motto this year. They had a very tough and gruesome season as they faced some of the best teams in the region. ▲

2. The frosh football team also had a successful season. One of their better games was against the Portage Indians. "I thought we played one of our better games against Portage. They are a tough team and make us work hard," said freshman cornerback, Adam Summers. ▲

3. Jv started the season off with two tough loses to Merrillville 22-16 and Portage 20-16. The team worked together but just didn't make it. "We played hard but came up short in both games," said junior Troy Parker. ▲

7. Jv put on a show as they won four big games in the middle of the season. Of the four teams LC played, Lowell was the only team able to score at 25-7, LC giving up only seven points. The key to their victories was their togetherness. "We came together and showed our potential," said sophomore quarterback, Dustin Gorelick. ▲

4. After winning four consecutive games, LC had great confidence going into the Highland game. "Everybody was fired up. We had high spirits and high hopes for the game," was the statement made by sophomore Chris Ogden. After playing a very tough game we came out as the underdogs with a score of 18-8. ▲

5. The key to the frosh team's success was long, hard practice. "The more we practiced, the better we got," said freshman quarterback, Max Lyons. The hard practices showed at the Bishop Noll game when the we beat their team 35-6.

6. Overall, both teams had a successful season. The players on the team learned a lesson about dedication and toughing it out. "I learned more about mental play and the heart you put into it day in and day out," said sophomore Mike Beavers. ▲

3. The freshman team started out stronger than ever this year. First taking the Boone Grove tournament, which was the first tourney won by the team and Coach Walczak. The action didn't halt there. Continuing to on to capture the Michigan City tournament by defeating the challenging LaPorte Slicers in three games. Unfortunately, the Slicers didn't keep their challenge rolling enough against our Lady Indians. ▲

4. A strong junior varsity team concluded equally as well, beating Michigan City in two games to clinch the Kankakee Valley tourney. But high heads soon fell after a tough season with many injuries for the JV Indians and losing a valuable setter to the Varsity team, the ladies pulled together with new freshman team setter, Amy Wierbicki. Holding strong, with the connection of team leaders, Jennie Dodaro and Ashley Madryk, the team trampled on Valpo to end the season with individual as well as team highs. Erin Almquist helped out with her 13 points, Julie Thornton with an ultimate kill high, and Jesse Shelby with most passes. ▲

5. The freshman team had a lot of individual highlights. Stashing a secret weapon, team unity, the team stepped out more confident than ever. They intensified the season with Shana Sporman's jump serve, Danielle Cioffi's backrow expertise, Amy Wierbicki's setting, and Helene Buck's killer serving, especially against North Newton. ▲

1. Cheerleaders were hardworking, dedicated, and determined, and LC cheerleaders expected to perform at an elite level. Between strenuous practices, games, and numerous competitions, the cheerleaders maintained their high spirits. Sophomore Ashley Geideman said, "Our JV squad pushed to be the best. We got along so well because we had fun together, and we all contributed to something positive." ★

2. No longer a seasonal sport, cheerleading began with April tryouts. The JV and freshman squads cheered in the summer, at football and basketball games, and at competitions throughout the year. The squads practiced at least three times a week in addition to with two games per week for the whole year. Freshman Tracie Smitka said, "Because we are together all the time, I learned to trust my teammates, and we really got to know each other." ★

3. Known as the support behind the school and its teams, cheerleaders had their own support group, the LC superfans. Freshman Stephanie Westkowski said, "My favorite part of cheering this year was having so much crowd involvement at the basketball games. It made it so much better having the Superfans yelling the cheers with us. Go LC!" ★

4. Well-deserved fun overshadowed all the hard work demanded throughout the year. Freshman Mallory Bryant said, "The best part of cheer camp was definitely when we shaving-creamed each other. All of the seniors were so nice to us and helped us out when we needed it." ★

5. Competitions also brought fun to the long season. "The bus rides to the competitions were hilarious. We sang the strangest songs, but we had so much fun and it brought us together," said sophomore Val Oseguera. Freshmen placed third in the ICA Regional competition and second at the Highland Midwest; JV also placed at a strong third at Regionals and received second at Great America. ★

1. As the boys basketball season began, players found themselves looking at a brand new year full of opportunities. Due to the graduation of key seniors, the players looked to seniors Nate Richie, Danny Duncan, and Tim Peterson for experience. Much of the team was made up by underclassmen, including sophomores Adam Huebner and Chris Ogden. Junior Ty Torincasa felt the underclassmen would be a good asset to the team, saying, "We have a bunch of underclassmen that are athletic and should make for a good team if we work hard." ★

2. Due to the success of the Indians' football season, the start of the basketball season was delayed. Key players such as Danny Duncan, Adam Dowling, and Adam Huebner were all occupied with football, forcing Coach Black to practice for weeks with small numbers. But once all players were ready to go, LC found its first challenge of the season against the LaPorte Slicers. Tying the game 61-61 in the fourth quarter wasn't enough, as the Slicers pulled away with the victory. ★

3. Injuries left the Indians with the loss of crucial players throughout the season. Senior Nate Richie was out for much of the season due to torn cartilage in his knee. Key rebounder Tim Peterson also found himself sitting the bench for two weeks due to a knee injury. ★

4. Looking towards sectionals, players hoped that their season would not end in the same fashion as last year. Wins against the Hobart Brickies, whom the Indians would face in the first game of the sectional tournament, and Gary Roosevelt helped to prepare the Indians for sectionals. LC went on to defeat the Brickies in the first game of the Class 4A sectional. Scoring leaders included Nate Richie, Adam Huebner, and Adam Dowling. Each contributed to the 70-46 win. ★

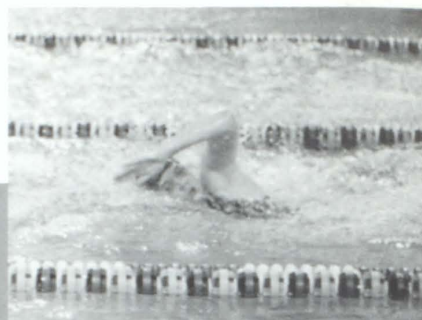

5. Unfortunately, the Indians fell short in their hopes of advancing past Merrillville in the second game of sectionals. Players felt they would be more prepared for this game since injuries weren't a concern, as they were when the Indians faced Merrillville during the regular season. But a team at full strength wasn't enough to ward off the Pirates. In describing the season, Coach Black said, "Despite injuries and disappointing results early on, we feel good about the way we have tried and done new things." ★

1. Early in September the swim team started training for their season that would not start until November. Since pool was being remodeled for the third time, to keep up with their training the girls lifted weights, ran, and played ultimate frisbee. They tried to enjoy the pre-season before the regular season would give way to early mornings, long nights, and several meets. ★

2. When the pool was finally finished and the water returned, the girls season was delayed by two weeks. That meant they would have to exude even more energy to stay on top. ★

3. Waking at 4:30 a.m. was normal routine for the swimmers. Many came to school wearing pajama pants and a "fresh-out-of-bed-look." Although still half asleep, they managed to slip into their still wet swimming suits and began their day with a splash. The early morning practices paid off. The girls had a huge win against Valpo, the first time in 10 years. Also, Penn, Lafayette Jeff, Munster, and at LaPorte, the girls almost had perfect score. ★

4. Awards were given to senior Sarah Arcella, best mental attitude, Kim Brown, most promising freshman, Lindsay Frost, rookie of the year. Also, Melanie Mattix had the most points scored, and junior Brittany Ausmus picked up the most valuable honors. In addition, Vanessa Momcilovic was Scholar Athlete. ★

5. When sectionals rolled around, the girls picked up their ninth consecutive title and boasted a plethora of champions. The 200 Medley relay of Michelle May, Melanie Mattix, Brittany Ausmus, and Rachel Sitarz. Mattix also won the 200-yd. individual medley and the 100-yd. breast stroke. In addition, runner-up honors were given to Ausmus, Jamie Carlini, Katie Mainwaring, Lindsay Frost and Kate Barzan. Several of the girls proceeded to the state level. ★

6. Coach Robin Tobias, now in his second year of coaching said "I am very excited about the future possibilities. Some great foundations have been laid by past and present athletes. But there is much to be accomplished by future participants." He also added, "The unselfish team attitude and the strive for success carried by the athletes has allowed me to feel proud about being a coach at LC." ★

1. The skating Indians of 2000 had a roller coaster of a season. The season had many highs and lows. The team showed great dedication and determination throughout. This proved to help the team to improve and progress though the year. They proved that when the games got big they could step up and play well. Great leadership from seniors was a most important aspect that helped the Indians finish strong. ★

2. The season started off high with a victory of 5-0 over Plainfield. The Indians played well against them this season winning 3 of 4 games. Next they played they played 3 tough games in the league followed by a big win against Bishop Noll. The Warriors being the Indians' rival, brought out the best play all season. ★

3. The middle part of the season proved to be tough on the guys. Many crossover games were played with tough South Bend teams. These games were good because they showed what the teams would look like at the State competition. The Indians once again got a big win over BNI and a tie over Marion in South Bend. ★

4. The last quarter of the season was the most prosperous for the Indians. Play came together due to hard work all season. It all started with a 4-1 victory over Lincoln Way. More victories came over Marion and BNI and Lincoln Way once again. Those wins boosted the guys confidence and got them rolling going in to State. ★

5. History was made at the 2000 State Championships. For only the second time in LC history the Indians made it to the class A championship game. The guys played great beating Northrop in the first game. The next challenge was presented by Bishop Noll once again. Although LC won 6-4 the game was intense and it had to be played to the end. Fort Wayne Snider was next on the list for the Indians. With a last minute goal by Steve Waterstraat, LC once again pulled it out and advanced to the finals. Although the Indians lost in the finals to New Haven the guys had put in their best efforts all year. The seniors provided great leadership, and the under class played well. The Skating Indians proved that it was important to stay positive all year long, for the finish was great. The season could be summed up by "What a long strange trip this season has been," said J. Paruszkiewicz and S. Szamatowicz. Walley Vukadinovich added, "I am proud that we represented our school well at state." ★

1. The varsity girls basketball team started out their season with a record of 4-0. Their first victory was against Chesterton. Next, the Lady Indians traveled to Valparaiso for a Varsity Classic Tournament where they went 2 for 2, crushing Washington and Carmel. ★

2. The Lady Indians went head on for a hard stretch of the season where they played many of the top basketball programs in the state. These games included Kokomo, South Bend Riley and Homestead. The girls played their hearts out with intensity, and kept up with these stronger, more experienced teams although they eventually fell to them. ★

3. During Christmas vacation the girls came to practice every morning from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. The Indians were trying to keep in shape and prepare for their forthcoming games. The only mornings off they received were on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, and New Year's Day. During the break the Lady Indians met their biggest rival, the Crown Point Bulldogs. The game was intense, each team giving it their all. With four seconds left, the game was tied 40-40. Unfortunately the Bulldogs threw up a lucky shot that fell as the buzzer rang throughout the awe-struck stadium.

4. The highlight of the girls' season was when they beat Valparaiso, the top-ranked team in the state, with the help of senior Mariel Yekich's last second shot. ★

5. On Friday, Feb. 18 at Merrillville High School the Lady Indians played their biggest rival, Crown Point, in a packed gymnasium. The game was close the whole time. Senior Mariel Yekich collided with a Crown Point player and missed most of the second quarter. ★

6. On March 8 the girls team held their annual banquet. This year's banquet gave out many respectable awards. The Most Valuable player and Most Improved player award was given to senior Mariel Yekich. The hustle award went to sophomore Emily Smitka. Senior Kristin Rucinski received the Scholar Athlete honor. The Mental Attitude award was given to senior Lauren Hayes. The girls' past season will always be a memorable one. ★

1. The boys track team defied all odds and were rewarded with one of their best seasons to date. Braving an unusually cold early spring and a stormy May, the boys continued to practice thier hearts out in hopes of making it to the state meet. The dream was realized for several runners as they proceeded to sectional and regional competition. ☺

2. When the indoor season rolled around, the boys were more than anxious to show what their months of practice had done for their bodies. The boys had wins against Crown Point and won the LC Invite. When it was time for the outdoor season, the boys braved the cold and won the Hornet Invitational and had a very close meet with Portage. Also, the running Indians beat Munster and came in third at the Highland Invitational. The boys continued to improve as the season went on and faced every setback with renewed determination and pride, the perfect example of Lake Central athletics. ☺

3. Sectionals proved to be a rocky ride for the boys. One hour into the scheduled events, the meet was cancelled due to severe lightening and tornado touch-downs around the region. It was imperative that the boys maintained their winning attitude and kept a positive outlook as they huddled underneath the pavilion in hopes that the rain would soon dissipate and competition could take place. ☺

4. When competition was finally ready to commence the next day. A light drizzle and some brisk winds meant the boys would have to spend extra time warming up to ensure a seventh sectional victory. The day started with a bang as the 4 by 800 relay team of Andy Jakubowicz, Drew Crague, Mike Berger, and Steve Schilling took home the victory. Also, Nick Kruse won the 3200 meter run, and Nick Wychocki clearing 12'6" ft. in the pole vault to be declared a sectional champion. Also, Dale Ramsy won the 110 meter high hurtles. These runners would advanced to the regional competition. Ramsy said, "This year was great for the team and for me as an individual. I am really going to miss track, it helped me learn discipline and the importance of hard work. The team worked really hard this year and it showed in our times and our determination to succeed." ☺

1. Girls track started off with high goals and good spirits from all. The team's first indoor meet was Feb. 28 on Indian territory. Scores are not kept at indoor meets, but our Lady Indians did very well. At the beginning of the season, Coach Clark stated, "We want to dominate sectionals as we have for many years," which is exactly what the girls ended up doing when they won their ninth consecutive title. ❧

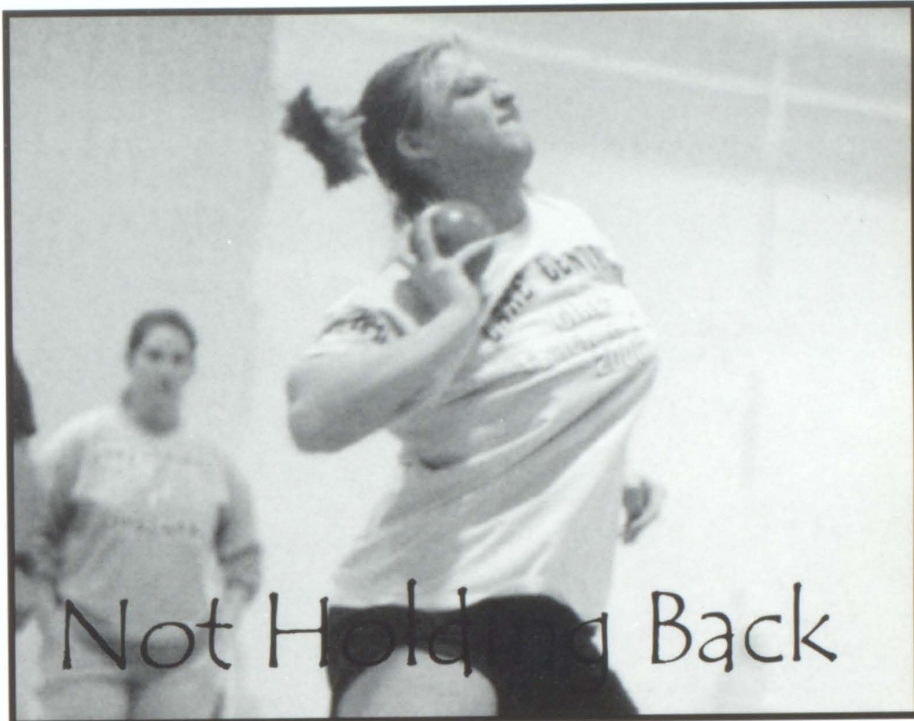

2. The first official outdoor meet was April 3 against Munster. Scores were kept at this meet, and our scores prevailed. Thus started a great outdoor season. The girls continued to stay strong and worked for a good season. They practiced every day after school to help improve their performance. Senior Rhiannon Skaggs said, "If we work as hard as we have been working, you'll see us at the state meet." ❧

3. The track and field team was a close knit group, but closer bonds were formed by the individual divisions of the team. The four divisions of track included throwers, distance, sprinters, and jumpers. Members of the different divisions stood apart easily by the shirts that they wore. Of these four the smallest and perhaps the closest group was the "Distance Chicks," as they referred to themselves. They were the easiest to spot because of their homemade shirts with yellow chicks on them. Freshman distance runner, Tiffany Redlarczyk, said that the other distance chicks "...really made me feel welcomed, and I enjoyed my time on the team." ❧

Staying strong, senior Angie Monzin runs the last lap of the mile.

4. The girls ended their season magnificently, sending 14 runners to the regional competition. Senior Kelly Murphy competed in the 100 meter dash, against some of the best runners in the state. Sophomore Holly Kaminski long jumped and junior Carly Craven finished sixth in the 110 meter low hurdles. The 4 by 3200 relay of Jen Wangerin, Jocelyn Simes, Christine Human, and Courtney Janda, finished fifth overall, and the 4 by 400 meter relay of Andrea Boskovich, Erin Foshier, Jen Wangerin, and Ashley Kowalski proceeded on to the state competition. It was definately a season of heartbreak and goodbye's, but the girls pulled together and remained a strong unit for the entire season. The girls won their eighth consecutive sectional title and had massive victories. Junior Grace Haddix said, "Everyone ran really well this year, we were all striving for our goals and the unity of this season and the comoderie of the girls was something that I will never forget." ❧

Showing composure and relaxation, senior Rob Cuthbert concentrates on chipping the ball into the hole.

1. The boys golf team had an impressive start and continued to have magnificent season. The top eight players, juniors Jason Buffone, also MVP, and Brian Evanson. Sophomores Chris Kuhn and Drew Dzieglowicz, and seniors Ben Burkel, Rob Cuthbert, and Rich Chamberlain. However, this season would provide bittersweet memories for Coach Don Binole, who announced earlier that this would be his last year of coaching, after several years of loyalty to the Lake Central Athletic Department. The boys made it their goal to make Coach Binole's last season his most memorable. 🏌️

2. The boys golf team, composed of 16 talented golfers played an amazing season. They played skilled games with some of the toughest schools in the area such as Michigan City and LaPorte. The boys finished third in the Lake Central Invitational, which had 16 of the best teams in the state. Also, the boys beat Kankakee Valley, Rensselaer, and beat Munster by one stroke. In addition, they were very strong competitors at several large invitationals, where they lost by only one stroke. Another factor that helped the boys to victory was their unselfishness, Dzieglowicz said, "I was really impressed by the greatness of Buffone's golf game." 🏌️

Putting to Perfection

3. Already a force to be reckoned with the boys are ready to show the state what they have. "If we play well together and as a team, we will no doubt win sectionals and place at state," said Rich Chamberlain. Also, Levin said, "if we play our hearts out, we can make it down to state, we just have to remember that we are LC!" Having a positive attitude is definitely one quality that this team does not lack and it shows. 🏌️

4. The Most Valuable Player, junior Jason Buffone, had an impressive season. Improving greatly from the previous season, Buffone shot very well at numerous tournaments to earn first and second places. Buffone commented, "I am proud to lead the team through another great season. I know we have the ability to win sectionals." 🏌️

1. Great depth proved to be very successful for the girls tennis squad. They were led by the four returning seniors, Nicole Nelson, Kelly Webb, Colleen O'Sullivan, and Rakhi Patel. The team's final record was 11 wins with only 2 losses to Munster and Merrillville, two state-ranked teams. Coach Ralph Holden commented, "We were out to prove that last year was not a fluke. Our record proved that. Our main goal was to defend our sectional title and compete with Munster in regionals." 🍷

2. Finishing the season with 13 wins and 0 losses, the JV team made a name for itself among top teams such as Munster and Merrillville, defeating both in two of the best matches of the season. JV coach Jackie Holden was very impressed with her team's performance at the Merrillville JV Tourney. The team placed second among the area's best JV teams. Freshman Greer Robison took first at number two singles, while sophomore Andrea LaBanco and junior Natalie Muskin captured first at the number one doubles position. 🍷

3. In the postseason, the girls had a bad draw and would have to win three matches to obtain the championship. They soared past Highland and Kankakee Valley in the first two rounds. The lady Indians captured their second straight sectional title this year as they swept past Lowell in the finals with a score of 5-0. 🍷

5. The co-MVPs this year were Nicole and Becky Nelson. They played an awesome season. Junior Rachel Brezene, their number one singles player, received the Most Improved Award, as well as, the Coach's Award. Sophomore Becky Nelson shared the Coach's Award with Brezene. 🍷

1. The West Lake program was a strong program designed to allow handicap and disabled students to have the same opportunities as other students. Some of their activities included the Special Olympics and their unforgettable field trips. The West Lake program also honor the retirement of their athletic coordinator, Ms. Karen McCarthy. ☺

2. The West Lake Indians began their year-long athletic season by playing volleyball. The Indians competed in a total of eight local games against teams from Lake and Porter counties. The team wrapped up the season with a tremendous showing in the state games at Ball State University, finishing second over all! ☺

3. Field trips are always considered a special treat. "I can tell you from experience," said sophomore Kim Cowser, who aided the West Lake program, "taking field trips with this group of exceptional kids was one of the best field trips I've been on." The West Lake group started off the school year with a hayride. Before Christmas they took a shopping trip and were able to purchase holiday gifts. Many of the kids' favorite trip was a day of fun in the snow at the Pines ski area in Valparaiso. In the spring the group visited the Drury Lane Theater and saw the play "Pinocchio". The last trip of the year was the annual picnic. ☺

4. The West Lake Patriots basketball team enjoyed the assistance of three managers and two other high school students, junior Moira Mis and sophomore Kim Cowser, who assisted pinocchio with the teams practices and games. The Patriots had a difficult schedule against some talented competition but came out on top. The team played six games and competed in their annual sectional at Valparaiso University. The team wrapped up their season with a win against their parents in the annual Parents vs. the Patriots game. ☺

Relaxing on the snow, Megan Mazur sits back while park rangers perform the work.

All dressed up for Halloween, the Westlake Patriots take a breather before showing off their costumes.

Enjoying a day at the pumpkin patch, Westlake field trippers take a bumpy hayride to the best section of the patch.

5. The individual sports that the West Lake kids participated in were swimming, bowling, and track and field. Swimming regionals took place at Merrillville while state was in Indianapolis. Many students received medals and ribbons for their exceptional effort. Senior Matt Krupa, who competed at the state swim meet said, "It was a lot of fun to win at state, especially when I was handed the medal." Senior Laura Wolf said, "Bowling is my favorite sport by far because we get to leave and go to Stardust Bowl." Another individual sport that the West Lake group competed in was track and field. The kids competed in about six different events. Their numerous competitions in Special Olympic sports throughout the year have left the players exhausted but fulfilled. ☺

6. Ms. Karen McCarthy announced her retirement from the West Lake Services; she had served 20 years. She has been working during that time between the Munster and Lake Central School Corporation teaching special education classes to all grade and age levels. She was coordinator of all the Special Olympics sport programs and she scheduled games and events for all the West Lake participants. Ms. McCarthy said, "After 20 years, I can say I have truly loved my job and will miss the kids dearly." Everyone wanted to show appreciation and gratitude for both the staff and the students. ☺

1. The boys varsity baseball team had a very emotional season. The season was marked by close losses and hard-fought victories. The Indians grabbed important wins over rival Griffith and top-ranked Kankakee Valley. Juniors Kevin Peller and Dan Caudle combined for six home runs in those two games. After the games Dan Caudle (11) remarked, "When me and K.P. get up for a game, there's just no stopping us." ☺

2. The boys varsity team fought through a tough season and were anticipating good results in sectionals. Although the boys suffered some losses during the season that they wish had been wins, they felt really positive going into their sectional match-ups. They were very confident because they knew that most of their losses came because of injuries to key players and also because of the loss of a close teammate, Cory Topp. ☺

Junior Cory Topp suffered a massive heart attack on the baseball field April 14 during a game against Thornwood. Paramedics tried everything they could to help him, but it was too late. Cory had always been a team player and he truly lived for baseball. He showed his loving desire for baseball every day through his determination to win and his hard-work ethic. Cory Topp was a talented young man with a great attitude and will always be remembered in the hearts of his teammates, teachers, and fellow friends and family.

1. The girls of the varsity softball team threw a curve on the word dedication. With 2-hour practices Monday through Saturday, the softball team was determined to succeed.

In reaching the peak of their season, the girls hoped to win 20 games and go as far as possible in the state tournament. The Lady Indians grabbed one outstanding achievement when they scalped the Munster Mustangs 6-2. According to Coach Keith Hauber, Munster was one of the highest competitors in the area. ☘

2. When competing in almost any sport, teamwork proved a key ingredient. Junior catcher and third baseman Michelle Ellis commented, "We played a great game against Griffith, which was back and forth the entire time. We soon realized that if you go into a game with a droppy attitude, you will lose. In the end we pulled through because we got our heads in the game and worked together."

Strong unity was present both on and off the field. "We work well together probably since we spend so much time together outside of practice and the games," junior pitcher Sam Colella said. ☘

3. Head Varsity Coach Hauber felt the team possessed a large number of talented pitchers, defense, and hard-working young ladies. Hauber said, "This team has dealt with a lifetime of diversities and has come through it in the best possible shape." The ladies displayed an exemplary work ethic throughout the entire season. This accounted for their success and wonderful team spirit. ☘

Junior Sarah Mitcheltree watches the infield for the next play.

1. With many players eager to start winning again, the JV basketball team was ready to begin this season right. Even though they lost their first two contests, they came on strong and won three of the next four games. They continued their strong play throughout the season and finished with a record of 12-8. This year's team was also very versatile and had a number of players who could start. Ryan Mistarz (10) was a sharpshooter who could drain 3-pointers in the blink of an eye and the energy of Pat Mc Shane (10) and Ryan Gulden (10) was always a terrific boost off the bench. There was no doubt this was a rollercoaster season for the Indians, full of ups and downs. ☆

2. As everyone around the region knows, a LC vs. Andean match up is always a must-see, and this year's game was no exception. It was a physical game through all four quarters, and the Indians won decisively, 61-46. The Indians dominated the game from start to finish and with the leadership of Dustin Gorelick (10), pulled out a victory. This was the JV's most uplifting victory of the season, and it provided an emotional boost for games to come. ☆

3. Overtime can be one of the most nerve-racking and physically exhausting times for a basketball player, and the JV boys sure had their fair share of it this season. The Indians competed in overtime three times this season in games against East Chicago Central, Carroll, and Lowell. They finished with a record of 1-2 in these games. Each one of the overtime games was very close until the end, and even though the Indians may not have won all of the contests, they always played hard and left it all on the floor. ☆

Shoot to Win

4. The frosh basketball team was also very impressive. With the leadership of Jeff Walker (9) at point guard, they finished the season strong with an overall record of 12-7. In dominating victories over Highland, Hammond Morton, and Boone Groove, the freshman Indians showed they knew what it takes to compete, and ultimately, win. ☆

Junior Meighan Tucker rushes down the court to break away from the visitors.

Freshman Melanie Barsic dribbles in preparation for a free throw.

Doing her best impression of Michael Jordan, freshman Kim Haviar goes up for another basket.

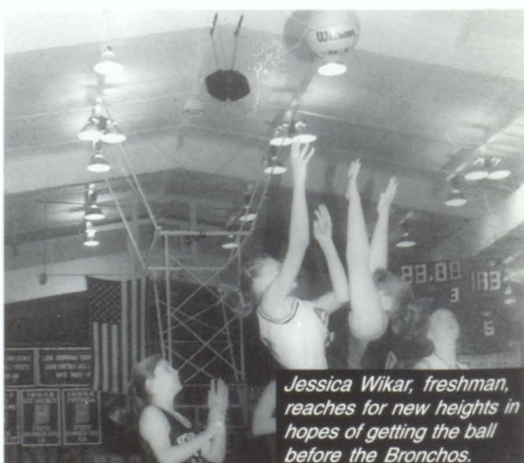

Suzanne Richardson, freshman, blocks a Hobart player and reaches for the ball.

Jessica Vienna, sophomore, aims toward the hoop in hopes of increasing the team's lead.

Jessica Wikar, freshman, reaches for new heights in hopes of getting the ball before the Broncos.

Defending the Indians' lead, freshman Lauren Kucera blocks Hobart from getting the ball.

Freshman Alex Michalski holds back two Gavitt players to help her team's effort.

While sprinting down the court, freshman Brandi Shields drives the ball away from the opponents.

The freshman players surround a Crown Point player to intercept her pass.

Allison Komarowski, freshman, prepares to throw the ball to her teammates.

1. "She shoots, she scores," was a phrase that could have been used on many occasions during the JV girls' basketball season. The team's final record was fifteen wins and only three losses. A few of the teams among the ladies' competition were Kokomo, Penn, Valpo, Crown Point, and McCutcheon, which are some of the best teams in the area. The three teams that the girls lost to had a combined record of fifty-eight wins and only two losses. Even against this tough competition, the Lady Indians stood up tall. Coach Hauber was very pleased with the season. He felt that the team was very successful and the season went very well. ★

2. In addition to the JV's success, the freshman team's first season at Lake Central was very impressive as well. The "A" team had a final record of sixteen wins and three losses, and the "B" team finished with six wins and eight losses. Some highlights of the "A" team's victories included beating Crown Point both times they played against the Bulldogs. Though the ladies lost to Valpo the first time they played against the mighty green and white, they came back strong the second time with a victory. The freshman ladies also won the Highland Tournament. Overall the season was almost injury free with only one sprained ankle belonging to Lauren Volk. The members of the team became very close friends during the season, perhaps even the closest ever according to Coach Holden. ★

3. The coaches of both the JV and freshman teams believed that the girls enhanced their abilities. "The goal of every JV season is to improve the fundamental skills of all the players. I strongly believe that every player improved." Coach Holden also said that the freshman team improved greatly, even more so than he expected. Because all of the players were young, they would carry on Lake Central's basketball program and hopefully continue to get better. ★

Freshmen Justin Butler and Jeff Walker.

1. Jv baseball gave players a chance to evolve into good varsity players. The guys learned how to come together and play as a team. Sophomore Chris Ogden said, "We got along good and played really well. We had an up and down season and we wish that we could have played a little better." The players will continue to be proud of their achievements and hope to play varsity next year. ☺

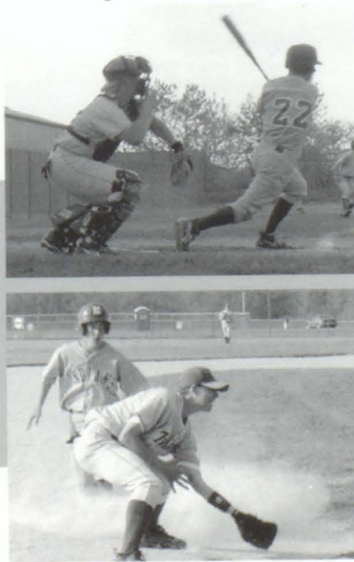

2. Many up and downs plagued the Jv baseball season this year. As there were a few down times and tough losses, there were also a number of highlights. One of the highlights of the season was Lake Central's victory over the Andean 59'ers. Freshman Garry Ruvoli said, "We were waiting all season long to play Andean, and we finally beat them 8 to 5." ☺

3. The boys freshman baseball team had a remarkable 17-5 season. They had a season marked by big wins and close losses. One of Lake Central's arch rivals, Munster, beat the Indians early in the season by one. The boys wanted revenge against Munster, and freshman Steve Skowronski said, "We knew that we could beat Munster the first time, so we came into the rematch with intensity and stole a 1-0 victory from them." The boys had a successful season and many of the freshmen hoped to continue their hard work, intense play, and great spirit in hopes that they would advance to JV next year. ☺

1. Junior Varsity teams may sometimes be portrayed as the underdogs of almost any sport. But the JV softball team was well rounded and ready for all hurdles that stood in their way.

Practices helped to measure out the ability of the team. During a regular practice, drill work, hitting techniques, and rotating stations were done. Rotating stations were used to help the girls in each aspect of the sport. Coach Eisfelder said, "This team is from top to bottom an outstanding hitting team."

Outfielder and second baseman Amanda Willett added, "We worked really hard in our practices and it paid off during the games." 🐾

2. Incredible accomplishments were made during the season. The girls caught the Highland Invite through hours of hard work. This was the first time that LC has ever won this particular event. The girls had also held the first LC Indian Invitational. The team raised money for new uniforms and batting cages by participating in a one-hundred inning game. This extremely long game was held on LC territory. Scores were not kept. The team played between 30 and 50 innings, quite a long game compared to the normal seven innings. 🐾

Swing into Action

3. "The main goals are to improve each player for varsity, collectively as a team. Having fun and winning are important as well," said Coach Eisfelder. The skill and talent of the girls continued to be seen as they reached their goals and faced new challenges. The junior-varsity team had a very successful season. They met new people and had new experiences and learned from everything they went through. 🐾

Freshman Ali Pienta runs toward home base in hopes of scoring for the Lady Indians.

Freshman Brandi Shields walks in after successfully getting three players out.

1. Junior Gary Rogers prepares to step off in a Winter Drumline performance of "Mystery Egypt." Winter Drumline nabbed a state championship this year and placed twenty-first nationally.

2. Grease is the word for sophomore Bruce Fane, playing the role of Sonny. The spring musical "Grease" had a wildly successful run this year, often playing to sold-out crowds.

3. Junior Alicia Garletts concentrates on creating a lifelike scene for Art III. Art students showed their work on several occasions, including the Spring Fine Arts Showcase and the Munster Art show.

Art

"It gave me freedom to express myself and grow as an artist"
-Natasha Bilka

Art classes offered hands-on skills to be proud of, evident by the students with their original artwork. The art classes and art club were also responsible for paintings on the wall in C-hall. Also displaying the talents of the art students, entries to various art shows around Northwest Indiana brought home respect. Ms. Yaeger said, "We were proud to be the winners of 'The best overall school presentation' at the Northwest Indiana High School Art Show for the third time in the last four years."

With so many different classes to choose from, students were better able to select a class that suited their individual artistic needs. Four levels of art were offered, ranging from beginner to advanced. Works of art were created by means of paints, oils, watercolors, charcoal, pencil, and pen.

Crafts and Jewelry also enjoyed a productive year. Students turned out projects such as ceramic pots, ornaments, jewelry, boomerangs, and yarn boxes. For many students this was the first time they had been exposed to this type of art.

The art classes became a great blend of creative freedom and curriculum, not spending an hour and a half every other day solely on drawing and painting. The teachers also concentrated on giving their students a chance to understand art to their fullest ability. To do this, they gave lectures throughout the year on careers in the arts and art history.

By the final projects of the year, the students had grown artistically. In fact, Natasha Bilka, an Art III student, said that she enjoyed the art program at Lake Central because, "It gave me freedom to express myself and grow as an artist." The projects created were appreciated by their fellow classmates, the faculty, and their families, but none experienced more pride than the artists themselves.

Beginners tried their hands at Art I, and those who enjoyed art to its fullest completed Art I,II,III,IV throughout the years. Freshman artist Carrie Manes said, "I enjoyed Art I very much and I am most likely going to stick with art throughout high school." Classes were packed with students drawing, painting, or crafting. Taught by Mr. Volk, Ms. Yaeger, Ms. Gray, and Ms. Bushong, the classes turned out many brilliant works of art as well as many skilled artists.

Projects from all art classes were on display throughout the year in the display cases. The work of art students and art clubs were also visible along the walls of C-hall. It was evident by the end of the year that the students had benefited from the arts and crafts and had learned much about themselves.

Ceramics

LC shapes the future with ceramics.

"The feel of clay gliding through my hands while the project takes shape puts a smile on my face," said junior Liz Cowan. Ceramics was not your ordinary class at Lake Central. Students were allowed to design their projects through their own creativity. With an art background, students were able to put a more innovative touch to their project.

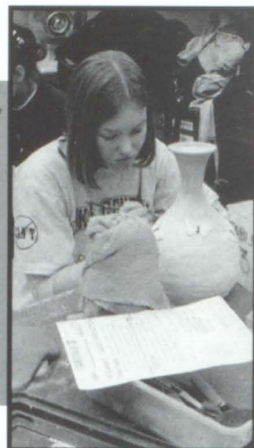

"Coming to ceramics every day gives me satisfaction because I can work at my own pace and be expressive through my art," said senior Justin Camer. Ceramics offered not just the opportunity to be creative but it showed students a new form of art technique.

"Ceramics I taught me the basis that I need not only to further my ceramics studies but to continue with my niche in art," said junior John Ruzich. With every reward there came a price, clay under the nails and in the hair were just some results of making a project.

"I don't mind getting clay in my hair. I have so much fun it doesn't bother me," said junior Cassie Friermood. From glazing to working on the wheel and from sculpting to slab building, ceramics taught students all of the trades of pottery.

"I have learned many interesting aspects of art from taking this class, and I plan on taking this class my senior year," said junior Dan Alderson.

Gramercy Ghost

"The mysterious Gramercy Ghost grabbed the attention of LC this fall."

Gramercy Ghost cast members took their final bow Saturday, Nov. 27. Seniors who acted or helped in the technical areas viewed this show as their final fall comedy performance.

Senior Julie Leslie continued her involvement with the Lake Central Theatre Guild (LCTG). "It was a great last fall play. I was really glad to be involved," said Leslie, who along with sophomore Adam Baldouf helped work the lighting effects. Besides Leslie and Baldouf, a large cast and crew participated in the comedy's success, part of LCTG's thirty-fourth consecutive season. Auditions and set building began in September, with practices running almost every day after school and crews meeting on weekends.

The show was originally planned as a comedy about a man and his imaginary white rabbit, Harvey. But "Gramercy" was chosen after two other area schools decided they wanted to do "Harvey." The decision turned into a good choice, as it was well received by the many students attending the performances.

"I thought the play was hilarious. The actors were talented and the show was very funny," sophomore Stephanie Bogusz said after seeing one of the performances. Many students who attended were supporting friends who were in the shows or were interested in seeing what the theatre had been working on recently. The last performance proved to be the most popular. The audience included family members of students and theatre guild members.

"The plays are crazy times with crazy people," said sophomore Mark Dudzik. "I had a good time and met some new people." Dudzik played a ghost named Irv who tried to help another character. One person who will remember the play the most would be Ms. Angie Lowe, who directed the play along with her husband, theatre director Mr. Paul Lowe.

"I miss the show a lot. I thought it was very sweet. I miss all the people who were involved," said Ms. Lowe. Lowe would not have much time to reminisce about the former cast, however; the spring play Grease loomed just about the corner and indeed began auditions less than two weeks after Gramercy Ghost ended.

Senior Sara Jacewicz takes a bow at the end of her last fall play at LC.

Grease

It's grease lightning! This Spring Grease was the word for the LC theater guild.

As millennium fever built throughout the world, teen actors searched for meaningful performances to offer their audiences. The Lake Central Theatre Guild (LCTG) opted to take us back to the fifties. "Grease" hit the stage lightning fast but it offered just as much innovation to those who worked on or behind the stage as it did its audience.

Making memories and broadening horizons made actors and actresses find the importance of such an entertaining play. Senior Kari Bryk said, "I met some really nice people that I probably would have never talked to before. I was never in a musical before and it was a good and different experience." Bryk excelled in the part of Chacha in the spring play choice, giving the play some flair with her interpretation of that character.

Musicals bring out previously unknown talents. Junior Andrew Ranich said, "I found out that I really could do things like sing that I never knew I could do before. I enjoyed working with new people, plus it was a new experience. But I did not like Hell Week." Ranich landed the part of Roger T-bird.

Playing the part of Eugene, a somewhat dorky character, sophomore Mike Kostyo said, "I had a lot of fun taking part in the play. There were a lot of nice people involved."

Junior Brandon Pukoszek said, "I really enjoyed getting to know everybody. They are all such great people, especially the seniors. The part was a lot of work, but it paid off and was fun. My heart really goes out to the people who worked in the theater to bring us together as a family." Pukoszek played disc jockey Vince Fontaine.

Exemplifying the spirit of the greasers, senior Dave Pittman transplanted cast, crew, and audience back to the days of our parents and grandparents.

Seniors Krissy Bales and Sara Jacewicz talk about the National Band Stand coming to Rydell.

Rizzo, senior Sara Jacewicz, ridicules Sandy, senior Erin Ordway, that there is no such thing as a perfect man.

Danny, senior Dave Pittman, shows off his groovy car to his fellow "T-Bird's"

Danny, senior Dave Pittman, sings and dances around the cafeteria with his fellow school mates at Rydell High School. The students all want to hear about the exciting summer that the "T-Birds" had.

The "Pink Ladies," seniors Sara Jacewicz, Meredith Gozo, and Krissy Bales, talk about the "T-Birds" on their way to lunch.

Tribe of Pride

Continuing their tradition of excellence, the Lake Central Tribe of Pride dazzled audiences with their show Palendrome.

The Tribe of Pride began the season with hard work and with band members attending a weeklong band camp; there they began to put the pieces together for the field show 'Palendrome'. This show was a first for the Lake Central Marching Band.

'Palendrome' is a completely original show comissioned specifically for the Tribe of Pride. Students and directors were pleased with the results. "Palendrome is a well-designed, well-coordinated show. The drill (marching steps) and music worked well together," said director Mr. Chris Harmon.

The band practiced every day after school in the Freshmen Center parking lot during the marching season. They braved sweltering heat and freezing temperatures to perfect the show, and their hard work paid off. The Tribe placed well this season in competitions, including a victory at the Sounds of Autumn Marching contest.

The band also recieved superior ratings at District, Regional, and National competitions. In addition, the Tribe placed tenth at the ISSMA State Marching Band Finals. The band completed another successful season due to the hard work and dedication of its members. Junior Stephanie Sikora said, "This season was great! We worked hard and performed well."

Junior Jeni Keith and seniors Jainie Ehrenzeller and Duane Krambeck take a break from the dancing at Band Homecoming.

Senior Jamie Brouillette awaits her cue.

Senior Josh Miller prepares to step off during half time in the Homecoming game. Lake Central's Tribe of Pride dazzled the audience with their spectacular show 'Palendrome'.

And the Beat Goes On...

The success of Lake Central's band program continued with an award-winning winter concert season.

The flying snow did not stop the Lake Central Bands; they just moved inside. The concert season for the regular bands began with the Winter Concert on Jan. 20. Symphonic Band, Concert Band, Wind Ensemble, Percussion Ensemble, and the Jazz Ensembles performed music they had prepared for months. All of the hard work paid off; the concert was a stunning success.

Continuing the concert season, the bands began competing. Symphonic Band, Concert Band, and Wind Ensemble competed at the ISSMA District competition on April 7 and 8. Performing well, all three bands received a Division I Superior rating. The Winter Drum line also fared well at competitions. Their show, "Mystery Egypt," earned them a state championship and placed them twenty-first nationally.

Winding down the concert season, the band's final performances occurred at the Spring Fine Arts Showcase at the Star Plaza. The three concert bands played their contest pieces to rave reviews. The Percussion Ensemble played a rendition of the Santana hit "Oye Como Va" and the Winter Drum Line performed part of the championship show "Mystery Egypt." Some assembly was required for the band's successful year, but all of the members' hard work paid off.

The Sound of Success

Lake Central Choirs began the year with a dizzying schedule of concerts and contests.

Choir had a busy season this year starting off with concerts, performing in a major contest, and finishing off with another concert. All choirs started off the season with the Fall Concert on Oct. 5 and 7. The concerts showcased all choirs and the bell choirs. Students look forward to the Fall Concert as an opportunity to display their musical talents. "The Fall Concert is always fun because it is the first concert of the season and it lets us get back into the groove of things," senior Dave Pittman said.

The annual Christmas concert was held Dec. 12, 13, and 15. All choirs performed traditional Christmas pieces at the concert. This concert was a particularly enjoyable one. Counterpoint and Trebleaire members enjoyed performing for the audience. "I like doing the shows because we get to show off our groups and talent to the community," junior Sarah Vance said.

LC enjoyed success at the ISSMA Solo and Ensemble District Contest. Fifteen students, Counterpoints, and Trebleaires advanced to the state finals. ISSMA State Contest was held on Feb. 18 at Lawrence High School in Indianapolis. Choir students returned home with 11 first and eight second places. Counterpoints and Trebleaires both received firsts. A Girls Trio consisting of Erin Ordway, Sara Jacewicz, and Jen Alexander also brought home a first-place rating.

Ring My Bell....

Concluding the year the choirs participated in several spring concerts and festivals.

The Spring Concert ended the choir season on May 9 and 10. This concert featured the highly anticipated senior solos. Seniors had to try out to have been able to perform their solo. The judges chose eight lucky winners: Dave Pittman, Renee Lesniewski, Sonia Lopez, Krissy Bales, Meredith Gozo, Jack Arndt, Mary Eagan, and Lisa Pupillo. All choirs performed at this final concert. Concluding the concert was the perennial favorite "Battle Hymn of the Republic." This final concert for the choirs offered the public the opportunity to view these award-winning groups before next year.

The Bell Choir worked hard all year and showed their determination at their performances. The fifth annual Bell Fest was held April 26 at Kahler Middle School. Lake Central, Kahler, and Grimmer bell and show choirs attended the event. The event raised the middle school students' expectations of what to expect when they enter high school. "I think the bell fest was a neat event. It allowed us to work with the middle school students and to show them what they have to look forward to in the future," sophomore Heather Foltz said. Performances were a stunning success, with everyone hitting the notes on cue. Choirs had a long, difficult concert season, but the members' hard work paid off in the end.

Communications

Communications is the voice behind LC students

Every other week the Scout was distributed to the hands of LC students, every year Quiver sent out another book full of Lake Central memories, and beginning with 1999 we produced the first CD-ROM yearbook. The students who accomplished these tasks did not just go through the motions. Their actions showed the drive and dedication involved in meeting the deadlines and standards of their teachers and peers. While Scout, Quiver, and CD-ROM Quiver were the pens and eyes behind expressing what LC students were about, the Speech and Debate Teams were the voice. The hard work of all these groups did not go unnoticed. CD-ROM Quiver earned top national Pacemaker recognition while individual Scout received awards, and Scout placed first nationally.

Most did not realize what it took to be a member of these groups. To voice one's opinion without infringing on the views and beliefs of others could be difficult to accomplish. To fully capture an event or moment for all to always remember proved demanding. So much pressure placed on those involved, yet leadership and respect of their final products saw them through.

Senior Leah Olenik, sophomores Katie McDonald and Kim Cowser, and Ms. Hewlett display journalism awards at the Lake County Public Library.

Juniors Lori Cypher and Cassie Friermood design their first layout.

Juniors Amanda Lieberman, Rachel Mishoulam, and John Ruzich work as a team on Quiver staff.

Senior Marina Popovic carefully decides which pictures to use.

Senior Nick Wychocki enjoys the challenges Quiver offers daily.

Communications isn't all work and no fun. LC students know how to combine the best of both.

Senior Stephanie Pleztrak never wastes a minute in Quiver.

Senior Jill Zamecki works diligently at her computer to meet Scout deadlines.

Junior Grace Haddix devotes a lot of time to cropping her pictures accurately.

NEVER foRGet--

THE 2,597 students scrambling through our hallways manage to find their way into our lives and even our hearts. Our peers all have had a small imPaCT on making us who we are and who we would like to be. Of course, we may not realize it today or even tomorrow, but FRieNdShiPs have influenced our lives forever.

Having fun while learning? What's this? Environmental Biology's field trip to the Dunes proved to be a fun, educational experience. Senior Danielle Kotarski said, "The park guides told us about the problems in the environment at the lake. It couldn't have been a better day to go either. I had a lot of fun going on the trip with my friends."

Junior Tim Jones got into the Spirit Week festivities by dressing the part of an Indian. "Everyone was so surprised and shocked that I dressed up for school. No one expected it at all, so I got a lot of weird looks in the hallways. When I walked past the office, all of the principals and secretaries came out and laughed at me."

3.

Sophomore cheerleader Laura Haynes shows her enthusiasm in leading the crowd during the Homecoming Pep Rally at Redar Park. "It was so much fun to get the crowd and the players ready for the game. But actually I'm just thankful that I didn't fall."

Freshman class cabinet begins early earning

Having the huge responsibility of paying for a prom the size of LC's began the early planning by elected cabinet members. Class sponsors, Ms. Robin May, freshman counselor, and Mr. Al Angel, freshman science teacher, began this early push. According to them, too many classes might be tempted to take the view that there would be plenty of time to earn money for the big event. But the Class of 2003 would not be caught wishing they had planned more or earlier. Two successful sales during their year boosted their treasury to an impressive amount. And as the year came to a close, they were already planning their money-makers for the coming year. It appeared the entire cabinet had agreed: earn enough money in the early years of high school and spend that precious junior year making the actual plans.

Ms. Robin May

Jeni Rogan's leadership potential and determination may have been two factors that helped elect her as Freshman Class president.

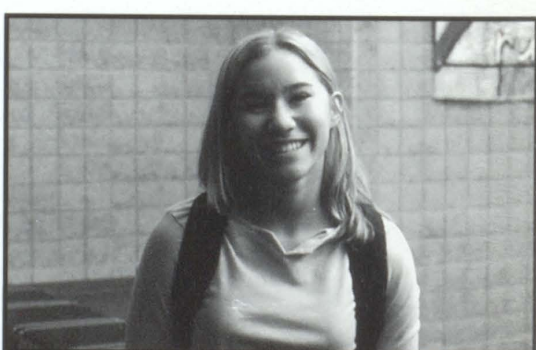

Showing similar signs of leadership, Alison Pienta, vice-president, knew her job was to help the president and continually check on class cabinet activities.

"This freshman class has raised more money than any other freshman class." --Mr. Al Angel, class sponsor Nikki Corle was elected secretary. She learned quickly the importance of keeping accurate notes of plans and meeting reports.

Hillarie Smigiel took on the responsibility of depositing the class' money and keeping financial reports when she was elected class treasurer.

Freshman Tiffany Redlarczyk and Lauren Kucsera enjoy the pasta before a meet.

Freshman Play

The four freshman plays turned out to be a successful event. "That Was No Lady, That Was A Private Eye," "Baby," and "When God Comes For Breakfast, You Don't Burn The Toast," were directed by students who were former LC cast members. "This Is A Test", was directed by Ms. Angie Lowe. The students worked hard all day after school to prepare for their show dates, which were May 19-21. "The show has truly been a wonderful experience, and I've had so much fun," said student director Peter Seat (11).

Jeff Hayes (daddy), looks amazed when he returns home and sees the babysitter making out with her boyfriend.

The cast members and directors of "Baby" celebrate after a successful opening night.

Christine Widuguer (mommy) tries to assist Eleni Adamopoulous (baby) in learning how to crawl.

Missy Horgash (teacher) of the cast of "This Is A Test" teaches her class of students.

The cast of "This Is A Test," shows how hard work pays off.

The students in the cast of "This Is A Test," take a break from speaking their lines to observe the commotion on stage.

The cast members of the four freshman plays rehearse after school in the cafeteria.

How do your answers jive?

Daydreaming ... for most of us, these periodic wanderings were hard to resist. But it wasn't as though we planned to daydream. No, we had very good intentions, but our minds played tricks on us, and in the middle of working a geometry problem, we could suddenly find ourselves out on a date with our favorite movie stars.

Some admitted they did plan to daydream. "It's the only way I can go to sleep after a day of school, working, and homework," claimed more than one busy student. And it certainly had its perks: no rules, no work--just fun and relaxation any way you wanted.

Could daydreaming be so different than reading a story? Perhaps not, and you could be the star. You could be all grown up with your own family, or you could be traveling the world and getting paid for it, or you could be a hero or heroine, adored and revered by all around you. Yes, Walter Mitty had the right idea: when life was not what it was cracked up to be, disappear into another world, a world controlled and guaranteed to be just what you expected.

Imagine: You are in a spaceship. Today you will land on a different planet. You glance out the window at your right. Coming down ... What are those??? People ... not so different from us ... You knew it all along! You hear, "Earth calling Tom." You reach for your cell to reply, but what is shaking you?

"Oops! Sorry teacher!" you mumble as the space scene re-assembles into E207.

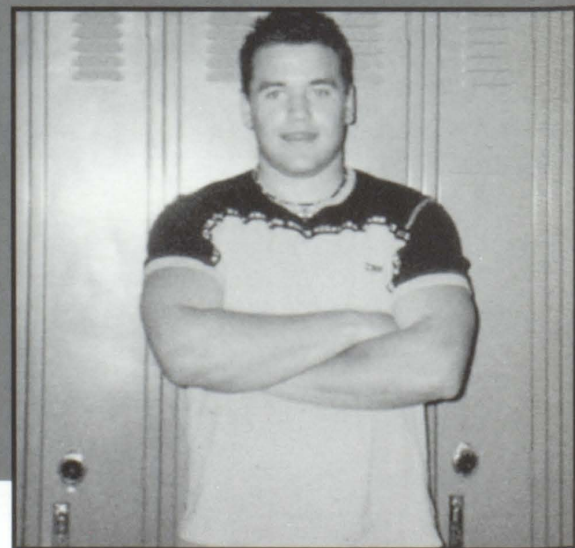

Krystal Lowe feeling confident about her track meet.

What is the dumbest thing you have ever done?

"Fell down the stairs during the blackout and broke the heel on my shoe." --Vonisha Black

"Dan Caudle and Steve Bartnik dared me to eat a whopper with the wrapper on it and I did." --Mike Beavers

If you could be an animal, what would you be?

"I would be a horse because they don't do much work, all they do is run around."

--Lauren Hough

"I would be a flamingo so I could stand on one leg."--Jenna Demy

"I would be an lion so I could tear people apart." --Katie Mainwaring

What is the craziest thing you would do to get a date?

"I would start a boy band."--Dan Durakovich

"Run around naked." --Tony Richards

What would you take to a deserted island?

"I would take my boyfriend Spencer,"

--Jessie Shelby

"I would take Carmen Electra, and my Dr. Dre and Eminem CDs." --Eric Nelson

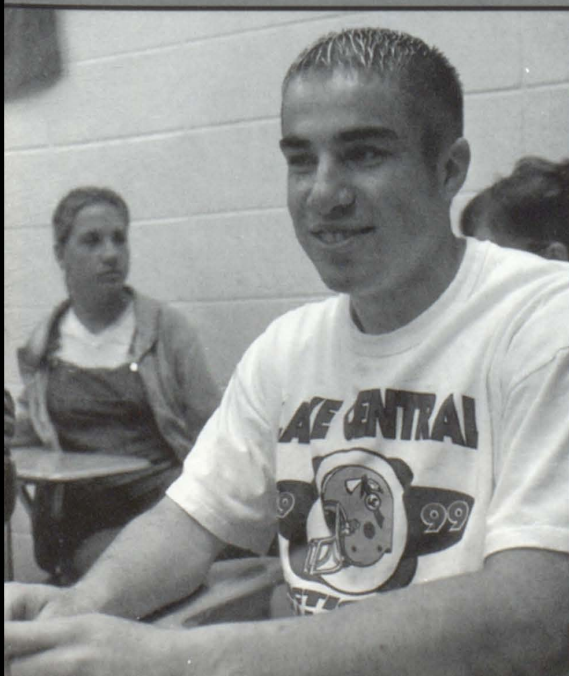

Answering dreams for both, sophomore Katie McDonald accepts a first-place Journalism award with her proud father.

Derek Mish, Jessie Shelby, and Mike Harris at Winter Formal.

Ryan Hulfeld listens attentively to the teacher.

Can you look into your future?

"I want to play professional soccer for the Chicago Fire" --Jimmy Graham

"Work in downtown Chicago and be a bleacher bum at every game for the Cubs," --Jill Kapitan

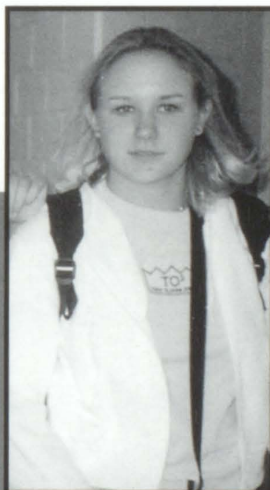

"I want to be a kindergarden teacher in Florida," --Nicole Fezekas

Can you describe the perfect mate for you?

"I want to be with someone who makes me smile, is smart, and can tell the difference between my sister and me." --Jackie Sanchez

"A guy who is funny, athletic, and likes me for me." --Megan Bodnar

"I like skinny hippies who play hockey." --Ashley Pluskis

Who's your role model and why?

"Damo Petrozza because we're going to win the Gus Macker tournament because we are so good." --Ryan Hulfeld

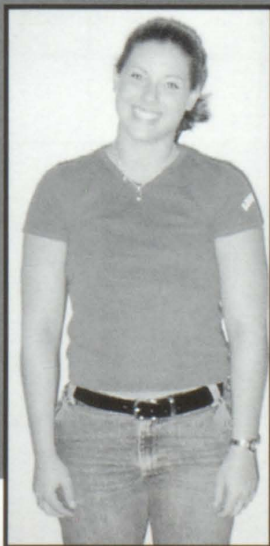

"Mike Beavers because we are going to win state in football two years in a row together." --Chris Ogden

If you could be any teacher, who would you be?

"Ms. Wadycki cause she's the coolest & I get away with a lot." --Amanda Bailey

"I'd be Mr. Pietranczyk, because he looks like Emilo Estevez." --Frank Krzus

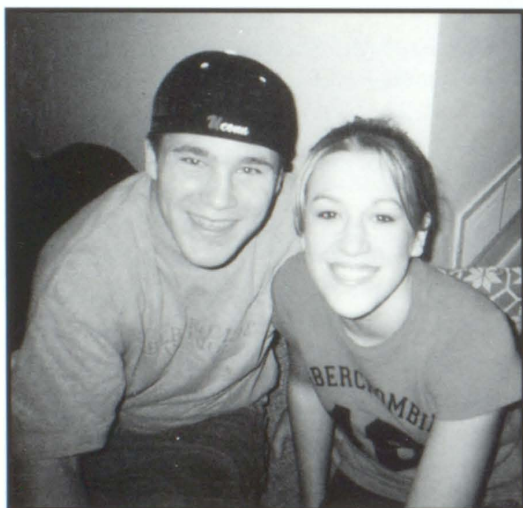

"I would be Mr. Tobias because he is laid back and crazy. And that is how I would like to be CRAZY!" --Krystal Lowe

Sophomore year offered more freedom and excitement, as sophomores began to feel the pressure to think about their future choices. Along with the freedom and excitement came the inevitable—increased... responsibilities.

It was time to get a job to pay for car insurance that gave most newfound freedom. Added to this was the continual gain in gasoline prices, causing many to work only for their wheels. "The gas price hasn't affected me or slowed me down at all," said Brian Murry.

Parents let up on curfew times, until even the later one was broken too many times. Life was moving forward at such a fast clip that new freedoms were appreciated for a few days but then were found lacking. Sophomores began to look ahead even as the school year continued to spin by. "I did have a late curfew until it was broken, due to the fact that I returned home a bit too late one night," Ellen Malito said.

Sophomores faced a number of problems. Although many were old enough to drive and hold jobs after school, few could count on driving to school. Driving one's own car was often a necessity to get to work on time. And having a paycheck for the first time sometimes failed to accomplish the empty-wallet syndrome. Some parents even required a portion of the student's paycheck to be banked for the needed college fund. "I plan on going to college. I have many saving bonds to help pay for the expenses. I have a job but don't save my money for college," said Brian Daniel.

After paying our dues, we were finally given the title of upperclassmen. This year has been known as the most important of our high school career. We had to psyche ourselves to take the biggest test of our lives, the SATs. As we consistently received mail from colleges all across the country, the future started to become a reality.

Becoming a junior qualified us to participate in the parking lot battle. However in the beginning of the year, only a limited number of students received parking passes because the band occupied the back parking lot. Many clever juniors struck back by creating their own passes with the technology of a scanner. The administration surpassed us by issuing precise parking lot checks to find the fake ones. The guilty students were punished with a Saturday school, but the consequence had a bigger effect on some than others. Any junior who received a Saturday school was disqualified from becoming a member of the National Honor Society. The National Honor Society issued forms to juniors with a 3.33 grade point average or better to find the ones that possessed the qualities of character, leadership, scholarship, and service.

After three years of fundraising and lots of dedication, the Junior Class Cabinet put on a fairy tale prom for the seniors. The fund-raisers this year included a car wash and a carnation sale for Valentine's Day.

The fact that life was fragile was proven when we lost our classmate, Cory Topp. We will always remember his love and dedication for baseball.

The major goal for juniors this year was not to be diagnosed with senioritis too early. We lived spontaneously because after high school we would have the rest of our lives to act responsibly.

Laura Carlascio, Kim Rainbolt, and Michelle Ellis go wet and wild after a softball game.

In Loving Memory of Cory J. Topp

August 7, 1982 - April 14, 2000

*You are not forgotten Cory,
 Nor will you ever be.
 As long as life and memory last,
 We will remember thee.*

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,

As time goes by we'll miss you more

*Your loving smile, your gentle face,
 No one can fill your vacant place.*

*"I'll never understand life.
 I'll never understand why the good Lord would take away my best friend. But even though there will be moments when I feel sad, I'll look up and always remember Cory's cheerful smile and his friendship towards me and others."*

Mark Engle

"Cory was a great baseball player, friend, and even more importantly a great person. With all the memories we shared together, I will truly miss him."

Tom Dykiel

"Cory was one of the nicest guys at BG. Besides being nice, he was smart, funny, artistic, and very good at baseball. I miss him very much."

TIME CAPSULE

WHAT'S UP?? The year 2000 rapidly approached us. As seniors, this was the day we had been awaiting since 1996 or even earlier. Many things would never be forgotten as the class continued to grow. A time capsule offers a small memory meant to jolt us back to the "turn of the millennium!"

Britney Spears had the guys' mouths open, saying, "Hit Me Baby One More Time" and if not swooning over her, Christina Aguilera quickly replaced her with the "Genie in a Bottle." The girls didn't mind Brit and Christina while they spent their time thinking about just "who was their fire and one desire." The Backstreet Boys helped them out, of course. All year with Ricky Martin we learned how to "Shake our Bon Bons" while "Livin' La Vida Loca." Drew Barrymore's butterfly tattoos fit in perfectly for this millennium. Butterflies could be seen everywhere and Chinese symbols were quickly taking up the back. Younger students' sisters and brothers were ranting and raving over the Pokeman craze. Furbee, a talking ball of fur, replaced "Tickle Me Elmo" at the stores during the Christmas season. Tattoos still existed, but piercings became more popular. Every body part that could be pierced was tried by at least one student. From navel rings to labres to tongues.....we saw them all this year or DID WE?

The car of the year was by far the Volkswagon Beetle. Everyone that didn't have one wanted one. At the theatres "American Pie" left us in everlasting laughter while craving another piece. Bell bottoms came back, Abercrombie & Fitch suffocated the hallways, and small glasses emerged as a fashion statement by certain females. The majority of the females sported short-cropped haircuts while the males experimented with bleached tips. "Dawson's Creek," "Friends," "Party of Five," and the "Simpsons" continued to overpower the television set. "Beverly Hills" fans who followed it through the years watched it come to an end. Spirit Week was voted the best by the majority of students trying to play their part. Southlake Mall displayed a new food court that left many actually looking forward to shopping. This selected few memories will forever be engraved in our hearts, as we happily say goodbye to LC... with a tear in our eye. Some of us wondered whether indeed the best years of our lives had come to an end; some of us decided to prove that wrong. So what's up?

~A Grasp Of The Future~

You are sitting at home and wondering what to do. You could watch TV or listen to music, but you are in the need to TALK to someone. You begin to reflect on all of your old friends at LC. You sigh as you begin to miss them. Out of nowhere you look at your feet; what is this but your 2000 yearbook! You thumb through the pages and get to the senior section.

HEY! It COULD happen! Remember the girl you got a detention with for talking in class? How about the guy you sat next to in Saturday school after achieving too many tardies? Do you ever wonder what the group you sat with at lunch is up to these days? Some of them have gone on to college. Check it out...

Teacher Appreciation Banquet

Some people exist through our schooling years, special people who help to build our confidence and prepare us for our future. These people have hopes of us accomplishing and fulfilling our dreams. There is only one noun to describe these individuals and that would be teachers.

Teachers exist to help not harm us, to challenge not aggravate, and to cheer on not punish us. They choose to pursue this career to help us become the "best" we can be. Over the years they have become second parents to us. They rarely receive the proper gratification they so deserve. Seniors wrote essays to their favorite teachers, the ones who made positive effects on our lives. The top nineteen papers were chosen to be presented at a special dinner with their teachers of choice.

Teachers were reminded of rhymes that continue to carry on, of sayings that have imprinted their places in our minds as well as our hearts, and of the way that they kept students intrigued in the learning process. These teachers' thoughts and words of wisdom have carried on from elementary school, through junior high, and right to our current senior year. These nineteen were recognized, yet all should be. Sometimes a student forgets to offer the proper praise a teacher deserves. These nineteen, as well as remaining students, thank the teachers for helping to shape our lives and brighten our futures.

Top 30 Awards Banquet

Intelligence, properly understood as a process of getting smart, is a social endowment, not a genetic one. As we grow older, we gain more intelligence. For the past four years, this group of students has done nothing but study and strive for the position that they have now achieved. To be ranked in the top 30 of their graduating class is a great honor.

On April 12 these ambitious seniors were honored at a youth recognition banquet. The guest speaker reminded them that the most important thing in the world and the key to our future was learning. For the rest of their lives the knowledge they have gained through hard work and striving for excellence would forever determine thier strong apitudes. These 30 will be able to touch the lives of others through the gift of determination. Some of these children trying to find their way to adulthood, will be able to hand on the passion and achievement to thier children, pupils, or lifelong friends. They will be able to reach out thier hand and tell the desperate person that determination and gratitude will always surpower the underestimating. As the opportunities of law school, pre-med, or other powerful opportunities for jobs open up to these 30 warriors, they will be proud to know that they have made it thus far and have the courage to continue on their path to freedom. Freedom from critizism, freedom from the chains of not knowing the unknown, and freedom from the prisoner inside them who says once in a while, "You can't do it." These 30 have overcome and supassed the warrior, the true prison, themselves. Everything can be conquered through the power of one's self, the power of knowledge, and the power of determination, and they have proved that to themselves, parents, teachers, and us.

ReMemBEr THat--

As we walk the path of life, we obtain a great deal of essential KnOWieDge along the way. High school is the time when acquiring certain knowledge is most vital. Our teachers are more important to us now than we can possibly realize, as they push us to do our best, share their wisdom, and give us the power necessary to truly succeed and excel in the future.

This is yOur FaCuLty AnD acAdeMics...

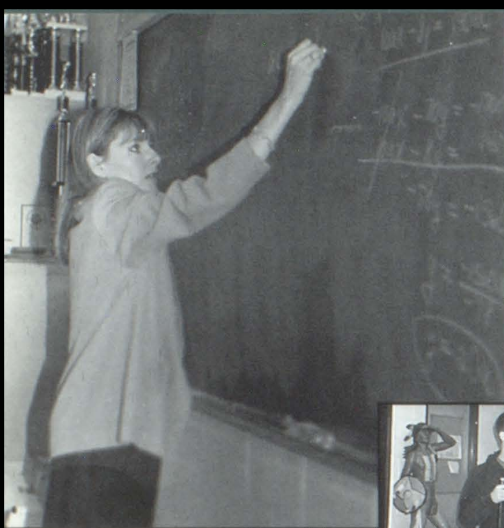

1. During a quick water break to make it through the long 90-minute class period, senior English teacher Ms. Pam Miller puts German teacher Mr. South's Army skills to the test.

2. Mr. Robin Tobias makes English class a little more interesting for his students by lecturing from the top of his desk. As LC entered its second year using the Block-8 format, teachers successfully discovered new techniques to sustain student alertness during class.

3. Ms. Angie Lowe instructs her French class on correct pronunciation. Despite the rumors that Ms. Lowe would retire at the end of the school year, she decided to stay at LC for at least one more year.

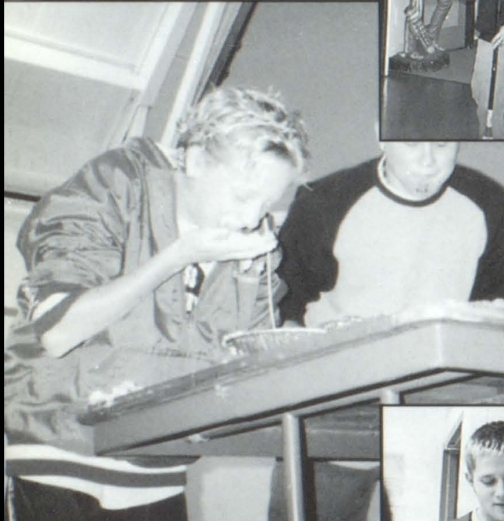

School... Our Social Center

Ms. Joan Loden, math teacher, utilizes teaching methods demanding higher-level thinking skills.

"I really enjoy my photo class this year," said junior John Marnell. "It's cool how we go around taking pictures and get credit for it."

Senior Andy Pollen and freshman Lindsay Frost participate in a pie-eating contest. Most could not believe Pollen didn't win.

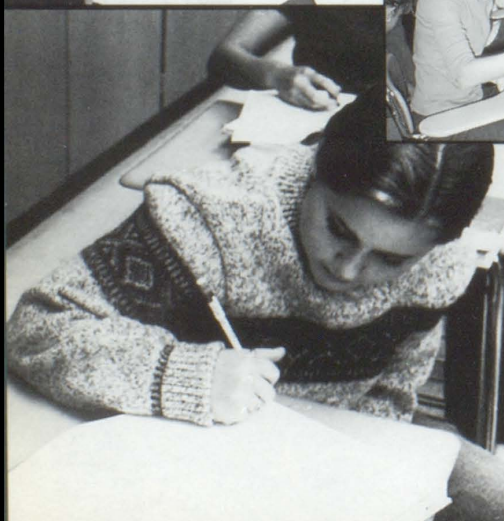

"I think teachers have improved their teaching methods this year. I think they're used to block scheduling and what to do with their time," said senior Pete Pinkowski.

Scheduling 2,700 can cause dilemmas; Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Bankroff contemplate solutions for scheduling problems.

"Even though classes are a little tough, teachers have done a good job trying to keep them interesting," said senior Laura Yakubec.

Dedication is what it's all about. Senior Amy Fischer hits the books to keep her good grades. Studying is your best friend when preparing for class.

I love to do my homework
It makes me feel so good.
I love to do exactly
As my teachers say I should.

I love to do my homework,
I never miss a day.
I even love the men in white
Who are taking me away.

Crazy to have enjoyed school? Of course not. Many students' social activities revolved around school. The week started out with attending a few meetings after school, then Wednesday was study night while watching "Dawson's Creek," and then Friday night was the big football game. So far all the week events had revolved around school. High school sweethearts met in elective classes offered at LC, friendships for life developed throughout the year, and popular events became part of unforgettable memories. As 7:15 the bell rang, and the interaction between 2,700 students began.

"During the school week the only time I am able to spend with my friends is at swim practice and study groups," said senior Jennie Ondra. Ondra was part of the swim team for four years and cherished the friendships that were made during the extra time she spent at school.

For an incoming freshman, LC was a big change from middle school with the new extra-curricular activities. "High school has been really fun for me. There is always something going on and so many clubs to join to meet new people," said freshman Lauren Ausmus. Ausmus jumped right into the groove of things her freshman year by joining the cross country and swim teams.

While some students enjoyed the time spent participating in school activities, other students felt differently. "School takes up most of my time and is too long, so socially I try to avoid school as much as possible," said junior Ben Simes. Simes spent hours at the pool for four months, but after his season he avoided extra time spent at school.

From 7:15 to 2:10, students were being social busy bees, but after the bell, it was up to the student if his social life was related to school or not.

Senior Brad Yates calculates his homework for physics. Staying up to date will ensure a successful preparation for his exam for the nine weeks.

Secretaries Ms. Brumm, Ms. Dierks, Ms. Moore, Ms. Doolin, and Ms. Malsch keep offices running smoothly.

Seniors Derek Vanderhoogt, Pete Rokosz, Karl Duncan, and Nick Wychocki attempt some creativity for a friend's project.

Watch out wetlands, here we come. Juniors Dan Caudle and Pat Fritz prepare themselves in their Environmental Science class for a journey into the wetlands of LC.

Students were not the only ones doing the work around here. The total staff was dedicated to the students. Ms. Malsch and Ms. Hewlett talk over some new ideas to better help satisfy school needs.

Not knowing which berries are edible can cause illness. Seniors Scott Ourednik and Jennifer Oberman have no fear. They are well prepared for nature from their studies in environmental science class.

The school day doesn't end promptly at 2:09 for most. Sophomore Jessica Schmidt grabs a refreshment to finish off her day.

Junior Christine Human and friends grab an extra minute from the 6-minute passing period outside in the courtyard.

Junior Erica Winterhafer and friends cruise into Ms. Wadycki's photo class.

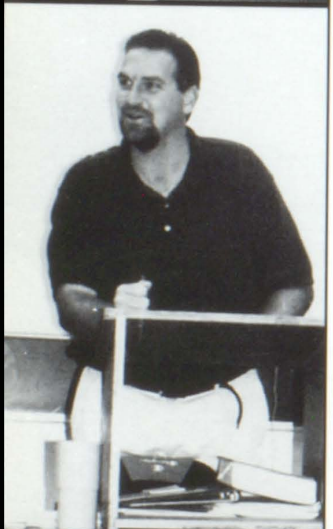

History, a required course, demands good teaching skills. Ms. Judy Skafish's reputation claims that she makes learning fun and exciting. She involves students in learning and tries her best to make history come alive.

Professional staff members don't miss opportunities to brighten the school day. Ms. Corrine Moore dresses for clash day during a Homecoming Week activity.

Throughout the years certain teachers remain favorites. Mr. Ralph Holden, social studies teacher, helps students learn and understand that what they are learning adds value to what they'll take from high school.

Just because students have fun during high school doesn't mean the staff can't. Ms. Lori Brumm moves to the music during the Homecoming dance, enjoying the dance as much as anyone.

Former soccer coach, Mr. Chuck Pollen, sports an LC soccer shirt from 1989; late is better than never.

Lt. South, aka Mr. Mark South, stands proud in his uniform for American pride.

Credit earned by student from teacher

"What? No credit because I didn't write the date!" Phrases such as these were commonly heard all around LC. Sometimes students got a teacher who counted off for little, sometimes pointless things.

Most students complained that simple grammar errors gave them the most grief. Junior Ben Simes said that not circling answers caused him to lose points. Freshman Alan Gross said that forgetting to do something as simple as write his class number got him no credit on an assignment or even a test. Most students did not like it when they recieved a loss of credit on an assignment or test because of such small errors. Sophomore Matt Frost said, "It doesn't make me too happy when I get ponts counted off for little things."

But it wasn't always the teacher's fault; sometimes students made the mistakes. Freshman Mallory Bryant said that she sometimes forgot to spell a word correctly in Spanish class and she had gotton points taken off. Junior Jon Gettmans said that he did not always complete his homework, which in turn made it harder for him to excel in some of his classes.

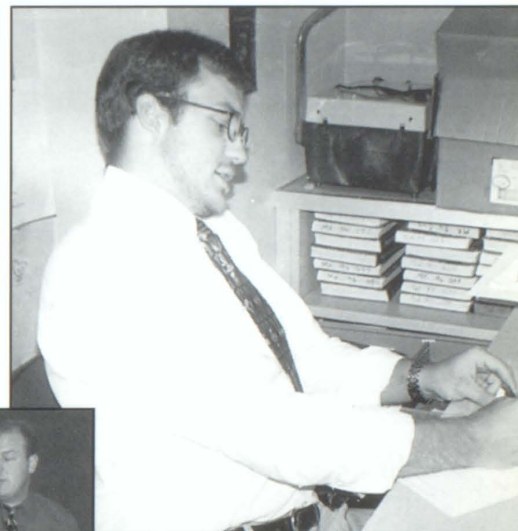

Thankfully things like these were not a problem for most students. "It has never really been a problem for me," said Frost.

But there were still some students who were affected by little mistakes. "It has been somewhat of a problem for me this year," complained Simes.

The reason most students thought teachers counted off for grammar and punctuation was because it made them look smart. Simes thought that teachers count off for not circling answers because thay don't want to take the time to look for the answer.

But among all of these troubles, students still managed to get through the year. Students learned that some of their teachers were going to count off for little, sometimes pointless things, and they would just have to live with it.

Mr. Robin Tobias reads a student's paper written on a mandatory book selection assigned as reading in his modern writers class.

Mr. Jeff Rhody gathers all his materials during passing period for his next class.

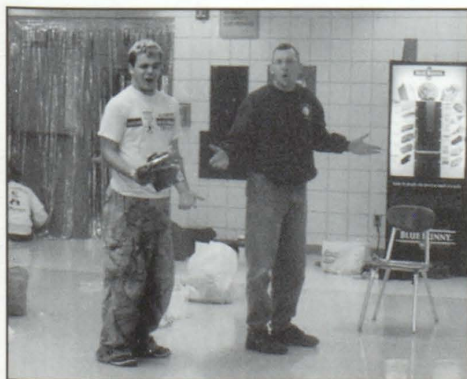

Mr. Tom Clark gives a rough estimate on the length of one of his guns that he had used in the war he participated in.

Senior Julie Leslie chuckles as she gives a speech about the different hats she has worn.

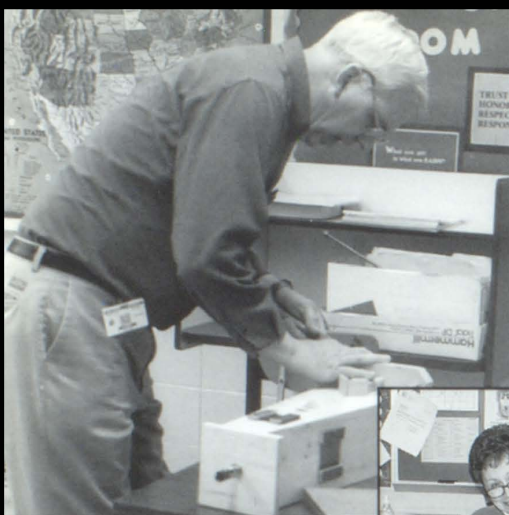

Junior Sarah Frank and classmates prepare for a demonstration in the fresh air on LC grounds.

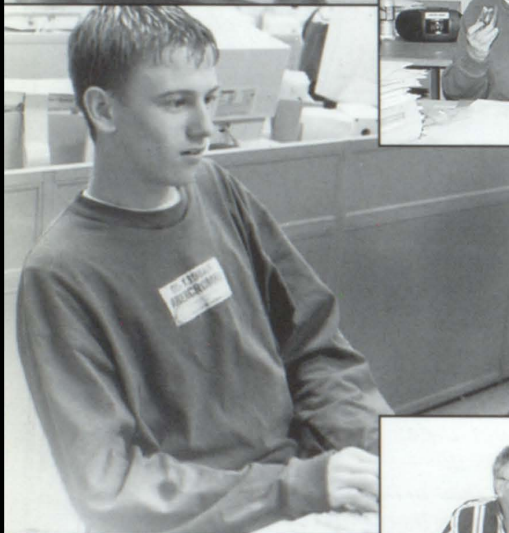

Mr. Randy Starewicz tried to be creative by using different media to teach his classes.

Senior Derek Moore and Mr. Mark South are overwhelmed to see that putting up decorations was so difficult.

Constructing a birdhouse, Mr. Al Koch demonstrates his skills as a carpenter. Mr. Koch works in the Special Education department.

Senior Ramsy Hoydea hurries to class to avoid a tardy detention.

Balancing Acts

School sports, jobs, and being social are all considered part of everyday life as people grow older. People will usually get a job so they can support themselves and buy their own things. To some, it may be another event of their lives.

Sophomore Nick Summa had a job and managed to keep a good position on the varsity soccer team. Summa's academics cut very close to his social activities. He worked at Jalapenos and he said, "After I get home from work, I am so tired and all I can think of doing is going to sleep." Summa also said, "I usually have practice after school except on game days, so to get my homework done I have to use my SRT time wisely." SRT was very valuable to students like Summa to get the homework done and the help they needed when they had after school activities and jobs.

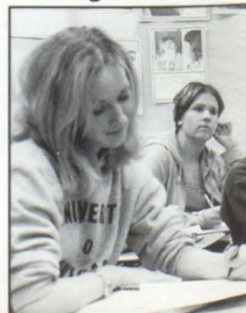

All sports were not time-consuming to the point that there was no time for school studies. Freshman Alex Michalski played freshman volleyball and said, "My practices were from 3:30 to 6:30. When I got home I was tired, but I still found time to get my homework done after practice or during SRT."

Junior Tony Espinosa was in the band and managed to hold a job. However, Espinosa said there was still time for his academics to fit into his tight schedule. Espinosa said, "Band practice usually ran from 2:30 to 5:30. I had to do my homework during class time and SRT because I worked, too."

On their way to the athletic office, Erin Barks, Dan Duncan, and senior Nate Richle take a break in V-Hall.

Mr. Elmer Britton takes a break from teaching during Advanced P.E. class. In this popular course, students learn about physical fitness and use the school's weight room to work out.

Student-teacher, Mr. Jim Nohos, helps out junior Becky Simko during class in his field of expertise, history. No matter what he is doing, Mr. Nohos is always willing to help a student.

Ms. Pat Bergstrom files a book back onto the shelves in the library for future student use. The school library is a helpful resource to students.

Students Stressed But Rarin' To Go

Senior Kim Davies is deep in thought while perfecting her computer assignment.

Senior Dave Pittman goes over his notes to give himself a sufficient review for an upcoming test.

Senior Tom Coulls struts down E hall before class.

Senior Steve Miller tries to complete his research by taking advantage of our very own school library.

More homework! No time!
What am I going to do?

Whether grades would be low or high students faced academic stress daily. Students faced many stressful obstacles through their high school career. These obstacles could be related to school work or extracurricular activities.

A main stress-causing factor was homework students faced nightly. Senior Stephanie Maish stated, "I got so frustrated when I had so much homework at night, and I couldn't finish it on time." Many students became so wrapped up and involved with homework that they stressed themselves out. They realized that homework was the essential points needed to pass the course.

While some students tried every trick in the book to get through their hard classes, others went the easier route and took less stressful classes. Homework and studying was still an option but some of these classes were less time consuming.

Other problems came with students participating in extracurricular activities. Senior Mariel Yekich said, "after a day of basketball practice, I was so exhausted that I couldn't find energy to do my homework." Others still were able to manage both homework and school-related activities. Junior Tony Espinosa was involved in the band and still had time for academics to fit into his tight schedule. He tried to accomplish as much homework in each class and SRT to eliminate the time needed at home to complete his work. More students become wise and take advantage of given homework time in order to do the things they wanted to do. This way they could have fun and avoid the stress that was produced by their school work.

Junior Mike Melcic fills out an aide request form so he can be an aide for his favorite teacher, Mr. Ralph Holden.

Junior Chris Troupis said, "I use my SRT time wisely so then I can go out after school."

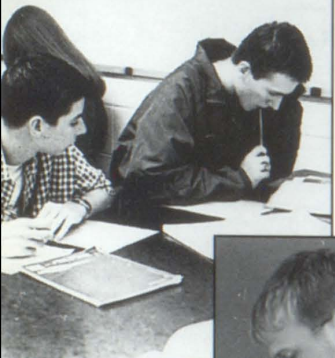

Officer Fred Stamate has the delicate responsibility of LC security.

Freshmen Max Lyons and Nick Shultz work as a team on finishing a paper for biology.

Senior Spencer Sunde said, "I'm so happy that I'm graduating so that I don't have to put up with homework anymore."

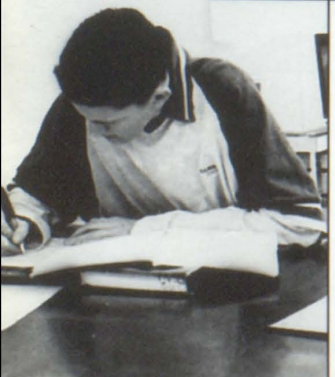

Ms. Lori Brumm, one of the high school office secretaries, works diligently on her computer in the middle of her spring cleaning.

Junior Isabel Amezcua said, "I think that giving homework is a good idea so that we can practice what we learned."

Sophomore Brad Kanwischer finishes his homework in biology before turning it in at the last minute.

Junior Jill Scibor uses her computer skills in more than one class.

Some parents believed that good grades were very important, while others believed that grades were not that important at all. Teens tended not to like being nagged, while there were some who actually needed extra encouragement.

Most parents believed that their children's grades were foreshadowing the future. Teens also agreed that grades could be predicting their lives to come. "I think grades are important because you can't go back and change them; they are the foundation for the future," said Jill Kapitan.

Parents definitely were a major influence on how well or how poorly their child progressed in academics. "My mom allows me to get at the minimum a C-," said Mallory Bryant. Some students believe it was more comforting to have a parent that was very involved. They liked the constant pushing; it gave them incentive. It even made sure that the student was giving one hundred percent. Kapitan also said, "I push myself at the same pace my parents push me and I do what they expect of me."

Some parents even went the distance to reward their children for getting the grades they were capable of. "I don't get punished for getting bad grades, but I do get to go shopping for getting good grades," said Bryant.

Teenagers were often pressured with school, sports, and many other extra-curricular activities. Parents had a major influence in their teen's academic lives. They were a key instrument in helping them manage their time so that they could easily juggle all of their commitments.

Teachers Make Learning Fun

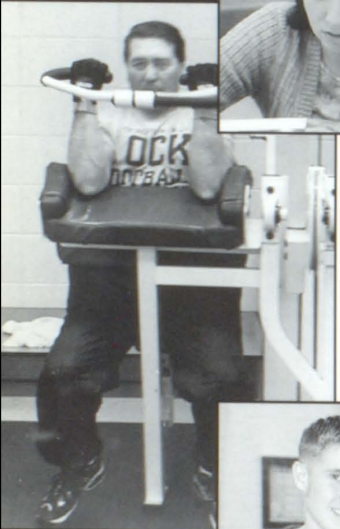

Senior Pat Moore and Mr. McGrath hover around Ms. Brumm's desk in the office. Since Pat was an aide in the office, he knows he is sure to find a tasty treat in one of the candy jars.

Senior Robin Cooper said her favorite teacher is Ms. Miller. She said, "She always finds a new way to make learning fun and keeps kids awake."

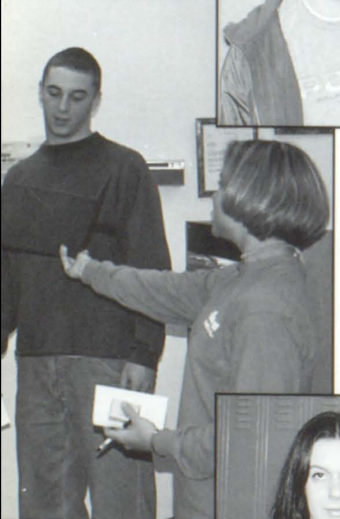

Not only does Mr. Komara teach his classes the skills of weight lifting, but he always gives a demonstration of his weight lifting abilities.

Senior Jim Sullivan said he likes the way Mr. Fredrick teaches his classes. "He makes learning exciting with all of the stories he tells, and he always has a Portugese quote on the board."

Seniors Danny Duncan and Stephanie Pietzrak discuss athletic events while they plan for the upcoming basketball season.

Senior Maggie Gulyas likes Ms. Crooks' style of teaching. She said Ms. Crooks "...explains math well even though math is boring."

Mrs. Lowe always wants to be comfortable while she is teaching. Her relaxed attitude makes her students feel comfortable as well.

Ms. Martha Voorhees works hard during her plan period to cut things out and get some work done for her classes. Ms. Rita Laskey, Spanish teacher, takes time out from grading her papers to listen to the funny stories of her class.

Not only an athlete but a scholar as well, senior Jake Kapitan works toward solving a tough math problem.

"This class is so hard, I'll never pass!"
For students struggling in their classes, teachers could be a great help. Every teacher had his or her own unique way of teaching.

Some students found that certain ways of teaching were easier to learn from. For senior Lauren O'Toole, Mr. Ralph Holden made learning easy for her. "He gives simple notes and quizzes that help me practice for tests," she said. O'Toole said, "I've learned about the war and Hitler; things I didn't know about."

Many teachers were known for the way that they taught. Others were known more for their personality. According to junior Carla Gomez, Mr. David Vignocchi made English class interesting. "He makes class fun; he's a nice teacher and has a good sense of humor," said Gomez. Gomez had just met Mr. Vignocchi in the fall, but she still thought that he was a helpful and interesting teacher. She said, "I don't think reading is boring; I think it's insightful. I like to do it now." Some teachers made learning fun for students, and that made them happy and excited to learn.

The way teachers taught definitely had a big impact on students. A big part of how they learned depended on how the material was presented to them. Teachers that did the standard teaching, like lecturing all hour, tended to bore students. The students did not pay attention to them. On the other hand, teachers that added more spunk and variation to their classes tended to have more of a captive audience.

Students who received good grades in a class were a reflection of a fun learning environment. Freshman Jackie Schara earned A's and B's from Ms. Angie Lowe in French class. Schara said, "Mrs. Lowe tries to make it fun. If it's boring for her, it's boring for us."

Every teacher probably had different experiences and learned to teach in definite patterns, so standards of good teaching differed between teachers. As long as the students learned and got decent grades, education would continue to flourish, and teachers would affect the lives of their pupils.

Graphic arts is a class where hands-on experience is gained throughout the whole year. When times get tough, Mr. Rainwater is always there to lend a helping hand. He assists his graphic arts student, junior Jeremy Dunn, to ensure that the project that he is having difficulty with runs smoothly.

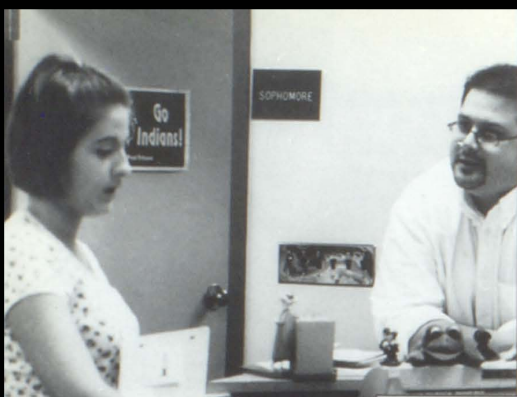

Another graphic arts problem, but not to worry because Mr. Engerski knows what to do. He helps a print shop student with a little precise measuring. Details count all the time in graphic arts, so measuring must be exact.

Senior Nate Richie is very proud of the pictures that were taken of him and his girlfriend, Marissa Hepburn at Spring Homecoming. He shows them off to Ms. Kapelinski in the athletic office.

Pressure on Students Studying Habits

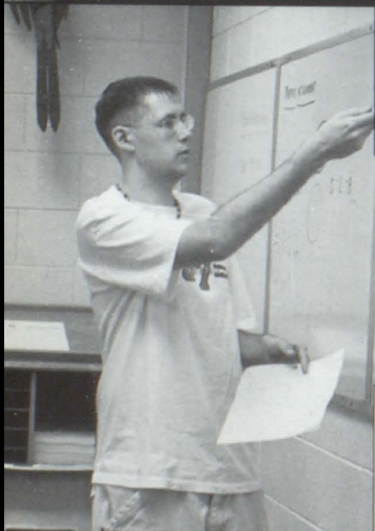

Mr. McGrath talked with senior Amy Tworkowski to get the inside scoop on the student gossip for the week.

Mrs. Malcsh talks on the phone to a parent to make an appointment with one of the principals.

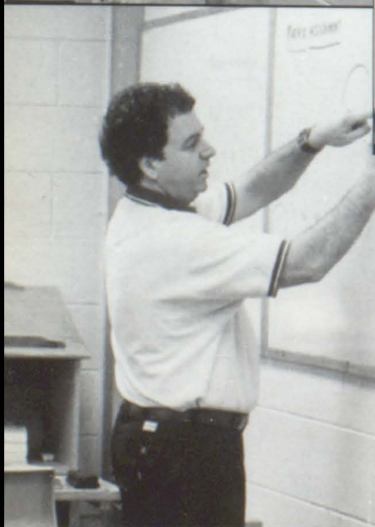

Senior Jeff Baisden said, "I make school more interesting by taking classes like Machine Shop and other electives."

Taking over as teacher of the day, senior Jay Blackman explained a problem in Discrete Math.

Senior Sara Sikich said, "I tried to take classes this year to keep me involved with school activities in order for me to keep awake in class."

Mr. Bugaski demonstrates a problem on the board to get his students ready for their last test before the grading period ends.

"To keep my grades up, my friends and I meet for a study group once a week," said senior, Meghan Schloer.

Class, take out your pencils, it's time for today's pop quiz.

Along with the masses of homework and inevitable research papers, it was well known that tests were near the top on a student's list of academic worries. With the implementation of block scheduling last year, teachers found more time to add tests and quizzes to their study plans. Students who tried to study for these tests sometimes found themselves overwhelmed by the amount of work.

"We have a test practically every day," said sophomore Aimee Johnson, "and it's too much pressure to be expected to study for them all." Teachers resorted to testing every day because it was the only way they could get students to learn the material while meeting every other day. These tests may have been worth a large portion of a student's grade, even if he or she had worked hard in other areas.

"We work extremely hard on homework only to find out it is worth a minimal amount of points," said sophomore Sydney Szozda. The added time did, however, give the students more time to ask questions and take retests in SRT. Many teachers were more than willing to offer their SRT if it meant helping a student. Other students were less enthusiastic about the extra time and found they liked classes that focused more on learning.

"I think I do better in classes that focus more on learning because classes that are based on tests set you up to fail," said junior Erin Cerwinski. Many students get nervous or find tests more difficult although they may know the material well.

It wasn't just everyday tests that students found overbearing. The ISTEP and SAT tests rose many students' stress level. The ISTEP test determined whether a student could graduate and SAT scores were a basis of entry at almost all colleges. Some LC students thought that it wasn't fair to put such emphasis on a test that may not have tested all of one's available skills.

The testing situation, despite a rocky analysis, did not dampen most students' LC spirit throughout the year. It was simply another hurdle for the students to get over on their way to a successful future.

During a regular class period students get assigned "Homework" but actually rush to get it done during class. Senior Sean Gallagher works on a math assignment before the weekend comes.

Have no fear; Mr. Veracco is here! He gets his duty done by organizing the file of students every day.

Students Concerned with Class Rank

Michelle Beatrice, Mike Medsker, and Tom Shallon work hard to finish their group government assignments. Ms. Ihnat does not usually assign group work, so they are taking advantage of this opportunity to work together.

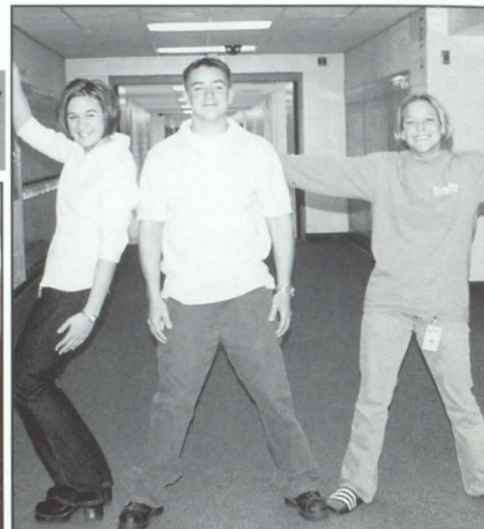

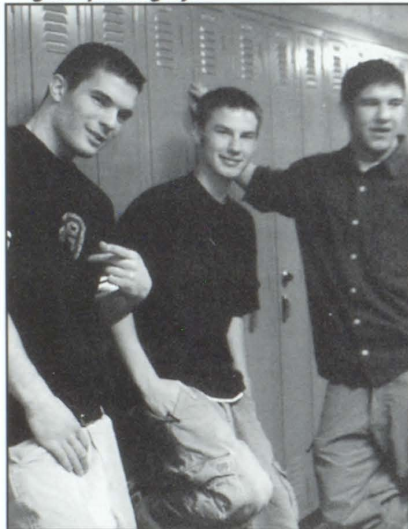

Melanie Sherwinski and Natalie Stelmacek work together in a group in their Spanish V class. Ms. Laskey always assigns group work when her Spanish IV and V Honors classes read a new story. Reading the Spanish stories in a group of people makes them easier to understand. Two minds prove better than one.

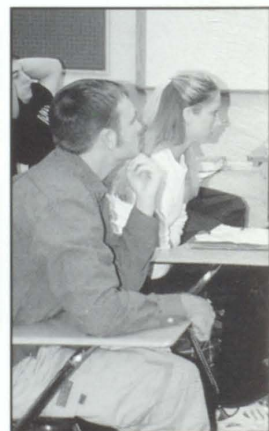

Andy Jakubowicz waited in line for a long time to finally get to talk to Mr. Fenters. The advice of this wise government teacher is much sought after by many seniors, and he is usually willing to give it freely.

Mark Coduti, Aaron Dohi, and Ryan Blevens take a breather during passing period. They enjoy leaning against the lockers while they look around at the girls passing by.

Preparing for the S.A.T. can be very tough. Senior Amy Tworowski joins friends to spell out S.A.T. in the halls.

Students at LC competed every year to be ranked at the top of their class. Some students found it difficult to accumulate a high GPA, while others thought it was an easy accomplishment. Everyone had different reasons for wanting to achieve a high grade point average. Achieving a high GPA might be difficult and frustrating for some, but the benefits could outweigh the hassle in the long run.

Students at the top of their class had their own different strategies for making the grades. Senior Cara Freeland said, "I do my homework and know materials before taking tests." Freeland felt good when she got to the top of the list, especially because she had a graduating class size of 609 students.

Senior Brian Faga gave some study tips that he had practiced throughout high school. "By taking good notes and paying attention in class, every time I saw my report card, it felt great," Faga said.

Some students felt pressure from their parents to have a high GPA. As sophomore Elizabeth Beeman said, "I have to keep my grades up because my parents have always stressed education."

On the other hand, some parents did not make grades a big issue. Junior Amanda Cole said, "My parents do not care. They said to try to do my best and at least get C's." Cole felt satisfied with getting these grades.

Many students tried to get their GPA to be among the best because of their plans for after high school. Many times colleges relied on GPAs to decide admissions. GPA and class rank were not the only things colleges looked at, but a 4.0 or above definitely looked good on transcripts. For this reason Faga kept his grades up. He said, "I want to go to college, and I am thinking about majoring in engineering, so this is important to have."

Students ranked at the top of their class due with high GPAs were proud. Wanting good grades caused a little stress at report card time, and competition could be tough. Most people were satisfied if they had tried their best, though. Being ranked at the top was important to some, but others just wanted to do their best.

A group of freshman boys take advantage of study time. Sherry Stremplewski, senior, takes her work to the library to study.

Mr. Freckleton works hard to finish his grades at the end of the nine weeks. Even teachers have due dates.

Ms. Hewlett works to correct and complete yearbook staff layouts with Herff-Jones consultant, Lisa Keene. The yearbook demands a lot of behind-the-scenes work that is led by Ms. Hewlett.

Mike Dornaker, senior, says "Teachers are all different. Some really care and some don't care at all. You can always tell the teachers who care, though, by the effort they show."

Everyone who has had Ms. Lamaster as a teacher knows that she gets a lot of use out of her overhead projector. It is a valuable teaching tool to her.

Senior Carl Peterson said, "Mr. Fredrick is my favorite teacher because he makes English interesting by challenging us every day."

Mr. Iwema always has a hand to lend. Michele May is a little confused in the computer lab, but she is not to fear because Mr. Iwema is always near.

Senior Brad Yates said, "My favorite teacher is Bug. He gave me the Student of the Month award, and he's a Cubs fan. Who could be better?"

Ms. Crock, as well as the rest of the nurses, has a very strenuous job. She works hard every day to keep kids healthy. Taking temperatures of sick kids is only one of the daily duties she has.

Remember those reruns of "The Wonder Years" when Kevin used the simple pickup line, "Can I carry your books?"

As the popularity of book bags arose, that simple, no-fail pickup line faded. Seeking a safer facility, not the comeback of a garden-variety one liner, LC's proposition was not enforced, and book bags continued to dominate the hallways.

Most students were pleased with the decision to allow book bags. Sophomore Liz Beeman thought that the ban would have had a negative result rather than the expected positive. She said, "People would have to go to their locker more often and carry more," causing more tardies, not increasing hallway space.

Junior Jude Keelan saw another problem that a ban on book bags would cause. Not only would the ban increase tardies, but it would decrease hallway space because, "Stuff would be dropped all over the place." The hallways left just enough room for LC's flourishing numbers to squeeze through. If the ban was put into effect, the hallways might have resembled an obstacle course of lost books, pencils, and calculators.

Seniors Melissa Trivelino and Colleen O'Sullivan help each other out on their new assignment for their English class.

Practical and creative, book bags revealed the best of both worlds. Jansport and Eastpack were the most popular brands. Students used their bags to express their personal style. Sophomore Eric Hill decorated his Jansport bag with the names of his favorite bands. He preferred Jansport bags because they were "durable." Also among those sporting a decorated bag, freshman Holly Hieber decorated her Jansport by coloring in the logo and surrounding it with sparkles.

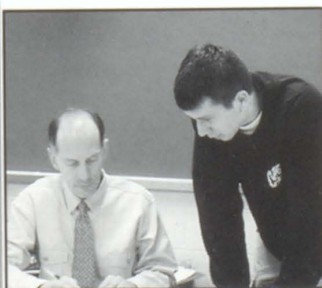

Luckily for the students, the book bag ban was avoided. As Hieber commented, "Everyone uses them." the chaos this ban may have created would have reached far and wide, but the sheer threat caused an overall appreciation for book bags.

Fame? Fortune? Or a few hours of fun at home?

O'Day Music Studios is a professional music studios specializing in musical instruction, including voice, piano, organ, keyboard, guitar, percussion, all of the band and string instruments, and Kindermusik.

The studio offers private and group instruction to students of all ages and skill levels for $60/month. At O'Day Music Studios, instructors know students have different needs and goals.

Whether you're seeking fame and fortune or a few hours of fun at home, you can feel welcome at O'Day music Studios.

Planning a celebration?

O'Day Music Studios also can help make your special day one of you and your guests will remember forever.

From classical to country, modern to traditional, we can accommodate any musical requests for any occasion:

- Trumpet processions
- String quartets
- Full-range vocals
- Custom music selections

Rely in the music professionals at O'Day Music Studios to help you select just the right music, instruments, and vocalists. Need a free consultation? Please call the studio.

The Romans would have written the year 2000 as MM. To a printer . . . MM means a thousand thousand — or one million.

Lithographic can take you into the Millennium with quality Graphic Design, Printing, Data and Mailing Services.

Whether you need one thousand (M) or one million (MM) — we welcome the opportunity to quote on your next job.

Falling into Place... Now Assembled.

Agghh... those dreaded words, "Some Assembly Required." In the hours we spent diligently working to unearth each piece of our puzzle, in clubs, sports, classes, and our own after-school activities, we found ourselves one piece at a time. Few like work, but somehow, the terrors of work faded as we began to see progress and the pieces began to assemble themselves.

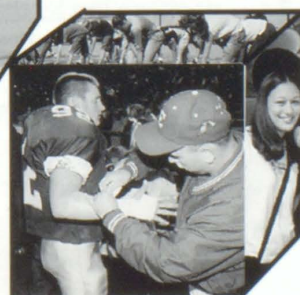

The years fell into place. Freshmen lived through a year of seclusion in the Freshmen Center. Sophomores adjusted to high school life. Juniors completed a demanding year of college preparatory work. Seniors turned the last page of LC's chapter, while the excitement to open the next grew.

The knowledge we learned reached far beyond the classroom. We experienced life and learned its lessons as we journayed with our teachers and administrators, our coaches and sponsors, our classmates and teammates, and our friends. We learned how to win and lose, to laugh and cry, to love and lose--we learned together.

Yes, there was Some Assembly Required, but the work helped guide the placement of each puzzle piece to make a uniquely assembled product. The memories contained in the hallways of LC echoed the accomplishments of the past and celebrated the promise of the future. As the last locker was cleaned and the graduating class moved on, still the echo of the pieces falling could be heard.

The inevitable noises--Clink, Splatter, Thump--will again fill our ears as we meet our next adventure. Once again the scattered pieces will be out of order, another school year ready to begin, and some assembly will be required.

Colophon:

Some will take a memento from LC to remember it by, but we have taken enough. We have taken pictures from and of friends and quotes from innocent by-standers trying to casually walk past the crazed Quiver students. We have taken 90 minutes every other day of the 60 Quiver staff members, and together we assembled 304 pages of hard work, sweat, and dedication. The deadlines were made thanks to your commitment, making the co-editor's job much easier and shorter (we will only be here a few days after graduation to finish). You all deserve recognition...

Special thanks to Sarah Pratt for the beautiful Indian artwork that added the finishing touches to the cover. Good luck in the future! Take your talents to the max.

Here, Andy, here's your "Shout out." Splitting Quiver into two classes was definitely a challenge, but our awesome sports editors, Andy Pollen and Megan Pluskis, made this transition smooth and also made the best sports section ever. We could have never done it without you.

Marina—thanks for picking up the slack when we needed it and for keeping a smile while you were doing it. That dance page was made for you, always keep backing that thang up.

Peto—did you actually think we would ever kick you out? Your pictures are awesome and definitely came when we needed them. Thanks buddy!

We are sure it's not easy to index almost 3,000 names, but thanks to Kim Davies we never had to find out for ourselves. Thanks Kim! Your work was appreciated. By the way, nice shoe! Remember to watch out for dive bombing birds in train stations.

Lisa Keene—(a.k.a. Doughnut Lady) Need we say more but keep the doughnuts a comin'. O, we almost forgot, Thanks (While thinking of chocolate, sugar, jelly-filled, glazed, and crème-filled doughnuts). Your gift of doughnuts made 7:15 a.m. Quiver classes bearable.

We also send our best wishes to Lori Cypher and Marissa Hepburn, next year's co-editors. You have a difficult task in front of you, but we are sure you will do great. Good luck!

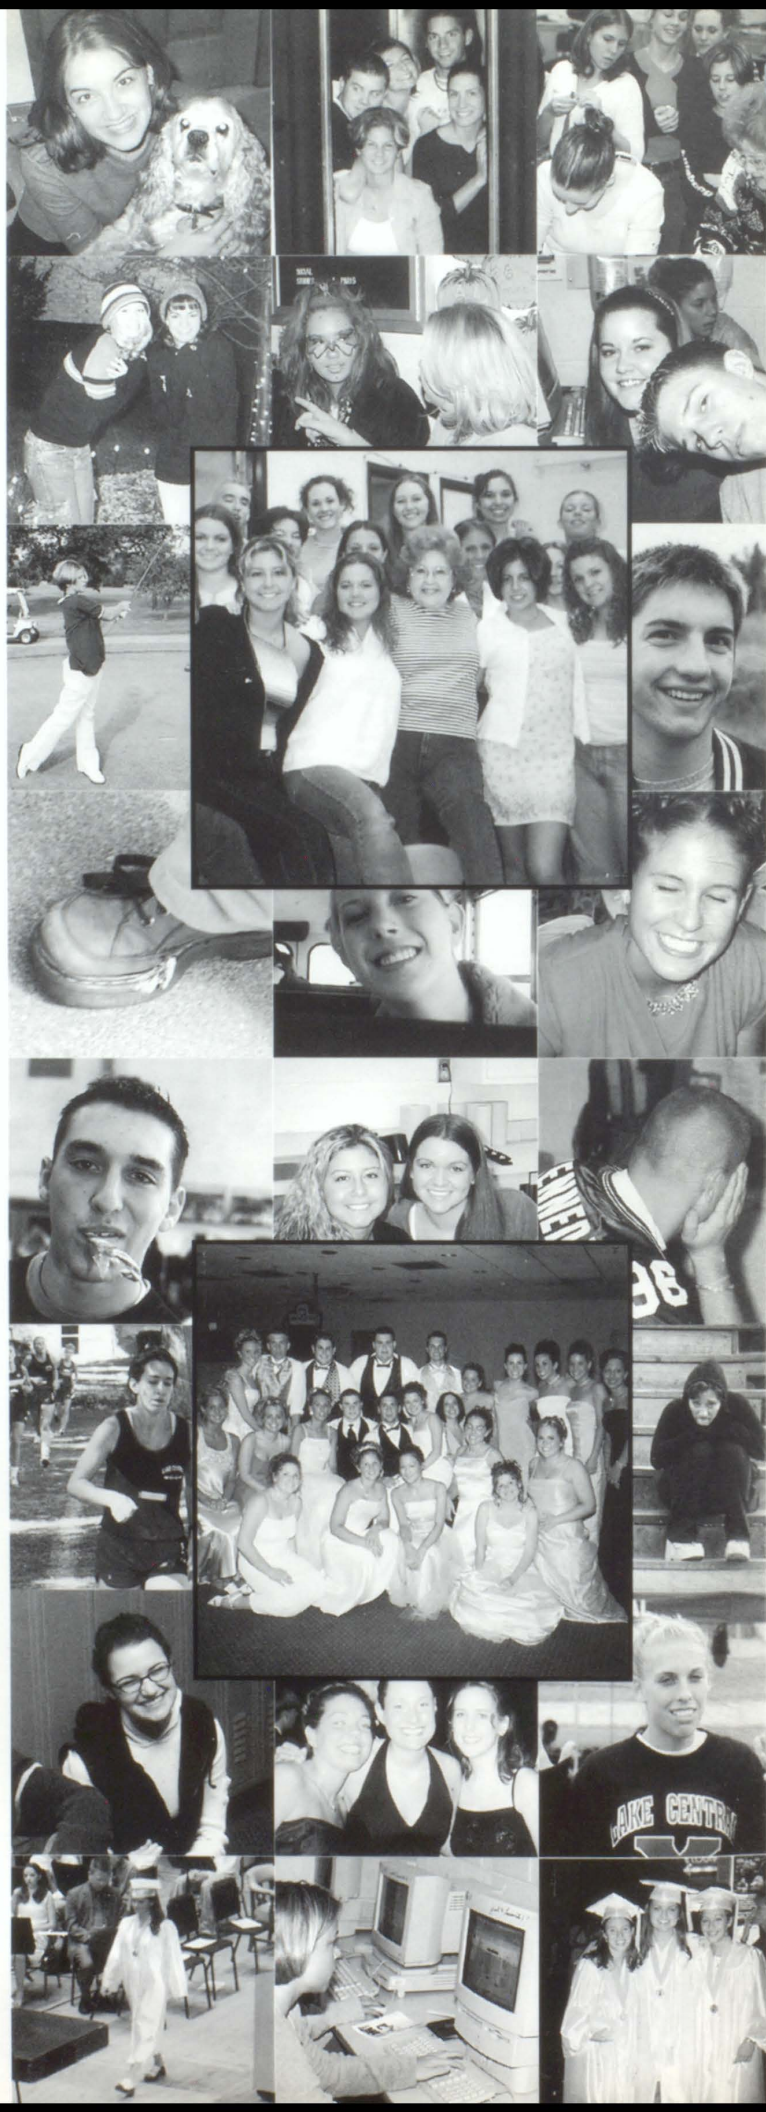

For your leadership, thank you, Ms. Hewlett. We know this was the thirty-fifth yearbook you have advised, but the years have not tarnished your energy and dedication. Your inner strength came through during this emotionally hard year. Always a true Indian at heart... We love you!

For those we did not name individually, your work will never be forgotten. Yearbook takes a team to make an extraordinary assembled product. Thanks Quiver for a memorable year. This has made our high school experience truly unforgettable.

The 1999-2000 Quiver was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks in Mission, Kansas. All page layouts were created on Pagemaker 6.5. Computer work was completed on both IBM and Macintosh computers. Copy is Times 12 pt, and captions are Modern 8pt italic bold. Headlines and scatter story fonts came from Pagemaker and 2000 Fantastic Fonts. The student-designed cover used Top Secret 72 pt from 2000 Fantastic Fonts and faded from Pantone 293 CVC to Pantone 291 CVC. All underclass and senior pictures were taken by John Giolas Photography. All other pictures, productions, and layouts were all student-designed.

"The speech I prepared and presented at the graduation ceremony was based on my hopes for the future. We, as the graduating class, need to realize that there's a lot of work to be done in the world, and now since we're adults, we have the responsibility to take action. I really believe that our generation has the capability to improve and affect our world, and I wanted to try to inspire my classmates to see the problems and solutions as I do, so we can work together to redress the problems."--Julie
